SENATORIAL PRIMARY IS CONSTITUTIONAL SAYS HIGH TRIBUNAL

DECISION MEANS STATE DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE HAS AUTHORITY TO LEVY AN ASSESSMENT UPON CANDIDATES FOR VARIOUS OFFICES.

FOUR QUESTIONS SUBMITTED

Justices Decline to Answer as to Whether Stipulation Should be Made to Refund an Excess From Assessment After Expenses Are Met—Case Not Presented on Writ of Error.

Austin, Tex., June 24.—The supreme court this evening upheld the constitutionality of the senatorial primary election law in an opinion by Associate Justice Hawkins, in answering certified questions from the second court of civil appeals at Fort Worth, in the case of Sam S. Beene against Paul Waples, chairman of the state democratic executive committee, et al, from Tarrant county.

The effect of this decision by the supreme court means that the state democratic executive committee has the authority under the senatorial primary statute to levy an assessment upon candidates for state, district, county and precinct officers to defray the expenses of the run-off primary for United States senator. Beene sought to enjoin State Chairman Waples from making the assessment on the grounds that the law was unconstitutional; he being a candidate for justice of the peace of precinct No. 1, of Tarrant county. The district court of Tarrant county refused the injunction and the case was submitted to the second court of appeals and that tribunal certified the questions involved to the supreme court for final adjudication.

The principal question certified by the court of civil appeals to the supreme court was: "Is section 34 of said act above referred to (general laws, 1913, special session, chapter 39, page 101) unconstitutional?"

The supreme court answered the question in the negative. Unlike the act of 1905 relative to primary elections generally, the act of 1913, says Associate Justice Hawkins, in his opinion, does not set out specifically provisions "for pameynt of primary election expenses contemplated by the act, but does declare, in general terms, how such expenses are to be defrayed."

Thre were four questions submitted but by answering the first question in the negative, rendered it unnecessary to answer the second and third questions ,the court however, refused to answer the fourth question:

"In view of the number of candidates for the democratic nomination for the office of United States senator, and the probability of the necessity for the second senatorial primary, can the contemplated assessment against the appellant, if otherwise valid, be made at this time, under the stipulation to refund the excess as contained in the agreed statement of fact herein, in event such primary be not held, or is such assessment premature?"

In refusing to answer this question the court holds that it is an improper one for certification as the case is not before it upon an application for a writ of error, consequently the court is destitute of present jurisdiction of authority over that issue of law, "wherefore, we decline to answer the fourth question. Upon appeal the duty of passing upon such questions rests primarily upon the court of civil appeals."

South American Nations Will Propose Mediation

New York, June 24.—Gonzalo S. Cordova, minister from Ecuador to the United States, announced through his secretary tonight that he would leave for Washington late tonight or late tomorrow to confer with other South American diplomats in an effort to bring about mediation between the United States and Mexico.

"I feel that war can be averted if immediate and energetic steps are taken," said Mr. Cordova through his son, who acts as his secretary.

He expects to confer with the other Latin-American envoys as soon as he reaches Washington.

Modesto C. Rolland, former Mexican consul general in New York, who was invited by the American Union Against Militarism to serve as one of three Mexican representatives on an unofficial commission which would strive to bring about a peaceful solution of the Mexican trouble, left late today for El Paso, where he expects to meet Dr. David Starr Jordan and Frank P. Walsh, who have consented to serve as American representatives.

Will Propose Mediation.

Washington, June 24.—Minister Ignacio Calderon of Bolivia, speaking for several South and Central American republics, today asked Eliseo Arredondo, Mexican ambassador-designate, whether the Carranza government would be willing to accept mediation in the crisis between the United States and Mexico.

The Mexican ambassador said he would communicate the inquiry to General Carranza, but that he was not empowered to make a reply at this time. Mr. Calderon failed to see Secretary Lansing today on the same mission, but announced tonight that he expected to direct a similar inquiry to the American government Monday.

What form the inquiry from Minister Calderon took was not disclosed tonight. His conferences probably will be followed by others tomorrow between many Latin-American representatives to the United States.

Chile Will Wait for Answers.

Santiago, Chile, June 24.—The Chilean government, it waa learned today, expects to await answers from the nations it has consulted regarding the possibility of intervention by all the American nations to bring about a peaceful solution of the Mexican situation before taking further steps in the matters.

Germans Gain at Verdun; Bukowina Battles Continue

The Associated Press summarizes the war news as follows:

The Russian offensive is still in full swing in Zukowina where the advance of General Brussiloff's forces is apparently being little impeded by the Austrians. The town of Kuty, across the Galician border, at the foot of the Carpathians, has been occupied and virtually all the important towns in the crown land now are in Russian possession.

To the north, German troops in increasing numbers, are reported to be coming to the aid of the Austrians and the Russians are being forced to fight to hold the ground they have already won. Heavy fighting is in progress along the line from northern Galicia well to the northwest of Lutsk but neither side is claiming material progress. The German army headquarters statement asserts that some ground has been gained by General von Linsingen's forces, but Petrograd does not admit that a permanent advantage has been won by the Austro-German armies at any point.

Definite and important gains have been scored by the Germans on the western front at Verdun. Capturing the Thiaumont fortified position north of the city they pushed on and captured a part of the village of Fleury, a little more than three miles from Verdun but were soon ejected from the village by a counter attack, according to the Paris official statement. The French war office claims that much of the ground taken by the Germans was recaptured in subsequent counter attacks by the French but admits that the crown prince's forces still are in possession of the Thiaumont wood.

The Italians have made further advances in the Trentino, pushing forward in the Pasubio sector while elsewhere they have withstood successfully attacks by the Austrians.

Constantinople reports an important success in Turkish-Armenia where the Russians were driven from positions more than a mile in width on a mountain ridge north of the Chorokh river. On the Persian frontier of Mesopotamia the Russians were cleared from Paitik pass and pursued by the Turks some ten miles to the eastward. Petrograd claims a Turkish repulse in the Trebizond sector.

Austrians Claim Victory.

Vienna, June 24, via London 10:35 p. m.—An Austro-Hungarian encircling advance has pressed the Russians out of Kuty (Galicia) according to the Austrian official statement issued today.

In Volynia the Austro-German forces are disputing the ground foot by foot north of the Lipa river, northeast of Gorochow and west and northwest of Torchyn where all the Russian counter attacks have been frustrated.

Militia Units of Eastern States to Move This Week

New York, June 24.—Major General Leonard Wood, commanding the department of the east of the United States army, said tonight that he believed that some of the militia units of Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and New York, which are now mobilizing at various concentration camps would be ready to move toward the Mexican border by Monday or Tuesday of next week.

No Verdict Reached By Arkansas Jury

Pine Bluff, Ark., June 24.—No verdict had been reached early tonight by the jury that is deliberating the fate of Thomas Bradbury, who is on trial for his life charged with the murder of P. G. Jenkins, wealthy planter of this county. The jury began its deliberations at 4:30.

Missouri Officer Found Dead.

Nevada, Mo., June 24.—Maj. V. O. Williams, chief surgeon of the Missouri National Guard, was found dead in his motor car a mile from the state training camp this afternoon. Apparently he had suffered a stroke of apoplexy. His home was in Nevada.

RELEASE PRISONERS: REPUDIATE ATTACK: AMERICAN DEMAND

WASHINGTON GOVERNMENT UNDERSTOOD TO BE CONTEMPLATING MESSAGE TO CARRANZA AS OUTLINED ABOVE AS NEXT STEP.

NO OFFERS OF MEDIATION MADE

"Nothing to Mediate," Is Stand Taken by Administration Officials — War Department Going Right Ahead, Equipping Guardsmen and Sending Ammunition and Machine Guns.

Washington, June 24.—A peremptory demand that General Carranza repudiate the attack on American troops at Carrizal and immediately release all captured American soldiers was understood tonight to be the next step in the Mexican crisis now contemplated by the Washington government.

Failure to comply with either demand undoubtedly would result in the gravest consequences, foretold in Secretary Lansing's recent note to the de facto government.

Formulation of a communication awaited a final report from General Pershing on the Carrizal incident. Pending its receipt the war department pressed urgently today its efforts to reinforce strongly the border patrol and prepare for any eventuality.

Full information from American sources as to what happened at Carrizal was still lacking and the long delay in finding additional survivors of the fight was regarded as an ominous sign. No American officer may survive. In that event action by the United States probably would be based on the reports already received from stragglers.

HOPE FOR FEW OF COMMAND.

Aside from the stragglers the American dead reported by Mexican authorities and the prisoners in Mexican hands, more than a score of men remained unaccounted for out of Captain Loyd's little detachmen t of negro troops. Without exception the reports of the stragglers indicate that the force was trapped and massacred by machine gun fire.

Some hope persisted tonight that a few of the command left afoot in the desert when their horses stampeded under the Mexican fire may have dug themselves in somewhere in the country west of Carrizal and be awaiting relief. General Pershing's cavalry supports were nearing the scene of the tragedy and already had picked up a number of survivors, according to late reports from the border.

Officials were plainly concerned with news dispatches from Chihuahua saying that Gen. Jacinto Trevino, the Mexican commander, had threatened to attack American columns reported as coming from the field base toward San Antonio and Ojo Caliente if they did not immediately retreat. Another battle at this time might precipitate general hostilities.

CARRANZA MAY BE SEEKING MEDIATION.

Rumors that the Carranza government was seeking mediation through the other Latin-American nations came from many quarters today. The activity of Eleslo Arredondo, the Mexican ambassador designate, lent weight to the reports. Private advices from Mexico City also continued to indicate that General Carranza still hoped to find a way to evade the storm his policy has aroused.

No offers of mediation reached the state department from any source. Administration officials hold that they have nothing to mediate. It is generally regarded as unlikely that President Wilson would agree to any proposal that meant tying the hands of General Funston in his efforts to protect the border from bandits.

A report reached here today that General Carranza and his cabinet had prepared a reply to the last American note rejecting his demand that American troops be withdrawn from Mexico. The report said it would be published in Mexico City tomorrow.

Private advices today still pictured the position of General Carranza as strongly inclined toward a peaceful termination of the present situation.

WAR DEPARTMENT IS GETTING READY.

While the diplomatic status of the situation shifted and changed today with every hour, if rumors were to be connected, the steps of the war department to get ready continued.

Arrangements are being perfected for diverting large shipments of machine guns and ammunition manufactured for certain of the allied European powers to the American army. They are urgently needed to equip fully the guard regiments.

Agents of the allies have informed this government that their contracts in this country will be subordinated to the needs of the American army. Americans have hastened to get out of Mexico today by every possible route. The colony in Mexico City virtually has been transferred to Vera Cruz.

Secretary Baker discussed developments for two hours tonight with Major General Scott, chief of staff, and later took several telegrams from General Funston to the white house for a confernce with President Wilson.

Closing Arguments In Hadley Trial

Muskogee, Okla., June 24.—Closing arguments in the case of Paul and Ida Hadley, charged with the murder of Sheriff Jake Giles of Beaumont, were begun tonight.

Attorney John Mathis of Brenham, Texas, employed by the sheriff's Association of Texas to assist in the prosecution, making the first argument, asked the jury to assess the death penalty upon both the man and the woman.

WILL LEAD TROOPS IF TROUBLE COMES

General Bell.

In the event of an outbreak of hostilities with Mexico, General Bell the commander of Fort Bliss, Texas is expected to move across the border, along the tracks of the Mexican Central railway and cut the line south of Villa Ahumada. This would prevent the de facto forces under General Francisco Serrano and General Jacinto Trevino from attacking the American troops at El Ville and Colonia Dublan.

MAY BE BATTLES IN NORTH CHIHUAHUA

El Paso, Texas, June 24.—Apprehensions that battles may be in progress tonight between American and Mexican troops in at least two places in Northern Chihuahua gripped the border tonight.

American columns were moving in the directions of San Antonio and Ojo Caliente, while General Trevino, commanding the Carranza army of the north, has ordered troops at adjacent points to attack them if they do not retreat immediately.

While information concerning these movements reached here today from Chihuahua City, additional advices indicated that General Trevino's scouts reported the approach of the Americans yesterday and that his orders were issued immediately. With a lapse of twenty-four hours it is assumed here that it is probable that the opposing forces may have met.

News from Juarez has caused well informed Americans here to give up the belief that Juarez in event of a break would be evacuated without a fight. That General Gonzales and his staff are still in Juarez and the town garrison is being maintained, reports of Mexican troop movements in the outlying districts and apparently increased precautions on the American side are cited as confirmatory of the theory.

Continued rumors of the presence of Villa in this region have reached United States authorities, but have not been generally credited.

Reports of heavy concentration of Carrancista troops in all of the northern Mexican states have been received at the border points while recruiting is said to be progressing rapidly. The same reports indicate that a number of former outlaw leaders and their commands are joining General Trevino's army of the north as a result of a Mexican war department offer of complete amnesty to persons who have opposed the government provided they join in combatting a possible American invasion.

No perceptible exodus of Mexicans from El Paso followed the publication today of Consul Garcia's advice to his nationals to return to Mexico, inasmuch as Americans continue to leave Mexican territory. On the other hand, during the day a large number of Mexicans crossed into the United States, asserting that they would feel safer here in the event of hostilities.

Local custom officials today were co-operating with the military authorities in holding up heavy freight shipments into Mexico and keeping American rolling stock on this side of the frontier.

Guatemala Now On Friendly Terms With Mexico Again

Mexico City, June 24.—Foreign Minister Aguilar stated today that friendly relations with Guatemala had been resumed, President Cabrera of Guatemala having approved Dr. Stickel, the diplomatic agent of the Guatemalan government here while Salivador Martinez Alomia had been named Mexican representative to Guatemala.

President Cabrera said the Mexican foreign minister had telegraphed Dr. Stickel requesting him to assure the Mexican government that Guatemala would not attempt to interfere in Mexican international affairs and that the friendly relations between the two nations interrupted for a time will be strengthened in the future.

There has been friction between Mexico and Guatemala because of the incursions of bandits in both countries across the international border and the alleged mistreatment of Mexicans in Guatemala.

CAPTAIN BOYD MET DEATH AFTER HEROIC CHARGE AT CARRIZAL SAYS SURVIVOR

FIRST DETAILED ACCOUNT OF ENGAGEMENT

Belief at Pershing's Headquarters Is That Captain Morey Now May Be Bringing Remnants of Expedition Back Through Great Obstacles — Adobe Houses Occupied by Separated Troops and Deadly Execution Wrought in Ranks of Carrancistas.

Field Headquarters, June 24.—Via. Wireless to Columbus, N. M.—Trapped and fighting against heavy odds, the troops of the Tenth cavalry engaged at Carrizal on Wednesday, charged twice directly into the ambush which the Mexicans had laid for them. With bullets in his arm and shoulder, Captain Charles T. Boyd, the commander, remained in the saddle, leading his negro troopers until they had captured concealed Mexican machine gun trenches, when he fell mortally wounded with a bullet in the eye.

This was the gist of the first detailed account of the engagement from American sources which was brought to General Pershing today by Corporal Green of Troop C, who was at Captain Boyd's side until he fell.

The Americans were flanked on both sides by the Carranzistas, who had partly surrounded the little command during a conference between Felix Gomez, the Mexican leader, and Captain Boyd. In front was a concealed machine gun trench from which a stream of leaden death unexpectedly was poured into the American ranks.

Corporal Green said that Captain Boyd, although wounded in the arm and shoulder by the first fire, immediately gave the order to charge and the detachment rode at top speed in a hail of bullets, directly at the trench, capturing it just as the American leader fell. The Mexicans retreated to cover in a nearby adobe shack. Lieutenant Adair assumed command and ordered a second charge, which drove through the shack, scattering the Mexican command. Green said he did not see Lieutenant Adair after this charge, and believed that he lost his life in it.

Meanwhile Captain Lewis S. Morey, commanding K troop, which also was surrounded during the parley, occupied another adobe house with his men, from which he engaged a second detachment of the Mexicans. While it is assumed here that Captain Morey was wounded in the fight, neither Corporal Green nor any of the survivors reaching here knew anything of the outcome of his part in the battle.

It is believed here, however, that he may have collected the scattered remnants of the American command and is bringing them slowly and through obstacles to General Pershing's lines. The survivors arriving here said that the Carrancistas circled far around Carrizal after the engagement and overtook and captured a number of soldiers who had been holding horses back beyond sight of the battleground when the fight began.

Piecing together the fragmentary reports which have reached field headquarters, all except 21 of the 84 men engaged in the fight have been accounted for. These reports indicate that thirteen were killed, 17 taken prisoner and 33 have come into camp here in the last two days, most of them coming afoot over a blistering desert, suffering the greatest hardships from lack of water.

Major Jenkins Hastening To Relief of Morey's Men

San Antonio, Tex., June 24.—The force of the Tenth United States cavalry under Captain Charles T. Boyd, succeeded in breaking through the lines of the Mexican force under General Felix Gomex at Carrizal, according to a message tonight from General Pershing to General Funston, but whether any of them finally were able to make their escape still is unknown.

Captain Boyd's men of troop C took the ditch in which the front line of Mexican troops were entrenched and charged through into the town of Carrizal. Troop K, under Captain Lewis [illegible] charged with troop C, but were [illegible]cked and forced to take refuge [illegible]obe house. They at least had [illegible] to defend themselves from [illegible] their ultimate fate is unknown, is that of the remnants of [illegible]yd's troop.

[illegible] came to General Pershing by [illegible] from Major John M. Jenkins, [illegible]nding a squadron of the relief [illegible] on sent out from Colonia Dublan. [illegible]jor Jenkins also announced that [illegible] had found five men of C troop, [illegible] cavalry, and one of K troop at [illegible] Luis ranch.

They did not see the finish of the fight, but their stories, according to Major Jenkins' courier, confirmed the stories of the other stragglers that the attack had been opened by the Mexican troops without provocation.

PERSHING THINKS SURVIVORS NOT CAPTURED.

General Pershing said in his report that he did not believe that the thirty-seven men still unaccounted for had been captured. This was taken to mean here that he feared Captain Morey's men had not been able to hold out against the overwhelming odds against them even from the shelter of the house in which they had taken refuge and had been killed.

It still is hoped however that they still may be holding out and Major Jenkins' command is hastening toward Carrizal with all speed to their relief. Major Robert L. Howse with the second squadron of the relief expedition is a day behind Jenkins and is pressing hard to overtake and support him.

General Pership according to his report has sent provisions and supplies for the wounded to meet Major Jenkins and Howse on their return march toward Colonia Dublan.

General Pershing reported that the troops under Captain Boyd and Captain Morey showed the greatest courage and exhibited the most sterling fighting qualities.

No mention of the Mexican cavalry charge reported by stragglers last night was made in the Pershing report but the fact that the Americans were able to advance and break the Mexican lines after the first attack is believed to give sure indication that the charge was checked.

CARRANZA MAY BE SEEKING MEDIATION.

Rumors that the Carranza government was seeking mediation through the other Latin-American nations came from many quarters today. The activity of Elesio Arredondo, the Mexican ambassador designate, lent weight to the reports. Private advices from Mexico City also continued to indicate that General Carranza still hoped to find a way to evade the storm his policy has aroused.

No offers of mediation reached the state department from any source. Administration officials hold that they have nothing to mediate. It is generally regarded as unlikely that President Wilson would agree to any proposal that meant tying the hands of General Funston in his efforts to protect the border from bandits.

A report reached here today that General Carranza and his cabinet had prepared a reply to the last American note rejecting his demand that American troops be withdrawn from Mexico. The report said it would be published in Mexico City tomorrow.

Private advices today still pictured the position of General Carranza as strongly inclined toward a peaceful termination of the present situation.

WAR DEPARTMENT IS GETTING READY.

While the diplomatic status of the situation shifted and changed today with every hour, if rumors were to be connected, the steps of the war department to get ready continued.

Arrangements are being perfected for diverting large shipments of machine guns and ammunition manufactured for certain of the allied European powers to the American army. They are urgently needed to equip fully the guard regiments.

Agents of the allies have informed this government that their contracts in this country will be subordinated to the needs of the American army. Americans have hastened to get out of Mexico today by every possible route. The colony in Mexico City virtually has been transferred to Vera Cruz.

Secretary Baker discussed developments for two hours tonight with Major General Scott, chief of staff, and later took several telegrams from General Funston to the white house for a confernce with President Wilson.

Closing Arguments In Hadley Trial

Muskogee, Okla., June 24.—Closing arguments in the case of Paul and Ida Hadley, charged with the murder of Sheriff Jake Giles of Beaumont, were begun tonight.

Attorney John Mathis of Brenham, Texas, employed by the sheriff's Association of Texas to assist in the prosecution, making the first argument, asked the jury to assess the death penalty upon both the man and the woman.

WILL LEAD TROOPS IF TROUBLE COMES

General Bell.

In the event of an outbreak of hostilities with Mexico, General Bell the commander of Fort Bliss, Texas, is expected to move across the border, along the tracks of the Mexican Central railway and cut the line south of Villa Ahumada. This would prevent the de facto forces under General Francisco Serrano and General Jacinto Trevino from attacking the American troops at El Ville and Colonia Dublan.

MAY BE BATTLES IN NORTH CHIHUAHUA

El Paso, Texas, June 24.—Apprehensions that battles may be in progress tonight between American and Mexican troops in at least two places in Northern Chihuahua gripped the border tonight.

American columns were moving in the directions of San Antonio and Ojo Caliente, while General Trevino, commanding the Carranza army of the north, has ordered troops at adjacent points to attack them if they do not retreat immediately.

While information concerning these movements reached here today from Chihuahua City, additional advices indicated that General Trevino's scouts reported the approach of the Americans yesterday and that his orders were issued immediately. With a lapse of twenty-four hours it is assumed here that it is probable that the opposing forces may have met.

News from Juarez has caused well informed Americans here to give up the belief that Juarez in event of a break would be evacuated without a fight. That General Gonzales and his staff are still in Juarez and the town garrison is being maintained, reports of Mexican troop movements in the outlying districts and apparently increased precautions on the American side are cited as confirmatory of the theory.

Continued rumors of the presence of Villa in this region have reached United States authorities, but have not been generally credited.

Reports of heavy concentration of Carrancista troops in all of the northern Mexican states have been received at the border points while recruiting is said to be progressing rapidly. The same reports indicate that a number of former outlaw leaders and their commands are joining General Trevino's army of the north as a result of a Mexican war department offer of complete amnesty to persons who have opposed the government provided they join in combatting a possible American invasion.

No perceptible exodus of Mexicans from El Paso followed the publication today of Consul Garcia's advice to his nationals to return to Mexico, inasmuch as Americans continue to leave Mexican territory. On the other hand, during the day a large number of Mexicans crossed into the United States, asserting that they would feel safer here in the event of hostilities.

Local custom officials today were co-operating with the military authorities in holding up heavy freight shipments into Mexico and keeping American rolling stock on this side of the frontier.

Guatemala Now On Friendly Terms With Mexico Again

Mexico City, June 24.—Foreign Minister Aguilar stated today that friendly relations with Guatemala had been resumed. President Cabrera of Guatemala having approved Dr. Stickel, the diplomatic agent of the Guatemalan government here while Salivador Martinez Alomia had been named Mexican representative to Guatemala.

President Cabrera said the Mexican foreign minister had telegraphed Dr. Stickel requesting him to assure the Mexican government that Guatemala would not attempt to interfere in Mexican international affairs and that the friendly relations between the two nations interrupted for a time will be strengthened in the future.

There has been friction between Mexico and Guatemala because of the incursions of bandits in both countries across the international border and the alleged mistreatment of Mexicans in Guatemala.

CAPTAIN BOYD MET DEATH AFTER HEROIC CHARGE AT CARRIZAL SAYS SURVIVOR

FIRST DETAILED ACCOUNT OF ENGAGEMENT

Belief at Pershing's Headquarters Is That Captain Morey Now May Be Bringing Remnants of Expedition Back Through Great Obstacles — Adobe Houses Occupied by Separated Troops and Deadly Execution Wrought in Ranks of Carrancistas.

Field Headquarters, June 24.—Via. Wireless to Columbus, N. M.—Trapped and fighting against heavy odds, the troops of the Tenth cavalry engaged at Carrizal on Wednesday, charged twice directly into the ambush which the Mexicans had laid for them. With bullets in his arm and shoulder, Captain Charles T. Boyd, the commander, remained in the saddle, leading his negro troopers until they had captured concealed Mexican machine gun trenches, when he fell mortally wounded with a bullet in the eye.

This was the gist of the first detailed account of the engagement from American sources which was brought to General Pershing today by Corporal Green of Troop C, who was at Captain Boyd's side until he fell.

The Americans were flanked on both sides by the Carranzistas, who had partly surrounded the little command during a conference between Felix Gomez, the Mexican leader, and Captain Boyd. In front was a concealed machine gun trench from which a stream of leaden death unexpectedly was poured into the American ranks.

Corporal Green said that Captain Boyd, although wounded in the arm and shoulder by the first fire, immediately gave the order to charge and the detachment rode at top speed in a hail of bullets, directly at the trench, capturing it just as the American leader fell. The Mexicans retreated to cover in a nearby adobe shack. Lieutenant Adair assumed command and ordered a second charge, which drove through the shack, scattering the Mexican command. Green said he did not see Lieutenant Adair after this charge, and believed that he lost his life in it.

Meanwhile Captain Lewis S. Morey, commanding K troop, which also was surrounded during the parley, occupied another adobe house with his men, from which he engaged a second detachment of the Mexicans. While it is assumed here that Captain Morey was wounded in the fight, neither Corporal Green nor any of the survivors reaching here knew anything of the outcome of his part in the battle.

It is believed here, however, that he may have collected the scattered remnants of the American command and is bringing them slowly and through obstacles to General Pershing's lines. The survivors arriving here said that the Carrancistas circled far around Carrizal after the engagement and overtook and captured a number of soldiers who had been holding horses back beyond sight of the battleground when the fight began.

Piecing together the fragmentary reports which have reached field headquarters, all except 21 of the 84 men engaged in the fight have been accounted for. These reports indicate that thirteen were killed, 17 taken prisoner and 33 have come into camp here in the last two days, most of them coming afoot over a blistering desert, suffering the greatest hardships from lack of water.

Major Jenkins Hastening To Relief of Morey's Men

San Antonio, Tex., June 24.—The force of the Tenth United States cavalry under Captain Charles T. Boyd, succeeded in breaking through the lines of the Mexican force under General Felix Gomex at Carrizal, according to a message tonight from General Pershing to General Funston, but whether any of them finally were able to make their escape still is unknown.

Captain Boyd's men of troop C took the ditch in which the front line of Mexican troops were entrenched and charged through into the town of Carrizal. Troop K, under Captain Lewis [illegible] charged with troop C, but were [illegible]ked and forced to take refuge [illegible]obe house. They at least had [illegible] to defend themselves from [illegible] their ultimate fate is unknown, [illegible] is that of the remnants of [illegible]d's troop.

[illegible] came to General Pershing by [illegible] from Major John M. Jenkins, [illegible]nding a squadron of the relief [illegible] on sent out from Colonia Dublan. [illegible]or Jenkins also announced that [illegible] had found five men of C troop, [illegible] cavalry, and one of K troop at [illegible] Luis ranch.

They did not see the finish of the fight, but their stories, according to Major Jenkins' courier, confirmed the stories of the other stragglers that the attack had been opened by the Mexican troops without provocation.

PERSHING THINKS SURVIVORS NOT CAPTURED.

General Pershing said in his report that he did not believe that the thirty-seven men still unaccounted for had been captured. This was taken to mean here that he feared Captain Morey's men had not been able to hold out against the overwhelming odds against them even from the shelter of the house in which they had taken refuge and had been killed.

It still is hoped however that they still may be holding out and Major Jenkins' command is hastening toward Carrizal with all speed to their relief. Major Robert L. Howse with the second squadron of the relief expedition is a day behind Jenkins and is pressing hard to overtake and support him.

General Pership according to his report has sent provisions and supplies for the wounded to meet Major Jenkins and Howse on their return march toward Colonia Dublan.

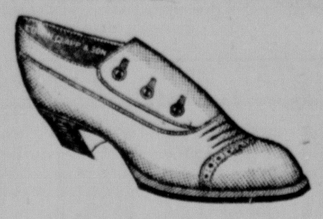

General Pershing reported that the troops under Captain Boyd and Captain Morey showed the greatest courage and exhibited the most sterling fighting qualities.

No mention of the Mexican cavalry charge reported by stragglers last night was made in the Pershing report but the fact that the Americans were able to advance and break the Mexican lines after the first attack is believed to give sure indication that the charge was checked.

SALOONS CAN STAY OPEN LATER FOR SUN TIME GOVERNS

Dallas, Texas, June 24.—When the hands on the Dallas saloonkeepers' clocks point to 9:30, they still have twenty-seven and a half minutes before they must close, according to an opinion handed down today by the Fifth court of civil appeals. The court holds that sun time governs, instead of standard time, so far as the saloon closing law is concerned. The decision works both ways, however, and, in the future, saloons cannot open until twenty-seven and a half minutes after the opening hour—according to the clock.

The decision also settled other contentions under the saloon regulating statutes which have not before been ruled upon. The lower court was sustained in holding that closing of the place of business under the law means closing also detached places such as cabarets or restaurants where drinks bought at the bar are served, even though there were no sales at the bar after 9:30 or any sales in the detached building. The decision of the court of appeals sent the case back to the lower court.

In its decision regarding the time, the court said: "We take judicial cognizance of the fact that standard or railroad time at Dallas, Texas, is actual or suntime along the 90th degree of longtitude west from Greenwich, that said city where it is alleged violation occurred is approximately in longtitude 96 degrees 52 minutes and 30 seconds west from Greenwich, and that there is a difference of four minutes for every degree of longtitude. Therefore, according to suntime and the evidence adduced, the appellant's cabaret or rathskellar was not open and business being conducted therein at 9:30 p. m., and the judgment of the district court must be reversed."

The statement of facts in the case had agreed that the bar proper at 1618 Main street was closed at 9:25 p. m. and that no drinks were taken from there after that hour. The alleged violation was based on guests being in the cabaret at 1614 1-2 Main street at 9:45 eating and drinking beer bought before 9:25 p. m. in May, 1915.

The court of appeals decision held that the suntime question not having been raised by pleading in the lower court did not prevent the appeal being taken.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS STILL LIE UNBURIED

El Paso, Tex., June 24.—Bodies of the American soldiers killed in the engagement at Carrizal still lie unburied on the battlefield, according to French and Mexican refugees who arrived in Juarez today. They asserted that the Mexican dead were buried immediately after the fight.

The arrivals said also that the Carranza losses were much heavier than the Mexican official reports, which placed the casualties at fourteen, indicated. Carranza leaders frankly admit they said, that the low estimate was made public for political purpose of impressing upon the masses of the Mexican people that the first clash between American and Mexican troops had resulted in a "great Mexican victory."

It was pointed out that twenty-three Mexicans were buried near the battlefield after the engagement, as many more bodies, including that of Felix Gomez, the slain general, were taken to Chihuahua City and two stock cars were loaded with wounded, several of whom have died since in the Chihuahua hospital.

Carranza guards donned the American uniforms taken from the seventeen negro cavalrymen who were taken as captives to Chihuahua City, according to stories brought here. Before giving up their clothing, however, the Americans fought with their fists and were only subdued when the Mexicans aimed their rifles at them.

Another story which is being spread through northern Mexico for political purposes as the refugees said, is that a number of negro soldiers of General Pershing's command "because of the continued abuse to which they were subjected" have been deserting to the Carranza forces. These stories are believed to have had their origin in the fact that two ngroes were captured about a week ago in Chihuahua City.

Military Hospitals Are Organized

Washington, June 24.—Formation of military base hospital units from the staffs of many of the country's larger civil hospitals for service in event the United States goes to war was announced today by the American Red Cross. Thirteen units already have been organized and more are being formed as rapidly as possible, the announcement says.

Thousands of Horses and Mules to Be Bought for Army

Fort Worth, June 24.—Colonel Rodgers of the quartermaster's department of the United States army, will on Monday let contracts for the purchase by the government of 75,000 horses and 25,000 mules. Colonel Rodgers will receive bids at Dallas and dealers here will bid on the contract.

Declaration of War Would Mean Issuance of Bonds

Washington, June 24.—On high authority it was said today that serious consideration has not been given to the possibility of issuing bonds to meet the extraordinary conditions of the Mexican situation. Unless war actually is declared such a step will not be deemed necessary. It was pointed out that there is about $150,000,000 in the treasury general fund and that within the next week the income tax will be due, which probably will add at least $75,000,000 to that amount and give the treasury enough to carry on the government, even with unusual outlays for military expense, for several weeks to come.

If war were declared, officials said, it would probably be only a matter of a few hours to obtain authorization from congress of a bond issue. Authorization for the issue of more than $200,000,000 in Panama canal bonds to replenish the treasury for amounts taken from general revenues to pay the canal's construction cost. Such an issue in addition to the general fund would give the government altogether more than $400,000,000, enough to carry on a war with Mexico for several months.

Mexicans Who Wish to Leave U. S. Will Be Aided

Washington, June 24.—Mexican embassy officials said tonight that necessary aid will be given Mexicans who desire to leave the United States, but that no warning directing them to return home will be issued unless war is declared. Many requests for advice on the subject received by Mexican officials at El Paso were forwarded to the foreign office by Ambassador Designate Arredondo and he was advised to assure Mexicans that they need not quit the United States at this time unless they so desired.

Mr. Arredondo expressed confidence tonight that the American troopers taken prisoner after the Carrizal fight would be released promptly and turned over to the United States unless there are other clashes.

Laredo Garrison Leaves for South

Laredo, June 24.—All military equipment, including cavalry horses, were loaded into box cars in Nuevo Laredo tonight, and there was every indication the garrison would leave for the south during the night. The streets of the Mexican town were practically deserted at 8 o'clock, when the international bridge was closed.

He arrived from Montgomery tonight and joined the Arkadelphia company of the Arkansas National Guard, of which he is a member.

Immelmann Killed In Fierce Combat With British Flyer

Berlin, June 24, via London 10:28 a. m.—Details of the last fight of First Lieut. Immermann, the famous German aviator, contained in letters from the front published here, show that he was killed in a combat with a British flyer which was one of a group of three Immelman engaged despite the opposing odds.

The fight occurred late in the evening. 9 Fokker was seen to swoop down suddenly from an immense height upon the group, in Immelmann's customary fashion. The Fokker fired a rocket signal, showing its nationality to the German artillery which then ceased spraying the air around the British airmen with shrapnel.

A British biplane which was selected for attack swerved to escape the Fokker's swoop. The violent rattle of machine guns indicated to the observers below that all the machines had engaged vigorously the Fokker which continued to follow its selected victim. The second British biplane followed the combat from the rear.

Suddenly just as the observers below were about to cheer the Fokker's supposed victory the Fokker was seen to swerve and fall. The aeroplane then plunged 2000 meters to the ground, burying the aviator beneath the motor. Identification marks on the clothing disclosed it was Immelmann who had met his fate.

Deck Space On Steamer Filled With Refugee Cots

Vera Cruz, June 24.—When the Ward line steamship Monterey leaves this port tomorrow afternoon every bit of deck space will be occupied by the cots of refugees bound for the United States. The regulations limiting the number of passengers have been waived by the United States government and Captain Smith of the Monterey will limit his passenger list by available space only.

All passengers other than Americans holding tickets must take other boats as only citizens of the United States will be carried on this trip. Many tickets were cancelled today for this reason.

Refugees are still coming into Vera Cruz and many boat loads of them were taken to the United States by the battleship Nebraska today.

There has been no disorder here. A message received tonight by wireless from Washington ordered that six bags of mail now on board the Monterey be not landed here.

Odessan Population in Great Danger of Prompt Eviction

Amsterdam, Netherlands, June 24—Correspondence of the Associated Press.—A part of the population of Odessa, on the Black Sea, who are of Dutch descent, are said to be in great danger of eviction by the Russian government unless they can prove their non-German origin. A population of 80,000 is involved and they have just applied for help to Dutch authorities in cnfirming the facts of the case. Their history is a romantic one, dating back two centuries.

A considerable number of members of the Anabaptist or Mennonite sect left their homes in the Northern Dutch province of Friesland in the seventeenth century for Germany in order to escap the persecution to which they were then subjected. Establishing themselves in West Prussia, they gradually spread along the entire lower Vistula river even into Poland, being apparently everywhere welcomed for the ability in draining work which they had acquired in their own water-ridden country.

Frederick II. (1740-86) wanted to force them into military service for his many wars, which was against the principles of the Anabaptists. A number of them, therefore accepted the invitation of Catherine II. of Russia to settle in her newly-acquired territory to the north of the Black Sea, and established themselves in the environs of Odessa and in the town itself. Here apparently they prospered and multiplied, while remaining easily distinguishable from the rest of the population, until once again war has put them in a tight corner. It is, however, hoped that if the members of this romantic little colony can prove their Dutch and therefore neutral origin, the Russian authorities will agree to leave them undisturbed.

New Lord Kitchener Homeward Bound From Africa

London, June 24.—The new Lord Kitchener, elder brother and heir of the late secretary of war, who was Col. H. E. C. Kitchener, is reported on his way home from Southwest Africa, where he has been serving in the campaign against the Germans.

Although 69 years old, the new earl, who was born Oct. 5, 1846, placed himself at the disposal of the government at the outbreak of the war and began active duty at once. He served in Burma in 1891, being mentioned in dispatches, and in the Manipur expedition in the same year, again being mentioned in the dispatches.

He married in 1877 the only daughter of the late Lieut. Col. Franklin Lushington. A son, Commander H. E. F. C. Kitchener, R. N., served in China in 1900 and is serving in the present war. There is also a daughter.

Anniversary of Custer's Massacre

Billings, Mont., June 24.—Custer's massacre on the battleield o Little Big Horn near here is to be recalled tomorrow by the fortieth anniversary of the historical event, according to completed arrangements of committees in charge of the celebration. General E. S. Godfrey, survivor of Custer's famous Seventh cavalry, is to give the memorial address and read a brief message to the people of the northwest from Mrs. George A. Custer of New York who is unable to be present at the celebration.

The historic battlefield has been arranged as near like it was on the memorable Sunday, June 25, of forty years ago. An Indian village of about 150 tepees has been pitched and between 2000 and 30000 Indians are ready to take part in the celebration.

It is hoped by the committees of Billings and Hardin, Mont., and Sheridan, Wyo., who are in charge of the arrangements, that the memorial of the massacre will dispel many of the misunderstandings relative to the famous battle that have existed for many years. It has been pointed out that Custer really wore his hair cut short in his campaign against the Sioux, whereas invariably he is pictured by artists and described by writers as wearing long, yellow locks. General Custer also is almost universally depicted as wearing a sabre. There were no sabres with the Seventh cavalry on the expedition.

In the spring of 1876 the Sioux became restless and took up the war path. Their depredations led to sending an expedition, commanded by General Perry against them. He left Fort Abraham Lincoln, Dakota, May 17, 1876, with a command consisting of the Seventh cavalry, companies from the Sixth and Seventeenth regiments of infantry, and a long wagon train. The command marched overland the entire distance, the infantry and wagon train being left behind to form a supply camp at the mouth of the Powder river. The cavalry with pack mules, continued.

At the mouth of the Rosebud on the Yellowstone, Terry's column met General Gibbon, who had come from the west with six companies of the Seventh and four troops of the Second cavalry. From here, on June 22, Custer, with 600 men, was sent forward to the Little Big Horn to attack, should he deem advisable, a camp of Sioux. Custer covered the distance of 100 miles in three days, and learning that the Indians were ahead, prepared to attack. He divided his command, giving Reno three companies, Benteen three and retaining five himself. He detailed Captain McDougall, with one company, to act as rear guard.

Reno and Benteen went forward. The former almost immediately engaged the Indians in overwhelming numbers and retreated to the crest of Reno's hill, four miles from the battlefield. Custer instead of supporting Reno as he had originally planned, passed around him on the east side of the stream and was furiously attacked by a large body of Sioux. He was surrounded on a ridge and his whole command was wiped out in less than two hours after the fight started. Reno and Benteen fought the Indians the rest of the day and until Terry and Gibbon arrived during the afternoon of the third day.

Appropriation Mill Passes.

Washington, June 24.—The $217,000,000 sundry civil appropriation bill passed the house late today and went to the senate. During today's discussion the house rejected a proposal for a $10,000,000 government war munitions plant, but added $50,000 to the appropriation for printing farmers' bulletins.

Troops Crossing Border Construed As Hostile Act

Brownsville, June 24.—Circulars were distributed in Matamoros, opposite here today, declaring that the latest crossing into Mexico of American troops near here, has been construed a declaration of war against Mexico on the part of the United States. The circulars are signed by Gen. E. P. Nafarrate, who signs himself as commander of Mexican forces in the state of Tamaulipas. The circulars, dated June 17, declare a state of war exists between the two countries.

Apparently the circular was issued at the time of the crossing of Americans just west of Brownsville last Saturday in pursuit of bandits who attacked a detachment of the Twenty-sixth infantry and raided two ranches near San Benito. These troops were withdrawn Sunday last upon promise of Mexican authorities to capture and punish the bandits. At least two bandits were killed and several wounded by the punitive expedition. There were no American casualties.

The circulars declare that all Americans found in Mexico with arms will be executed, but Americans pursuing peaceful occupations south of the Rio Grande, who are not armed, will be protected.

E. C. Forto, Spanish vice consul at Brownsville, who is acting as Mexican consul here, tonight said he doubted the authenticity of the circular. He believed it is a forgery, he said. Forto has been acting for the Mexican consul here since the latter crossed into Mexico a week ago.

Women Parade in Scotland.

Edinburgh, Scotland, via London, June 24.—The culmination of a woman's camapign for prohibition while hostilities are in progress was marked today by a procession of several thousand women with banners inscribed "Follow the king," meaning the example of total abstinence set by King George.

The petition signed as a result of the campaign bore the names of 40,000 women in the Edinburgh district appealing to the government to enforce prohibition during the war.

President May Draft Guardsmen Into Federal Service

Washington, June 24.—A favorable report on the house resolution authorizing the president to draft immediately into the federal service national guardsmen willing to take the prescribed oath was ordered today by the senate military committee after it had stricken out a section appropriating $1,0000,000 for the relief of dependents on guardsmen and another limiting the term of service to three years.

A substitute adopted for the relief provision would direct that guardsmen with dependents having no means of support be discharged.

Action on the resolution by the senate was postponed until Monday because a memorial session in tribute to the late Senator Bradley of Kentucky was in progress.

The court holds that sun time governs, instead of standard time, so far as the saloon closing law is concerned. The decision works both ways, however, and, in the future, saloons cannot open until twenty-seven and a half minutes after the opening hour—according to the clock.

The decision also settled other contentions under the saloon regulating statutes which have not before been ruled upon. The lower court was sustained in holding that closing of the place of business under the law means closing also detached places such as cabarets or restaurants where drinks bought at the bar are served, even though there were no sales at the bar after 9:30 or any sales in the detached building. The decision of the court of appeals sent the case back to the lower court.

In its decision regarding the time, the court said: "We take judicial cognizance of the fact that standard or railroad time at Dallas, Texas, is actual or suntime along the 90th degree of longtitude west from Greenwich, that said city where it is alleged violation occurred is approximately in longitude 96 degrees 52 minutes and 30 seconds west from Greenwich, and that there is a difference of four minutes for every degree of longtitude. Therefore, according to suntime and the evidence adduced, the appellant's cabaret or rathskellar was not open and business being conducted therein at 9:30 p. m., and the judgment of the district court must be reversed."

The statement of facts in the case had agreed that the bar proper at 1618 Main street was closed at 9:25 p. m. and that no drinks were taken from there after that hour. The alleged violation was based on guests being in the cabaret at 1614 1-2 Main street at 9:45 eating and drinking beer bought before 9:25 p. m. in May, 1915.

The court of appeals decision held that the suntime question not having been raised by pleading in the lower court did not prevent the appeal being taken.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS STILL LIE UNBURIED

El Paso, Tex., June 24.—Bodies of the American soldiers killed in the engagement at Carrizal still lie unburied on the battlefield, according to French and Mexican refugees who arrived in Juarez today. They asserted that the Mexican dead were buried immediately after the fight.

The arrivals said also that the Carranza losses were much heavier than the Mexican official reports, which placed the casualties at fourteen, indicated. Carranza leaders frankly admit they said, that the low estimate was made public for political purpose of impressing upon the masses of the Mexican people that the first clash between American and Mexican troops had resulted in a "great Mexican victory."

It was pointed out that twenty-three Mexicans were buried near the battlefield after the engagement, as many more bodies, including that of Felix Gomez, the slain general, were taken to Chihuahua City and two stock cars were loaded with wounded, several of whom have died since in the Chihuahua hospital.

Carranza guards donned the American uniforms taken from the seventeen negro cavalrymen who were taken as captives to Chihuahua City, according to stories brought here. Before giving up their clothing, however, the Americans fought with their fists and were only subdued when the Mexicans aimed their rifles at them.

Another story which is being spread through northern Mexico for political purposes as the refugees said, is that a number of negro soldiers of General Pershing's command "because of the continued abuse to which they were subjected" have been deserting to the Carranza forces. These stories are believed to have had their origin in the fact that two ngroes were captured about a week ago in Chihuahua City.

Military Hospitals Are Organized

Washington, June 24.—Formation of military base hospital units from the staffs of many of the country's larger civil hospitals for service in event the United States goes to war was announced today by the American Red Cross. Thirteen units already have been organized and more are being formed as rapidly as possible, the announcement says.

Thousands of Horses and Mules to Be Bought for Army

Fort Worth, June 24.—Colonel Rodgers of the quartermaster's department of the United States army, will on Monday let contracts for the purchase by the government of 75,000 horses and 25,000 mules. Colonel Rodgers will receive bids at Dallas and dealers here will bid on the contract.

Declaration of War Would Mean Issuance of Bonds

Washington, June 24.—On high authority it was said today that serious consideration has not been given to the possibility of issuing bonds to meet the extraordinary conditions of the Mexican situation. Unless war actually is declared such a step will not be deemed necessary. It was pointed out that there is about $150,000,000 in the treasury general fund and that within the next week the income tax will be due, which probably will add at least $75,000,000 to that amount and give the treasury enough to carry on the government, even with unusual outlays for military expense, for several weeks to come.

If war were declared, officials said, it would probably be only a matter of a few hours to obtain authorization from congress of a bond issue. Authorization for the issue of more than $200,000,000 in Panama canal bonds to replenish the treasury for amounts taken from general revenues to pay the canal's construction cost. Such an issue in addition to the general fund would give the government altogether more than $400,000,000, enough to carry on a war with Mexico for several months.

Mexicans Who Wish to Leave U. S. Will Be Aided

Washington, June 24.—Mexican embassy officials said tonight that necessary aid will be given Mexicans who desire to leave the United States, but that no warning directing them to return home will be issued unless war is declared. Many requests for advice on the subject received by Mexican officials at El Paso were forwarded to the foreign office by Ambassador Designate Arredondo and he was advised to assure Mexicans that they need not quit the United States at this time unless they so desired.

Mr. Arredondo expressed confidence tonight that the American troopers taken prisoner after the Carrizal fight would be released promptly and turned over to the United States unless there are other clashes.

Laredo Garrison Leaves for South

Laredo, June 24.—All military equipment, including cavalry horses, were loaded into box cars in Nuevo Laredo tonight, and there was every indication the garrison would leave for the south during the night. Immelmann Killed In Fierce Combat With British Flyer

Berlin, June 24, via London 10:28 a. m.—Details of the last fight of First Lieut. Immermann, the famous German aviator, contained in letters from the front published here, show that he was killed in a combat with a British flyer which was one of a group of three Immelman engaged despite the opposing odds.

The fight occurred late in the evening. 9 Fokker was seen to swoop down suddenly from an immense height upon the group, in Immelmann's customary fashion. The Fokker fired a rocket signal, showing its nationality to the German artillery which then ceased spraying the air around the British airmen with shrapnel.

A British biplane which was selected for attack swerved to escape the Fokker's swoop. The violent rattle of machine guns indicated to the observers below that all the machines had engaged vigorously the Fokker which continued to follow its selected victim. The second British biplane followed the combat from the rear.

Suddenly just as the observers below were about to cheer the Fokker's supposed victory the Fokker was seen to swerve and fall. The aeroplane then plunged 2000 meters to the ground, burying the aviator beneath the motor. Identification marks on the clothing disclosed it was Immelmann who had met his fate.

Deck Space On Steamer Filled With Refugee Cots

Vera Cruz, June 24.—When the Ward line steamship Monterey leaves this port tomorrow afternoon every bit of deck space will be occupied by the cots of refugees bound for the United States. The regulations limiting the number of passengers have been waived by the United States government and Captain Smith of the Monterey will limit his passenger list by available space only.

All passengers other than Americans holding tickets must take other boats as only citizens of the United States will be carried on this trip. Many tickets were cancelled today for this reason.

Refugees are still coming into Vera Cruz and many boat loads of them were taken to the United States by the battleship Nebraska today.

There has been no disorder here. A message received tonight by wireless from Washington ordered that six bags of mail now on board the Monterey be not landed here.

Odessan Population in Great Danger of Prompt Eviction

Amsterdam, Netherlands, June 24—Correspondence of the Associated Press.—A part of the population of Odessa, on the Black Sea, who are of Dutch descent, are said to be in great danger of eviction by the Russian government unless they can prove their non-German origin. A population of 80,000 is involved and they have just applied for help to Dutch authorities in enfirming the facts of the case. Their history is a romantic one, dating back two centuries.

A considerable number of members of the Anabaptist or Mennonite sect left their homes in the Northern Dutch province of Friesland in the seventeenth century for Germany in order to escap the persecution to which they were then subjected. Establishing themselves in West Prussia, they gradually spread along the entire lower Vistula river even into Poland, being apparently everywhere welcomed for the ability in draining work which they had acquired in their own water-ridden country.

Frederick II. (1740-86) wanted to force them into military service for his many wars, which was against the principles of the Anabaptists. A number of them, therefore accepted the invitation of Catherine II. of Russia to settle in her newly-acquired territory to the north of the Black Sea, and established themselves in the environs of Odessa and in the town itself. Here apparently they prospered and multiplied, while remaining easily distinguishable from the rest of the population, until once again war has put them in a tight corner. It is, however, hoped that if the members of this romantic little colony can prove their Dutch and therefore neutral origin, the Russian authorities will agree to leave them undisturbed.

New Lord Kitchener Homeward Bound From Africa

London, June 24.—The new Lord Kitchener, elder brother and heir of the late secretary of war, who was Col. H. E. C. Kitchener, is reported on his way home from Southwest Africa, where he has been serving in the campaign against the Germans.

Although 69 years old, the new earl, who was born Oct. 5, 1846, placed himself at the disposal of the government at the outbreak of the war and began active duty at once. He served in Burma in 1891, being mentioned in dispatches, and in the Manipur expedition in the same year, again being mentioned in the dispatches.

He married in 1877 the only daughter of the late Lieut. Col. Franklin Lushington. A son, Commander H. E. F. C. Kitchener, R. N., served in China in 1900 and is serving in the present war. There is also a daughter.

Anniversary of Custer's Massacre

Billings, Mont., June 24.—Custer's massacre on the battleleld o Little Big Horn near here is to be recalled tomorrow by the fortieth anniversary of the historical event, according to completed arrangements of committees in charge of the celebration. General E. S. Godfrey, survivor of Custer's famous Seventh cavalry, is to give the memorial address and read a brief message to the people of the northwest from Mrs. George A. Custer of New York who is unable to be present at the celebration.

The historic battlefield has been arranged as near like it was on the memorable Sunday, June 25, of forty years ago. An Indian village of about 150 tepees has been pitched and between 2000 and 30000 Indians are ready to take part in the celebration.

It is hoped by the committees of Billings and Hardin, Mont., and Sheridan, Wyo., who are in charge of the arrangements, that the memorial of the massacre will dispel many of the misunderstandings relative to the famous battle that have existed for many years. It has been pointed out that Custer really wore his hair cut short in his campaign against the Sioux, whereas invariably he is pictured by artists and described by writers as wearing long, yellow locks. General Custer also is almost universally depicted as wearing a sabre. There were no sabres with the Seventh cavalry on the expedition.

In the spring of 1876 the Sioux became restless and took up the war path. Their depredations led to sending an expedition, commanded by General Terry against them. He left Fort Abraham Lincoln, Dakota, May 17, 1876, with a command consisting of the Seventh cavalry, companies from the Sixth and Seventeenth regiments of infantry, and a long wagon train. The command marched overland the entire distance, the infantry and wagon train being left behind to form a supply camp at the mouth of the Powder river. The cavalry with pack mules, continued.

At the mouth of the Rosebud on the Yellowstone, Terry's column met General Gibbon, who had come from the west with six companies of the Seventh and four troops of the Second cavalry. From here, on June 22, Custer, with 600 men, was sent forward to the Little Big Horn to attack, should he deem advisable, a camp of Sioux. Custer covered the distance of 100 miles in three days, and learning that the Indians were ahead, prepared to attack. He divided his command, giving Reno three companies, Benteen three and retaining five himself. He detailed Captain McDougall, with one company, to act as rear guard.

Reno and Benteen went forward. The former almost immediately engaged the Indians in overwhelming numbers and retreated to the crest of Reno's hill, four miles from the battlefield. Custer instead of supporting Reno as he had originally planned, passed around him on the east side of the stream and was furiously attacked by a large body of Sioux. He was surrounded on a ridge and his whole command was wiped out in less than two hours after the fight started. Reno and Benteen fought the Indians the rest of the day and until Terry and Gibbon arrived during the afternoon of the third day.

Appropriation Mill Passes.

Washington, June 24.—The $217,000,000 sundry civil appropriation bill passed the house late today and went to the senate. During today's discussion the house rejected a proposal for a $10,000,000 government war munitions plant, but added $50,000 to the appropriation for printing farmers' bulletins.

Troops Crossing Border Construed As Hostile Act

Brownsville, June 24.—Circulars were distributed in Matamoros, opposite here today, declaring that the latest crossing into Mexico of American troops near here, has been construed a declaration of war against Mexico on the part of the United States. The circulars are signed by Gen. E. P. Nafarrate, who signs himself as commander of Mexican forces in the state of Tamaulipas. The circulars, dated June 17, declare a state of war exists between the two countries.

Apparently the circular was issued at the time of the crossing of Americans just west of Brownsville last Saturday in pursuit of bandits who attacked a detachment of the Twenty-sixth infantry and raided two ranches near San Benito. These troops were withdrawn Sunday last upon promise of Mexican authorities to capture and punish the bandits. At least two bandits were killed and several wounded by the punitive expedition. There were no American casualties.

The circulars declare that all Americans found in Mexico with arms will be executed, but Americans pursuing peaceful occupations south of the Rio Grande, who are not armed, will be protected.

E. C. Forto, Spanish vice consul at Brownsville, who is acting as Mexican consul here, tonight said he doubted the authenticity of the circular. He believed it is a forgery, he said. Forto has been acting for the Mexican consul here since the latter crossed into Mexico a week ago.

President May Draft Guardsmen Into Federal Service

Washington, June 24.—A favorable report on the house resolution authorizing the president to draft immediately into the federal service national guardsmen willing to take the prescribed oath was ordered today by the senate military committee after it had stricken out a section appropriating $1,0000,000 for the relief of dependents on guardsmen and another limiting the term of service to three years.

A substitute adopted for the relief provision would direct that guardsmen with dependents having no means of support be discharged.

Action on the resolution by the senate was postponed until Monday because a memorial session in tribute to the late Senator Bradley of Kentucky was in progress.

First Inspection of the Rotary Flower Gardens Ends With Much Enthuasism

The first inspection and grading of the gardens entered in the Rotary flower garden contest was completed yesterday at noon. The local judging committee pronounced the contest to have been a great success.

F. W. Hensel Jr. of the horticultural department of the Agricultural and Mechanical college of Texas, an authority on horticulture, and a man of wide experience in this work, pronounced the days that he had spent in Waco judging the entries in the contest to have been among the most profitable and pleasant ever spent. The work of grading and inspecting that he did all last week, he said, were a genuine pleasure.

As to the quality of some of the yards entered in this contest, he asserted to be so near perfection and so flawless that defects could be visible only to the highly trained eye of an expert. People of culture, refinement and of esthetic tastes are supposed to take the lead in matters of city beautification, a thing which they certainly did in the Rotary flower garden contest. Although some failed to enter the competition when they should have done so, there were nevertheless many who registered in the contest. This small quantity who did not enter are expected to do so in the even larger competition that will be had next year.

One thing that is particularly worthy of praise and commendation is the number of contestants who entered, and despite the fact that they often had no money with which to buy garden tools or even seed attained beautiful results in their small homes. This phase especially interested Mr. Hensel, as it required much work and trouble on the part of the cultivators and showed a real desire for the beautiful, and the improvement of their surroundings.

The three points on which the yards and gardens are graded are the plan, care and harmony of the arrangements. These three points are graded on a basis of 100 as perfect, an entirely perfect score for this judgment being 300.

ALL WHO PROMISED ENTERED THE CONTEST.

A striking thing about the contest was the fact that there were only a few who agreed to enter the contest who failed to make strong efforts in the fulfillment of their promise. The visiting committee knocked on over 700 doors and interviewed as many housewives. In many instances there were questions asked of Mr. Hensel, some pertaining to remedies for diseased flowers, poor growth, and plans for the arrangement and distribution of the plants. In all cases the queries were answered, and frequently, upon request, the whole yard would be practically mapped out in the ideal way for the residents. Many questions were asked in efforts to secure as perfect harmony as was possible under the circumstances.

That interest was widespread is a fact little to be doubted, as numerous calls came to Mrs. N. B. Kent at the Welfare league from anxious gardeners, who having read of the visiting party of judges, would ask that they be not overlooked in the inspection of the yards as they expected to capture one of the prizes.

The local committee are wholly delighted with the visit of Mr. Hensel and his assistant, Homer L. Fry, who is in charge of this work in the college extension department. It is hoped and expected by the committee that they will be able to return on September 11 to make the final inspection, with which the present grade will be averaged for the final score which is to decide the winners of the 155 prizes offered by the Rotary club.

Mr. Hensel expressed himself as pleased with the work that is being done here in the effort to make a city beautiful, and stated that the authorities of A. & M. were in sympathy with all such movements and would always be willing and forward in helping with advice, literature or any assistance that it was possible for them to give. An officer of the Welfare league stated yesterday afternoon that it appeared as though the citizenship of Waco had resolved to make a city that would be a standard by which the other cities of the state might look as in a perfect mirror to judge themselves, as a city of beauty.

Mr. Hensel is very much interested in the work that Waco is doing. He said:

MR. HENSEL'S STATEMENT.

"The judge's troubles really begin when he tries to grade places such as we visited today. Beautiful yards were the rule, rather than the exception, and the advantage possessed by one place over another was usually so slight that even the smallest details had to be given consideration. I was sorry to note that some of the most attractive homes were not entered in the contest; the more general an affair of this kind, the greater the good resulting. As you know, there is a prize offered for clubs of adjoining houses, yet I noticed an entire block of houses in the Sanger avenue district, which would have taken first in a competition anywhere, had not even been entered.

"Roughly speaking, I believe we had about 700 entries, which speaks very well for the interest people are taking. One of the most striking examples of this interest came to my attention yesterday morning.

ONE WOMAN CUTS LAWN WITH SHEARS.

"While visiting in one of the poorer sections of the city, we inspected one very neat little place where the lady of the house was cutting her lawn, and quite an extensive one, considering—with a pair of ordinary scissors. This lady seemed to think nothing of the matter, simply stating that she loved her yard flowers, and I believed her. I hope she wins a prize—preferably a lawn mower or a set of garden tools. Instances of this kind could be multiplied, but the above will serve to show that the proper spirit is actuating these people.

"I hope to again have the pleasure of acting as judge in one of your garden contests, but trust by that time the number of entries will have grown tenfold.

IS GRATEFUL FOR AID OF WACOANS.

"My work here has been extremely pleasant and made still more so through the efforts of your committee. Mrs. Kent has been with me practically continuously, while R. J. Potts and M. Falkner have been neglecting their private affairs in order to be of help. Floyd Crow has placed a car at my disposal, and The News and Times-Herald have been of great assistance in giving this movement the proper publicity. The A. & M. college will be glad to receive inquiries on gardening or any other phase of agricultural endeavor."

Professor Hensel and Mr. Fry will leave today for College Station.

RUSSIAN STEAMER SUNK IN BLACK SEA

Petrograd, via London, June 24.—Four hundred persons lost their lives, according to latest reports, when the Russian passenger steamer Mercury was sunk in the Black sea by a mine. The total number of persons aboard the steamship was approximately 550.

The disaster occurred about 10 o'clock in the morning off the village of Grigorlovka. The passengers felt a tremendous shock in the forward part of the vessel, which went down bow foremost in five minutes.

Survivors tell harrowing stories of the scenes that ensued. All available steamers and tugs hastened from Odessa and rescued the survivors clinging to lifebelts and wreckage. Five were taken from the masthead, a few feet above the water. Many women still clasped babies in their arms. The passenger steamer Kniazpotemkin had just preceded the Mercury and although aware of the disaster, the passengers forcibly prevented her captain from putting back to give aid.

St. Louis Ad Club Wants Convention in 1917

St. Louis, Mo., June 24.—At noon today 150 members of the Advertising Club of St. Louis accompanied by Mayor Kiel and a large number of merchants, left here on a special train over the Pennsylvania railroad to attend the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World and to make a fight to secure the 1917 convention for this city.

The special train was made up of ten passenger cars and two advertising cars loaded with souvenirs which will be distributed in cities along the route and in Philadelphia. A band and a number of well known entertainers also went along and concerts will be given in every place at which the train stops.

St. Louis is sending the largest delegation to the convention and is confident of securing next year's big meeting.

Fire Insurance Commission Makes Important Ruling

Austin, June 24.—The state fire insurance commission today held in a ruling to all insurance companies doing business in Texas that risks and liabilities incidental to disturbed war conditions brought about by the Mexican situation may be assumed by the companies, provided the charge for the assumption of this liability is made at the rate of three per cent per annum in cities and towns where the key rate is forty or less, and four per cent where the key rate is forty-one or over. Attention is called to one of the conditions of the Texas standard fire policy, which reads:

"This company shall not be liable for loss caused directly or indirectly by invasion, insurrection, riot, civil war or commotion or usurped power, or by order of any civil authority."

Indian Princess in Washington Lobbies for Self Government

By Robert F. Wilson.

Washington, June 24.—A real Indian princess has come to Washington to be the Joan of Arc of her people. With the Lolomi movement, of which she si the founder, she proposes to lead 300,000 Indians out of the bondage of bureaucracy and into the selfrespect of complete self government.

She is Wynnogene, seven-eighths Oneida in blood, and a direct descendant of that famous chieftain, Daniel Beard, who had so much to do with bringing about peace between the government and the Indians of the northwest in the early days. Her American name is Laura Cornelius Kellogg, and she is the wife of O. J. Kellogg, former Princeton football player and cousin of Frank B. Kellogg, the Minnesota trust buster.

Mrs. Kellogg's Lolomi plan is being championed in the senate by Senator LaFollette and by Representative Konop of Wisconsin in the house. A bill has been introduced to authorize the experiment of incorporating the Night Hawk band of Cherokee Indians in Oklahoma as the first Lolomi community.

At present the 300,000 reservation Indians are treated as incompetent wards of the nation, governed by the Indian bureau, which is custodian for Indian property worth nearly $900,000, and having no more voice in their government than an infant orphan has in the management of its inheritance by a guardian.

"Bureaucratic government is un-American and in the hands of Americans it has failed," says the Princess Wynnogene. "My people are rich—the property held for them in Washington is rightfully theirs—yet they are dying of the diseases of poverty—tuberculosis, and other infections and contagions that might be stamped out if the Indians could use their own money for sanitation and better living conditions.

"The conditions of many of the reservations are frightful. The government is charged with the duty of protecting us, and it holds our money for this purpose, but it does not protect us. The blood of Americans would boil if they understood the conditions under which the government forces us to live. I know of cases where only one doctor is supplied to serve 3,000 Indians scattered over 100 miles of territory and many of them sick with tuberculosis, trachoma, and other diseases. Why, 3,000 Americans living in a compact town with every sanitary advantage, would have several doctors.

"Senator Lane of Oregon recently told the Indian bureau that there will be no Indians left unless conditions are improved, and that is true. Americans believe that since they hear no complaints from the Indians that they must be happy. Americans do not remember that the Indian is stoical by nature; from scores of generations he has inherited the principle that he must not complain of abuse or even torture from his conquerors, and so the Indians today mutely suffer and die under bureaucratic government."

The Iolomi plan proposes an abrupt change in the government of the Indians. At present the government does not turn their property over to them on the theory that some are incompetent and they would soon lose their property to slick white men who prey on the reservations. The Lolomi plan recognizes this danger and proposes to incorporate the various reservations, turning all the Indian property over to the corporation, which will then be operated as companies, the Indians sharing pro rata in the dividends. It is provided in the scheme that no Indian can sell or otherwise dispose of his stock. Once the reservation is incorporated, it is proposed to establish model villages for health's sake, and operate the reservation as a commune.

"The Indian is a communist by heredity," says Mrs. Kellogg. "Before the white man came all the Indian tribes were communes, the work being divided up and each member of the tribe sharing in the general benfit. There is no reason now to believe that this plan will fail on the ground that it is a n experiment. It is simply giving back to the Indian the form of government to which he is accustomed by inheritance."

five men found at San Luis ranch after the Mexicans had opened fire with several machine guns, Captain Boyd dismounted his men and formed them in line of skirmishers.

Captain Boyd with C troop led the left of the line and Captain Morey with K troop the right. They advanced by rushes toward the irrigating ditch 250 yards distant which sheltered the main force of the Mexican troops and from which the machine gun was spraying their ranks with lead.

Making every shot of their own count they captured the ditch with one final wild rush, putting the Mexicans to flight and capturing several machine guns.

Captain Boyd was wounded twice, once in the arm and once in the shoulder. In the final rush on the entrenched Mexicans Captain Boyd fell dead, shot through the body. Without checking their advance, troop C, led by Lieut. Harry Adair, dashed on after the fleeing Mexicans into the town. That was the last seen of them by the men found at San Luis ranch. Apparently they found themselves in danger of capture from Mexicans approaching from the flank and rear, as Pershing's report gives no further details of the fate of Adair and his men.

CAPTAIN MOREY ALSO WOUNDED.

Captain Morey was shot through the shoulder while advancing with troop K on the irrigating ditch. His men, however, were outflanked by a greatly superior force of Mexicans and were forced to take shelter in an adobe house. When last seen by the stragglers, they were returning a spirited fire through windows and loopholes punched in the adobe walls to the Mexicans, which entirely surrounded their shelter, and were pouring a stream of bullets at every opening.

It is assumed by officers at headquarters here that Captain Morey, in spite of the wound through his shoulder, was able to lead his men to the adobe house.

Several of his men probably also were wounded and circled by a ring of fire, cut off from water and without food, it is feared that they could not hold out until reinforcements reached them even if they were able to stave off and hold in check the Mexican attacks.

It is believed at headquarters here that the six men found at San Luis ranch took part in at least a part of the fight at Carrizal. It is thought probable that they were cut off from the other Americans and were forced to flee to escape capture or certain death.

GUARDSMEN ALMOST READY TO START.

Plans were completed today for the disposition of the National Guardsmen of New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey.

General Funston received word from General Leonard Wood that the troops of those states would be ready to start for the border Wednesday. They will go direct to the stations assigned them which, however, have not been made public for reasons of military expediency.

General Funston was notified today that a large number of new aeroplanes had been ordered by the war department from five Eastern manufacturers for service on the border and that the first of these machines would reach the border probably within a week.

A flying base and aviation school will be established at Columbus, N. M., and another at Fort Sam Houston, and permission has been given to employ civilian aviators. There is now not a single aeroplane ready for service on the border. One machine is being tuned up at Columbus, but is not yet ready for heavy duty. The arrival of the new aeroplanes will, it is believed, make unnecessary the long scouting trips from General Pershing's base, the latest of which ended in the battle at Carrizal.

No additional instructions were given by General Funston tonight and all points along the border were reported quiet.

Texas Young Men Eager to Organize Military Squads

Austin, June 24.—Adjutant General Hutchings announced today that his department is being flooded with applications from young men throughout the state desiring to organize companies of militia for service in Mexico, while an equally large number are desirous of appointments as officers. In this connection General Hutchings stated that the state of Texas has already furnished its brigade of state militia and no other companies are to be organized unless a second call is made by the war department. Neither is there any need for additional officers. What is really needed he said, was enlisted men to fill the various companies in the service to war strength.

HEALTH IN Tablets

A very large part of the suffering of mankind is from congestion. If the functions of the liver are sluggish and the bowels inactive, the bile-ducts and intestines are congested and uncomfortable and fail to do their work properly.

MANALIN TABLETS start the liver going right, clean out the bowels, and nature heals up the soreness. They are as delightful as candy, never gripe or injure. In fact, Manalin is the ideal liver tonic and laxative.

When congestion has become chronic in the membranes, you have catarrh. Prepare the way with Manalin tablets; then use PERUNA TABLETS to repair the damage, dispel the catarrh, relieve the inflammation and build up the system.

Together, they mean health in such cases--Peruna is invigoration, you know. Thousands have proved the virtues of these remedies.

The first inspection and grading of the gardens entered in the Rotary flower garden contest was completed yesterday at noon. The local judging committee pronounced the contest to have been a great success.

F. W. Hensel Jr. of the horticultural department of the Agricultural and Mechanical college of Texas, an authority on horticulture, and a man of wide experience in this work, pronounced the days that he had spent in Waco judging the entries in the contest to have been among the most profitable and pleasant ever spent. The work of grading and inspecting that he did all last week, he said, were a genuine pleasure.

As to the quality of some of the yards entered in this contest, he asserted to be so near perfection and so flawless that defects could be visible only to the highly trained eye of an expert. People of culture, refinement and of esthetic tastes are supposed to take the lead in matters of city beautification, a thing which they certainly did in the Rotary flower garden contest. Although some failed to enter the competition when they should have done so, there were nevertheless many who registered in the contest. This small quantity who did not enter are expected to do so in the even larger competition that will be had next year.

One thing that is particularly worthy of praise and commendation is the number of contestants who entered, and despite the fact that they often had no money with which to buy garden tools or even seed attained beautiful results in their small homes. This phase especially interested Mr. Hensel, as it required much work and trouble on the part of the cultivators and showed a real desire for the beautiful, and the improvement of their surroundings.

The three points on which the yards and gardens are graded are the plan, care and harmony of the arrangements. These three points are graded on a basis of 100 as perfect, an entirely perfect score for this judgment being 300.

ALL WHO PROMISED ENTERED THE CONTEST.

A striking thing about the contest was the fact that there were only a few who agreed to enter the contest who failed to make strong efforts in the fulfillment of their promise. The visiting committee knocked on over 700 doors and interviewed as many housewives. In many instances there were questions asked of Mr. Hensel, some pertaining to remedies for diseased flowers, poor growth, and plans for the arrangement and distribution of the plants. In all cases the queries were answered, and frequently, upon request, the whole yard would be practically mapped out in the ideal way for the residents. Many questions were asked in efforts to secure as perfect harmony as was possible under the circumstances.

That interest was widespread is a fact little to be doubted, as numerous calls came to Mrs. N. B. Kent at the Welfare league from anxious gardeners, who having read of the visiting party of judges, would ask that they be not overlooked in the inspection of the yards as they expected to capture one of the prizes.

The local committee are wholly delighted with the visit of Mr. Hensel and his assistant, Homer L. Fry, who is in charge of this work in the college extension department. It is hoped and expected by the committee that they will be able to return on September 11 to make the final inspection, with which the present grade will be averaged for the final score which is to decide the winners of the 155 prizes offered by the Rotary club.

Mr. Hensel expressed himself as pleased with the work that is being done here in the effort to make a city beautiful, and stated that the authorities of A. & M. were in sympathy with all such movements and would always be willing and forward in helping with advice, literature or any assistance that it was possible for them to give. An officer of the Welfare league stated yesterday afternoon that it appeared as though the citizenship of Waco had resolved to make a city that would be a standard by which the other cities of the state might look as in a perfect mirror to judge themselves, as a city of beauty.

Mr. Hensel is very much interested in the work that Waco is doing. He said:

MR. HENSEL'S STATEMENT.

"The judge's troubles really begin when he tries to grade places such as we visited today. Beautiful yards were the rule, rather than the exception, and the advantage possessed by one place over another was usually so slight that even the smallest details had to be given consideration. I was sorry to note that some of the most attractive homes were not entered in the contest; the more general an affair of this kind, the greater the good resulting. As you know, there is a prize offered for clubs of adjoining houses, yet I noticed an entire block of houses in the Sanger avenue district, which would have taken first in a competition anywhere, had not even been entered.

"Roughly speaking, I believe we had about 700 entries, which speaks very well for the interest people are taking. One of the most striking examples of this interest came to my attention yesterday morning.

ONE WOMAN CUTS LAWN WITH SHEARS.

"While visiting in one of the poorer sections of the city, we inspected one very neat little place where the lady of the house was cutting her lawn, and quite an extensive one, considering—with a pair of ordinary scissors. This lady seemed to think nothing of the matter, simply stating that she loved her yard flowers, and I believed her. I hope she wins a prize—preferably a lawn mower or a set of garden tools. Instances of this kind could be multiplied, but the above will serve to show that the proper spirit is actuating these people.

"I hope to again have the pleasure of acting as judge in one of your garden contests, but trust by that time the number of entries will have grown tenfold.

IS GRATEFUL FOR AID OF WACOANS.

"My work here has been extremely pleasant and made still more so through the efforts of your committee. Mrs. Kent has been with me practically continuously, while R. J. Potts and M. Falkner have been neglecting their private affairs in order to be of help. Floyd Crow has placed a car at my disposal, and The News and Times-Herald have been of great assistance in giving this movement the proper publicity. The A. & M. college will be glad to receive inquiries on gardening or any other phase of agricultural endeavor."

Professor Hensel and Mr. Fry will leave today for College Station.

RUSSIAN STEAMER SUNK IN BLACK SEA

Petrograd, via London, June 24.—Four hundred persons lost their lives, according to latest reports, when the Russian passenger steamer Mercury was sunk in the Black sea by a mine. The total number of persons aboard the steamship was approximately 550.

The disaster occurred about 10 o'clock in the morning off the village of Grigorlovka. The passengers felt a tremendous shock in the forward part of the vessel, which went down bow foremost in five minutes.

Survivors tell harrowing stories of the scenes that ensued. All available steamers and tugs hastened from Odessa and rescued the survivors clinging to lifebelts and wreckage. Five were taken from the masthead, a few feet above the water. Many women still clasped babies in their arms. The passenger steamer Kniazpotemkin had just preceded the Mercury and although aware of the disaster, the passengers forcibly prevented her captain from putting back to give aid.

St. Louis Ad Club Wants Convention in 1917

St. Louis, Mo., June 24.—At noon today 150 members of the Advertising Club of St. Louis accompanied by Mayor Kiel and a large number of merchants, left here on a special train over the Pennsylvania railroad to attend the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World and to make a fight to secure the 1917 convention for this city.

In addition the local men were accompanied by 163 advertising men from the west and south who joined the party here.

The special train was made up of ten passenger cars and two advertising cars loaded with souvenirs which will be distributed in cities along the route and in Philadelphia. A band and a number of well known entertainers also went along and concerts will be given in every place at which the train stops.

St. Louis is sending the largest delegation to the convention and is confident of securing next year's big meeting.

Fire Insurance Commission Makes Important Ruling

Austin, June 24.—The state fire insurance commission today held in a ruling to all insurance companies doing business in Texas that risks and liabilities incidental to disturbed war conditions brought about by the Mexican situation may be assumed by the companies, provided the charge for the assumption of this liability is made at the rate of three per cent per annum in cities and towns where the key rate is forty or less, and four per cent where the key rate is forty-one or over. Attention is called to one of the conditions of the Texas standard fire policy, which reads:

"This company shall not be liable for loss caused directly or indirectly by invasion, insurrection, riot, civil war or commotion or usurped power, or by order of any civil authority."

Nations Send Words of Sympathy to Mexico City

Mexico City, June 24.—The governments of six nations have sent telegrams of sympathy to Mexico and have offered their services toward effecting an amicable arrangement of the difficulties between Mexico and the United States. Foreign Minister Aguilar made this announcement today, stating the messages of this purport had been received by him from the governments of Chile, Argentina, Ecuador, Salvador, Honduras and Spain. The foreign minister said that he had answered these messages, thanking the governments named for their courtesy and good wishes.

St. Louis, June 24.—Announcement was made today by B. F. Employment with the railroad will be open to them at the expiration of the service.

By Robert F. Wilson.

Washington, June 24.—A real Indian princess has come to Washington to be the Joan of Arc of her people. With the Lolomi movement, of which she si the founder, she proposes to lead 300,000 Indians out of the bondage of bureaucracy and into the selfrespect of complete self government.

She is Wynnogene, seven-eighths Oneida in blood, and a direct descendant of that famous chieftain, Daniel Beard, who had so much to do with bringing about peace between the government and the Indians of the northwest in the early days. Her American name is Laura Cornelius Kellogg, and she is the wife of O. J. Kellogg, former Princeton football player and cousin of Frank B. Kellogg, the Minnesota trust buster.

Mrs. Kellogg's Lolomi plan is being championed in the senate by Senator LaFollette and by Representative Konop of Wisconsin in the house. A bill has been introduced to authorize the experiment of incorporating the Night Hawk band of Cherokee Indians in Oklahoma as the first Lolomi community.

At present the 300,000 reservation Indians are treated as incompetent wards of the nation, governed by the Indian bureau, which is custodian for Indian property worth nearly $900,000, and having no more voice in their government than an infant orphan has in the management of its inheritance by a guardian.

ONLY ONE WAY.

The turning point has been reached in our dealings with Mexico.

Those who have a fair knowledge of Mexican character will not need a detailed report to know what happened at Carrizal. If there had been no flag of truce, no parley, no trap, there would have been no fight, because that is the only way the Mexican will fight.

Every intelligent person knows that no American officer ever led a troop of eighty-nine mounted soldiers against several hundred sheltered men armed with machine guns.

The American scouting party was surrounded under pretense of a parley and then slaughtered. Then a great victory was heralded throughout Mexico.

It would be a great mistake for our government to deal with this as a case for diplomacy. No doubt the massacre occurred just as it was planned for the purpose of demonstrating to the ignorant multitude that Mexico is able to whip the United States. To them it is convincing. The only way to remove that impression is for the United States to punish the offenders—not ask Carranza to do it. He flung a challenge at Washington; the Carrizal slaughter came as a vindication of his threat. To debate the question with him now will only add Mexican recruits to his standard.

There is but one way to accomplish anything in Mexico now. That is to send an army there, take charge of the situation, and overpower by force all who resist.

That is bound to come, and all delay only adds to the difficulties that will be encountered when it comes.

Mr. Colquitt is greatly elated over the thought that the Washington government has at last come to his views as to Mexico. This is interesting if true, but is hardly borne out by the record. He did his best to provoke the national government into acts of aggression which would have cost us the friendship of every South American country. If we must fight, we will fight for the sake of humanity, not to exploit the petty ends of self-seeking politicians, and we will be driven to it by the emergency of the nation, not by the machinations of marplots.

Mr. Morris professes to be surprised that Governor Ferguson should have discovered that he is in the race for governor. If Mr. Morris thinks the governor doesn't read the newspaper before breakfast every morning, he is grossly misinformed. The governor has heard of Cumby.

The Arabian uprising against the Turk will probably have but little military effect but it shows that the Moslem influence is waning fast in the Far East. One of the certain results of the war will be the religious emancipation of the Mohammedan world.

Very little gold was produced in Texas mines last year, according to the federal report. But the gold that was produced by the purchasers of cotton and corn, cabbage and cattle, and a thousand other items grown on farms of the Lone Star state would be enough to make even John D. Rockefeller smile, if he could put it in his pocket.

The action of the allies in bringing pressure to bear upon Greece to comply with their demands probably foreshadows an early offensive movement looking to a land attack on Constantinople. Verdun has had its day, and the battle will soon shift to the east. The dismemberment of Turkey will be the easiest job of the new map makers, and they are anxious to begin it.

The Fourth of July will soon be here, and there are so many present reasons why an American should celebrate, it ought to be made the occasion for an outpuoring of national spirit that would be echoed round the world. America, first of nations and America, first in the heart of every citizen.

The proposed appeal by the American Union Against Militarism to the A. B. C. powers to exert their influence with Carranza to avert war is well meaning, but ill-advised. There is plenty of evidence that the more Carranza is coddled, the more bellicose he becomes.

Candidate Morris can hardly do less than accept the challenge of Governor Ferguson to a joint debate. Now for an umpire who will see to it that neither strikes below the belt.

The Germans say the Japanese are behind Carranza and the allies say the Germans are prompting him. Come on with the proof boys. A suspended sentence is ready.

With cotton going up and gold coming down, we may soon reach that ildyllic period when Wall street will be a sort of back yard for the Texas farmer.

EVIDENCE AT REST IN HARRISON CASE

INTRODUCTION OF REBUTTAL TESTIMONY TO BEGIN IMMEDIATELY.

Katherine Harrison Breaks Down for First Time When the State Arraigns Her Character.

Fort Worth, Tex., June 24.—Both sides have rested their direct evidence in the trial of Mrs. Katherine Harrison, daughter-in-law of James Harrison, Fort Worth banker, capitalist and land owner. She is accused of killing W. L. Warren a few days before her marriage to Harrison's son last December and having confessed it, giving as a reason Warren's wronging of her two years before the shooting.

The introduction of rebuttal testimony will begin at once by both sides.

Witnesses this morning were Mrs. S. E. Tackett, mother of Katherine Harrison; Mrs. Susie Warren, widow of W. L. Warren and Mrs. B. Harris, sister of the pretty defendant. Mrs. Tackett denied her daughter had taken favors, clothes and presents from men; denied she had known of her living a whole summer in the James Harrison home with the Harrison son, Charlie, while his parents were spending the summer at a Colorado resort, and denied she had gone to Dallas for an operation. Mrs. Warren's testimony was routine, detailing her marriage with Warren, and her separation from him. Mrs. Harris testified to Katherine living with her, her age, etc.

The expected attack upon Warren's character was not resumed this morning, though yesterday his housekeeper testified he had 515 different girls in his rooms in as many days while she worked for him.

The first witness the state called on rebuttal was Mrs. Tackett. She was used merely to identify a picture of Katherine in which she wore a red coat. Later Mrs. Annie Taylor, sister of Warren identified a similar picture as one she found in her brother's trunk after his death. A sales girl from a department store testified Warren brought Katherine into the store and purchased her a dress.

For the first time since the trial began, Katherine Harrison broke down this morning while the state in its rebuttal testimony arraigned her character. This was done through the medium of several prominent young men, some socially well known, who told of "parties" she was on and resorts they had seen her it. This arraignment of her moral character constituted the state's rebuttal evidence.

The court room was so crowded this morning that it was necessary to employ extra deputies to maintain order.

Court met at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon but upon agreeing on the written testimony of one man to Warren's moral character adjourned until Monday morning at 8 o'clock.

BEAUTIFUL YOUNG GIRLS LEARN TO DANCE AT CAMP NEAR MOUNTAIN LAKE

The Rocky mountain dancing camp in action.

Denver, Col., June 24.—Up among the highest, snow-capped peaks of the Rocky mountains two western girls have pitched a new kind of a camp and called it the Rocky Mountain Dancing camp. They are now preparing to welcome girls from all parts of the country who will arrive on July 17 and stay for six weeks. Dancing is the main object of the camp as the name implies and the person who takes a trip through the Rockies this summer runs the risk of coming suddenly upon a group of maidens in floating garments dancing in and out among the tall pines in the shadow of the snow-capped peaks.

Situated in a clearing in the dense pine woods at the foot of the flat tops of Colorado is the main building of this unexpected camp— a low structure with a wide porch shaded by trees. On rainy days this porch serves as a dancing floor but when the weather permits the dancing takes place on a natural stage of soft turf shaded by a semicircle of great pines. The morning is given up to the serious business of dancing taught by Miss Portia Swett, a graduate of the Chalif Normal school and the Castle Normal school. Miss Swett has also studied in Paris, in Milan and recently with Pavley of the Le Ballet Russe. Miss Charlotte L. Perry of Denver is cofounder of the camp with Miss Swett and assists her in teaching.

In the afternoon the pupils change their flowing Grecian robes for bloomers, jumpers and high boots in which they may take long climbs and walks or ride horse back. A swimming pool is one of the added attractions of the camp.

In speaking of the aims of the camp Miss Swett says: "Our aim is to develop the higher personality of the individual by combining dancing and pantomime with the strength, freedom and unconscious beauty that comes from living in the open woods."

CAMPAIGN ONLY ON SUBMISSION ISSUE

M. H. WOLFE SAYS LARGE VOTING COUNTIES ARE BEING ORGANIZED.

Dallas, June 24.—Interest in the campaign being waged by the prohibition submission committee is waxing warm, according to a statement made by M. H. Wolfe, state chairman of the organization. Mr. Wolfe declared that with few exceptions the largest voting counties of the state have completed their organizations, and are proceeding with the work in a very earnest manner.

Among the list of more than 100 counties to now be organized the following are found: Dallas, Tarrant, McLennan, Travis, Bexar, Jefferson, Collin and Hunt.

Robert L. Rodgers of Beaumont, chairman of the Jefferson county submission club, says: "We heed and hearken to your call to the democracy of Texas * * * and expect to conduct a vigorous campaign." Advices from San Antonio are to the effect that a monster mass meeting was held there on Monday, June 19, Bexar county was completely organized and a permanent committee named. In advising of the action of the mass meeting, W. P. Lobban, chairman of the club, said: "We expect to make an open, active and vigorous campaign on the question of submission."

"Travis county," said Mr. Wolfe, "was one of the first counties in the state to report with a complete organization." E. R. Pedigo of Austin was elected chairman and W. L. Vinning secretary.

"As before stated, we intend to wage this campaign strictly on the issue of submission," declared the chairman of the committee. A greatly increasing number of those of the opposite faith have declared that they wish to see an end to the question, and for that reason are in favor of going to the people with the issue," said Mr. Wolfe.

Machine Gun Drill for A. & M. Students

College Station, Tex., June 24.—Machine gun practice for the students of the rural life school and summer normal in session at the A. and M. college, who are specializing in military science and tactics was conducted this afternoon by Lieut. The public school teachers enrolled in this work were given their initial trial at the "shooting game" this afternoon, at the college target range. The use of all regulation firearms, history and organization of the army and military principles will be stressed at the summer course.

Marlin People Expect Fine Crops in Fall

Marlin, June 24.—Falls county now appears to have no regularly qualified application from any one for a place on the ticket for election through the democratic primaries to the legislature, as it has developed that although Hon. Julius Rector, the present member, on his understanding from Chairman C. J. Bartlett, that it was not necessary to make formal application last Saturday, may have his name placed there, subject to protest, the application of C. B. Monday, signed by twenty-seven residents of Marlin, failed to come within the terms of the law, requiring that he indorse the petition, the indorsement having been made five days later than required.

The pros of this county are understood to be ready to contest Mr. Monday's election, should he be the successful candidate, on that ground, while the antis, it is declared, are determined to contest the election of Mr. Rector.

People in Marlin for their Saturday shopping are enthusiastic in their expectations for good crops this fall. It is admitted the boll weevil is to be feared, but indications are that crops will be of high order.

Hon. George W. Riddle of Dallas spent this morning in Marlin meeting the business men of the city under the escort of Banker J. C. Fountain, and at 2 o'clock this afternoon he delivered an address at the court house, which was well received by the large crowd present. He gave special emphasis to the Mexican situation and to the necessity for honest men to be sent to congress.

John H. Boozer Killed in Bed

Nacogdoches, Tex., June 24.—John H. Boozer, 60, was killed in bed at his farm home four miles east of here, during last night, after his wife had been taken from the house to the barn where neighbors found her today, tied with a rope around her neck. Boozer's skull was fractured apparently by a blow from an ax. Mrs. Boozer was uninjured.

Mrs. Boozer said she was awakened early in the night by a man who was pointing a revolver at her and who compelled her to accompany him to the barn. Her husband slept in another room and it had not been determined today whether he was murdered before or after Mrs. Boozer was taken from the house.

Two children of the family are reported to have been away from home last night.

DAILY SHORT STORY.

THE JAPANESE GARDEN.

By LEONARD L. HESS.

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

She had prayed as fervently as the boy's own family that he might recover, and, perhaps, during the crisis her voice had been raised in a fervor surpassing that of all the rest. So when the boy's sister informed her that the boy would pull through and that he was, in fact, already out of danger, a smile of triumph flickered on her lips and she turned her eyes heavenward as if his recovery had been a special dispensation of Providence for her alone. The boy was twenty-two; she was thirty-eight.

Her slight figure pressed on its way through the crowds. Her brow, usually clear and serene under the hair streaked with gray, was now furrowed and under her large hat her eyes shone brightly. What gift should she send Larry Holden for his convalescence? He was fond of reading—but almost every one would send books. She pressed her way to a shop window flashing with novelties. A meerschaum pipe? No. Larry must not smoke after an attack of pneumonia. She shivered at the idea of tempting him with it. She peeped from window to window, perplexed by the search. At last her eye lit on a Japanese garden and she gave a gasp of delight as she came to a quick conclusion, which left logic quite prostrate behind her. She was very partial to Japanese gardens; so Larry must be partial to them, too!

A sleek little Jap bowed her into the cool recesses of the shop, dimly green with the leaves of multitudinous small plants. She looked about her and then selected her garden. It was rather bare, not particularly Oriental, and she was not satisfied with it. Her thin hands flickered as she pointed from one object to another with which to embellish it and the little Jap, smiling placidly, added a second dwarf tree, another bridge, the shiny yellow bulb of a sacred narcissus and a pagoda atop a pebbled hill. He worked with deft fingers, assuring her that the garden looked now for all the world like a bit of old Japan. She smiled, proud of having hit upon this present. Larry had always talked a great deal about the Orient. He had never been in the East and once she had laughed at his passion for it, telling him that he must be the reincarnation of a Hindu. And very seriously he had answered: "Yes, I shouldn't wonder!" She recollected this now, gazing at the garden. She gave Larry's name and address, paid the Jap in a flutter of excitement, and, again congratulating herself on the felicity of the gift, hurried from the dim shop into the street, gay with the sunshine of spring.

She was the friend of Larry's oldest sister, and Larry himself was very fond of her. He was the only man who was fond of her, as she knew well enough. Larry was in her thoughts constantly. In beginning, she had felt toward him as toward a young brother, but it was not long before there came a subtle change, she forgetting that she was thirty-eight and he only twenty-two. At least, she no longer felt this difference between them.

It was a shock to find how thin his face looked on the white pillow. The face was as white as the pillow itself, and the eyes in it were large. But the fever had gone out of them, leaving them tranquil, while the firmly pressed mouth told how the boy was fighting his way back to health. His thick, golden hair, like a child's, formed a sort of halo around his head. There was but feeble strength in the hand with which he clasped Celia Darrow's own.

"Hello, Celia—awfully glad to see you!" He held her hand and gazed up at her. "Thanks awfully for that." He nodded toward a table at his side.

On the table stood the Japanese garden, with its dwarf trees and bridges and pagodas. Clear water sparkled among the pebbles and the sacred narcissus was putting forth a tender yellow-green shoot.

"You like it?" Her voice thrilled.

"Splendid! I've had it placed there, you see—close, where I can always look at it. I've been looking at it ever since it came. How thoughtful you are, Celia!"

She turned quickly away.

A breeze, tinged with the odor of fresh blossoms from the park, stirred through the window, rustling the leaves of a book open under Barry's hand.

"You've been reading? Shall I read to you now?"

"It's the 'Arabian Nights.'" He answered quickly. "I'm awfully fond of the 'Arabian Nights.' I'm fond of Conrad, too. Stories of the eastern seas, you know. And all that sort of thing. Remember what you said about the reincarnation of the Hindu?"

As she touched the book he went on:

"No, thanks; don't read. Just talk to me. I'm always glad to have you with me."

She dropped her eyes and struggled with a button of her glove. Behind her Larry's sister moved about the room. Celia glanced at Larry, who just then was staring at the ceiling. Her breath quickened. Larry's eyes roved to the Japanese garden. To herself, Celia Darrow repeated over and over his words, "I'm always glad to have you with me." They did not speak. It seemed to her that something within her forbade many words. Every time Larry looked toward her he smiled and when it was time to go she rose in a flutter, taking his hand, a blush spreading over her pale, oval face.

"Thanks again, Celia," he murmured. "Do come in tomorrow!"

She dropped his hand and hurried out, saying to herself: "He loves me; he loves me!" His eyes followed her through the door and came to rest on the garden by his side.

She returned to him almost every day till he was well, and at every leavetaking she said to herself, "He loves me!"

A month later she was reading at her open window. She was reading with her eyes alone. Her thoughts were with Larry Holden. Suddenly, as if the thoughts had summoned him to her by their longing, she heard Larry's own voice in the hall. She leaped from her chair, pressing a hand to her heart, waiting. It was the first time Larry had ever been in her home. As he entered the room, she tottered, going toward him, and at the same time she smiled.

"Celia!" he cried.

He kissed her. Her face flamed and her eyes closed. He made a dashing figure, in a stream of sunlight, his golden hair flashing around his brow like a halo. He spoke quickly and his eyes sparkled with excitement.

"Dear Celia!" he cried, looking straight into her eyes. "I've something to say to you. I—I'm going on a journey! Isn't it splendid? Awfully good of old dad! I'm going to the Orient, Celia! I've been wanting to ever since I read the first word about it, in some tale or other, years ago! Blue seas, blue skies, jungles and brown faces! I just had to come right over and tell you. Know why? Because it wasn't so much the 'Arabian Nights,' nor Joseph Conrad, but your Japanese garden that set me off this way. By George, looking at those funny little Japanese trees! The little bridges! The pagodas! It's to be Japan first, Celia! Your little garden did it! Wish me luck. Lots of luck——" His outburst stopped abruptly and he added in sudden awe: "You're awfully pale, Celia. Why——?"

She smiled. Then, taking his boyish face between her hands, she drew him toward her and kissed him twice on the forehead.

"Take care of yourself, child, and write to me—sometimes——"

A moment he looked wonderingly into her eyes. He kissed her again, solemnly, without understanding in the least. And the next moment he was off, with a great, boyish shout.

She sank into a chair, her eyes fixed on the door through which he had gone. She wondered would he ever return and she knew that even were he to return it could make no difference—no difference!

ONLY ONE WAY.

The turning point has been reached in our dealings with Mexico.

Those who have a fair knowledge of Mexican character will not need a detailed report to know what happened at Carrizal. If there had been no flag of truce, no parley, no trap, there would have been no fight, because that is the only way the Mexican will fight.

Every intelligent person knows that no American officer ever led a troop of eighty-nine mounted soldiers against several hundred sheltered men armed with machine guns.

The American scouting party was surrounded under pretense of a parley and then slaughtered. Then a great victory was heralded throughout Mexico.

It would be a great mistake for our government to deal with this as a case for diplomacy. No doubt the massacre occurred just as it was planned for the purpose of demonstrating to the ignorant multitude that Mexico is able to whip the United States. To them it is convincing. The only way to remove that impression is for the United States to punish the offenders—not ask Carranza to do it. He flung a challenge at Washington; the Carrizal slaughter came as a vindication of his threat. To debate the question with him now will only add Mexican recruits to his standard.

There is but one way to accomplish anything in Mexico now. That is to send an army there, take charge of the situation, and overpower by force all who resist.

A sales girl from a department store testified Warren brought Katherine into the store and purchased her a dress.

For the first time since the trial began, Katherine Harrison broke down this morning while the state in its rebuttal testimony arraigned her character. This was done through the medium of several prominent young men, some socially well known, who told of "parties" she was on and resorts they had seen her it. This arraignment of her moral character constituted the state's rebuttal evidence.

The court room was so crowded this morning that it was necessary to employ extra deputies to maintain order.

Court met at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon but upon agreeing on the written testimony of one man to Warren's moral character adjourned until Monday morning at 8 o'clock.

BEAUTIFUL YOUNG GIRLS LEARN TO DANCE AT CAMP NEAR MOUNTAIN LAKE

The Rocky mountain dancing camp in action.

Denver, Col., June 24.—Up among the highest, snow-capped peaks of the Rocky mountains two western girls have pitched a new kind of a camp and called it the Rocky Mountain Dancing camp. They are now preparing to welcome girls from all parts of the country who will arrive on July 17 and stay for six weeks. Dancing is the main object of the camp as the name implies and the person who takes a trip through the Rockies this summer runs the risk of coming suddenly upon a group of maidens in floating garments dancing in and out among the tall pines in the shadow of the snow-capped peaks.

Situated in a clearing in the dense pine woods at the foot of the flat tops of Colorado is the main building of this unexpected camp— a low structure with a wide porch shaded by trees. On rainy days this porch serves as a dancing floor but when the weather permits the dancing takes place on a natural stage of soft turf shaded by a semicircle of great pines. The morning is given up to the serious business of dancing taught by Miss Portia Swett, a graduate of the Chalif Normal school and the Castle Normal school. Miss Swett has also studied in Paris, in Milan and recently with Pavley of the Le Ballet Russe. Miss Charlotte L. Perry of Denver is cofounder of the camp with Miss Swett and assists her in teaching.

In the afternoon the pupils change their flowing Grecian robes for bloomers, jumpers and high boots in which they may take long climbs and walks or ride horse back. A swimming pool is one of the added attractions of the camp.

In speaking of the aims of the camp Miss Swett says: "Our aim is to develop the higher personality of the individual by combining dancing and pantomime with the strength, freedom and unconscious beauty that comes from living in the open woods."

CAMPAIGN ONLY ON SUBMISSION ISSUE

M. H. WOLFE SAYS LARGE VOTING COUNTIES ARE BEING ORGANIZED.

Dallas, June 24.—Interest in the campaign being waged by the prohibition submission committee is waxing warm, according to a statement made by M. H. Wolfe, state chairman of the organization. Mr. Wolfe declared that with few exceptions the largest voting counties of the state have completed their organizations, and are proceeding with the work in a very earnest manner.

Among the list of more than 100 counties to now be organized the following are found: Dallas, Tarrant, McLennan, Travis, Bexar, Jefferson, Collin and Hunt.

Robert L. Rodgers of Beaumont, chairman of the Jefferson county submission club, says: "We heed and hearken to your call to the democracy of Texas * * * and expect to conduct a vigorous campaign." Advices from San Antonio are to the effect that a monster mass meeting was held there on Monday, June 19, Bexar county was completely organized and a permanent committee named. In advising of the action of the mass meeting, W. P. Lobban, chairman of the club, said: "We expect to make an open, active and vigorous campaign on the question of submission."

"Travis county," said Mr. Wolfe, "was one of the first counties in the state to report with a complete organization." E. R. Pedigo of Austin was elected chairman and W. L. Vinning secretary.

"As before stated, we intend to wage this campaign strictly on the issue of submission," declared the chairman of the committee. A greatly increasing number of those of the opposite faith have declared that they wish to see an end to the question, and for that reason are in favor of going to the people with the issue," said Mr. Wolfe.

Machine Gun Drill for A. & M. Students

College Station, Tex., June 24.—Machine gun practice for the students of the rural life school and summer normal in session at the A. and M. college, who are specializing in military science and tactics was conducted this afternoon by Lieut. James R. Hill, U. S. A., professor of military science and tactics. The college has two standard machine guns.

The public school teachers enrolled in this work were given their initial trial at the "shooting game" this afternoon, at the college target range. The use of all regulation firearms, history and organization of the army and military principles will be stressed at the summer course.

Campbell at Weatherford.

Weatherford, June 24.—Hon. T. M. Campbell spoke at the court house here this afternoon to a capacity crowd. He was frequently and vociferously applauded. Later in the afternoon he motored to Springtown and spoke there.

Marlin People Expect Fine Crops in Fall

Marlin, June 24.—Falls county now appears to have no regularly qualified application from any one for a place on the ticket for election through the democratic primaries to the legislature, as it has developed that although Hon. Julius Rector, the present member, on his understanding from Chairman C. J. Bartlett, that it was not necessary to make formal application last Saturday, may have his name placed there, subject to protest, the application of C. B. Monday, signed by twenty-seven residents of Marlin, failed to come within the terms of the law, requiring that he indorse the petition, the indorsement having been made five days later than required.

The pros of this county are understood to be ready to contest Mr. Monday's election, should he be the successful candidate, on that ground, while the antis, it is declared, are determined to contest the election of Mr. Rector.

People in Marlin for their Saturday shopping are enthusiastic in their expectations for good crops this fall. It is admitted the boll weevil is to be feared, but indications are that crops will be of high order.

Hon. George W. Riddle of Dallas spent this morning in Marlin meeting the business men of the city under the escort of Banker J. C. Fountain, and at 2 o'clock this afternoon he delivered an address at the court house, which was well received by the large crowd present. He gave special emphasis to the Mexican situation and to the necessity for honest men to be sent to congress.

Those present were Mesdames Ashworth Moore, Wilkerson, Beard, Kincannon, Smartt, Leglar, Hill and G. F. Coffey.

The young ladies of the town met with Miss Blanche Flowers yesterday afternoon to effect the organization of a new club. They had as guest Miss Katherine Schimmelpfennig of Waco. The girls christened their club the "D. A. I."

Bryan Negro Charged With Assault

Bryan, June 24.—A 15-year-old negro boy was placed in jail last night, charged with assault upon a 9-year-old Bohemian girl, who lives near the college. He is said to have enticed the girl away from a number of children who were down on a branch playing.

John H. Boozer Killed in Bed

Nacogdoches, Tex., June 24.—John H. Boozer, 60, was killed in bed at his farm home four miles east of here, during last night, after his wife had been taken from the house to the barn where neighbors found her today, tied with a rope around her neck. Boozer's skull was fractured apparently by a blow from an ax. Mrs. Boozer was uninjured.

Mrs. Boozer said she was awakened early in the night by a man who was pointing a revolver at her and who compelled her to accompany him to the barn. Her husband slept in another room and it had not been determined today whether he was murdered before or after Mrs. Boozer was taken from the house.

Two children of the family are reported to have been away from home last night.

Riddle at Bremond.

Bremond, June 24.—Judge Geo. W. Riddle, candidate for the United States senate, spoke yesterday afternoon in Bremond to a very good crowd of voters, about one hundred and fifty. He spoke along his usual line, and with great emphasis and received splendid responses by his hearers. The more so because of his plainness.

Threshing in Shackleford.

Albany, June 24.—The threshing of the large acreage of wheat in this county has started and the turn-out has been above expectations. Several crops have threshed better than twenty bushels per acre and it is thought that the average of the county will be between fifteen and twenty bushels. The quality is good, the average being sixty pounds to the bushel.

DAILY SHORT STORY.

By LEONARD L. HESS.

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

She had prayed as fervently as the boy's own family that he might recover, and, perhaps, during the crisis her voice had been raised in a fervor surpassing that of all the rest. So when the boy's sister informed her that the boy would pull through and that he was, in fact, already out of danger, a smile of triumph flickered on her lips and she turned her eyes heavenward as if his recovery had been a special dispensation of Providence for her alone. The boy was twenty-two; she was thirty-eight.

Her slight figure pressed on its way through the crowds. Her brow, usually clear and serene under the hair streaked with gray, was now furrowed and under her large hat her eyes shone brightly. What gift should she send Larry Holden for his convalescence? He was fond of reading—but almost every one would send books. She pressed her way to a shop window flashing with novelties. A meerschaum pipe? No. Larry must not smoke after an attack of pneumonia. She shivered at the idea of tempting him with it. She peeped from window to window, perplexed by the search. At last her eye lit on a Japanese garden and she gave a gasp of delight as she came to a quick conclusion, which left logic quite prostrate behind her. She was very partial to Japanese gardens; so Larry must be partial to them, too!

A sleek little Jap bowed her into the cool recesses of the shop, dimly green with the leaves of multitudinous small plants. She looked about her and then selected her garden. It was rather bare, not particularly Oriental, and she was not satisfied with it. Her thin hands flickered as she pointed from one object to another with which to embellish it and the little Jap, smiling placidly, added a second dwarf tree, another bridge, the shiny yellow bulb of a sacred narcissus and a pagoda atop a pebbled hill. He worked with deft fingers, assuring her that the garden looked now for all the world like a bit of old Japan. She smiled, proud of having hit upon this present. Larry had always talked a great deal about the Orient. He had never been in the East and once she had laughed at his passion for it, telling him that he must be the reincarnation of a Hindu. And very seriously he had answered: "Yes, I shouldn't wonder!" She recollected this now, gazing at the garden. She gave Larry's name and address, paid the Jap in a flutter of excitement, and, again congratulating herself on the felicity of the gift, hurried from the dim shop into the street, gay with the sunshine of spring.

She was the friend of Larry's oldest sister, and Larry himself was very fond of her. He was the only man who was fond of her, as she knew well enough. Larry was in her thoughts constantly. In beginning, she had felt toward him as toward a young brother, but it was not long before there came a subtle change, she forgetting that she was thirty-eight and he only twenty-two. At least, she no longer felt this difference between them.

It was a shock to find how thin his face looked on the white pillow. The face was as white as the pillow itself, and the eyes in it were large. But the fever had gone out of them, leaving them tranquil, while the firmly pressed mouth told how the boy was fighting his way back to health. His thick, golden hair, like a child's, formed a sort of halo around his head. There was but feeble strength in the hand with which he clasped Celia Darrow's own.

"Hello, Celia—awfully glad to see you!" He held her hand and gazed up at her. "Thanks awfully for that." He nodded toward a table at his side.

On the table stood the Japanese garden, with its dwarf trees and bridges and pagodas. Clear water sparkled among the pebbles and the sacred narcissus was putting forth a tender yellow-green shoot.

"You like it?" Her voice thrilled.

"Splendid! I've had it placed there, you see—close, where I can always look at it. I've been looking at it ever since it came. How thoughtful you are, Celia!"

She turned quickly away.

A breeze, tinged with the odor of fresh blossoms from the park, stirred through the window, rustling the leaves of a book open under Barry's hand.

"You've been reading? Shall I read to you now?"

"It's the 'Arabian Nights.'" He answered quickly. "I'm awfully fond of the 'Arabian Nights.' I'm fond of Conrad, too. Stories of the eastern seas, you know. And all that sort of thing. Remember what you said about the reincarnation of the Hindu?"

As she touched the book he went on:

"No, thanks; don't read. Just talk to me. I'm always glad to have you with me."

She dropped her eyes and struggled with a button of her glove. Behind her Larry's sister moved about the room. Celia glanced at Larry, who just then was staring at the ceiling. Her breath quickened. Larry's eyes roved to the Japanese garden. To herself, Celia Darrow repeated over and over his words, "I'm always glad to have you with me." They did not speak. It seemed to her that something within her forbade many words. Every time Larry looked toward her he smiled and when it was time to go she rose in a flutter, taking his hand, a blush spreading over her pale, oval face.

"Thanks again, Celia," he murmured. "Do come in tomorrow!"

She dropped his hand and hurried out, saying to herself: "He loves me; he loves me!" His eyes followed her through the door and came to rest on the garden by his side.

She returned to him almost every day till he was well, and at every leavetaking she said to herself, "He loves me!"

A month later she was reading at her open window. She was reading with her eyes alone. Her thoughts were with Larry Holden. Suddenly, as if the thoughts had summoned him to her by their longing, she heard Larry's own voice in the hall. She leaped from her chair, pressing a hand to her heart, waiting. It was the first time Larry had ever been in her home. As he entered the room, she tottered, going toward him, and at the same time she smiled.

"Celia!" he cried.

He kissed her. Her face flamed and her eyes closed. He made a dashing figure, in a stream of sunlight, his golden hair flashing around his brow like a halo. He spoke quickly and his eyes sparkled with excitement.

"Dear Celia!" he cried, looking straight into her eyes. "I've something to say to you. I—I'm going on a journey! Isn't it splendid? Awfully good of old dad! I'm going to the Orient, Celia! I've been wanting to ever since I read the first word about it, in some tale or other, years ago! Blue seas, blue skies, jungles and brown faces! I just had to come right over and tell you. Know why? Because it wasn't so much the 'Arabian Nights,' nor Joseph Conrad, but your Japanese garden that set me off this way. By George, looking at those funny little Japanese trees! The little bridges! The pagodas! It's to be Japan first, Celia! Your little garden did it! Wish me luck. Lots of luck——" His outburst stopped abruptly and he added in sudden awe: "You're awfully pale, Celia. Why——?"

She smiled. Then, taking his boyish face between her hands, she drew him toward her and kissed him twice on the forehead.

"Take care of yourself, child, and write to me—sometimes——"

A moment he looked wonderingly into her eyes. He kissed her again, solemnly, without understanding in the least. And the next moment he was off, with a great, boyish shout.

She sank into a chair, her eyes fixed on the door through which he had gone. She wondered would he ever return and she knew that even were he to return it could make no difference—no difference!

MONEY WILL NOT BUY THIS AUTO: IT TAKES COUPONS

Autoes have been auctioned off in Waco before and have been given in premiums in voting contests, but the citizens of Waco will soon have a chance to bid on an auto, and other valuable articles, at a sale where money is as useless as a heating stove on a hot day in Mexico.

Great interest is being aroused in the unique proposition, which is already an assured success. The names of firms backing the auction are all that Wacoans need to prove that it is something well worth while. They are: the Famous Dry Goods company, Adams & Allcorn Piano company, Waco Auto Supply company, Herrick Hardware company, Sam Freund & Co. cigar stores and the Orpheum theatre.

All the bidding will be done by coupons. All articles will be sold to the highest bidders at the close of the sale, which starts August 15 and ends September 16. A five passenger baby grand Chevrolet automobile, now on exhibit in front of the Orpheum, is the headliner in the articles to be auctioned off. But there are many others of considerable value, and here they are: One player piano, stool and scarf; one diamond ring; one fifteen-jewel, gold-filled watch bracelet (American Beauty); two gold filled watch blacelets; one 0-size Premier gold filled watch; one Victory, seven jewel watch; one diamond set la valliere; one cameo set la valliere.

This is not a voting contest. It is a bona fide auction sale, with coupons being offered instead of dollars and cents. How will you get the coupons? Ask any of the dealers mentioned above. There are numerous coupons that come with various articles of every day use that can be exchanged at the Famous for coupon bonds, to be used at the auction.

Among the coupons that may be exchanged at the Famous, 100 coupons getting a 1000 coupon bond, are the following:

Young Men, Eager for Service Below Border, Crowd Recnuiting Stations, While Guardsmen Prepare

These pictures, which were taken at Youngstown, Ohio, this week, might have been taken in any one of a hundred cities throughout the country. Everywhere is seen the greatest activity in national guard circles. Young men, eager for service below the border, are crowding the guard recruiting stations, while the present members of the guard are busy inspecting arms and making all preparations for active service at or below the border.

Did You See The Wounded?

Doubtless he will not die, as the nurse in charge of the poor wounded man is paying particular attention to him and never for an instant leaving his bedside. She has been there for several days without a minute's leave of absence, and not once has she closed her eyes for fear that he will want something or some little attention. She is an "angel of the Red Cross," as the soldiers often call them.

One of the most interesting and timely show windows ever seen in Waco is one that was arranged a few days ago in Goldstein-Migel's corner window.

The subject is a Red Cross nurse room, with the complete equipment of bandages, medicine, nurse in full attire, cots and the general equipment of a nurse room. The most important thing about a nurse room is not missing, for there on the cot is a realistic wounded hero of some great battle. It is easy to conjecture, in looking at the half-dying man that he was wounded while charging the enemy's trench—probably single-handed, the rest of the company having fallen before reaching the goal.

The window is attracting much attention and a crowd is ever present watching the faithfulness of the nurse. In view of the recent appeals of the local chapter of the Red Cross, and the probability of their soon being engaged in their work of mercy the fully equipped window is of public interest.

Compulsory Education in Central African Village

Chief Compels All Children to Attend—School Numbers Four Hundred in Village of One Thousand—Many Grown-Ups Eager to Learn—Precocious African Boy—Schools an Evangelistic Agency.

By Southern Missionary News Bureau.

Compulsory school attendance in a central African village, introduced and enforced by the chief, is the surprising news that comes from Mutoto, on the upper Congo. Rev. F. R. Cleveland, a Southern Presbyterian missionary, located at Mutoto, tells the story in a recent letter:

"One of the most interesting features of our work here is the school system. Compulsory education was introduced through the influence of the chief, who is an elder in our church. The system has been running for a year, and is a great success.

"While the population of the village is not more than a thousand, the average attendance upon the school has been about four hundred. This means, of course, that many of the men and women attend, though only the children are obliged to come. The daily average of women alone has been over fifty. Many come with their babies, and hold them in their arms while they study. The school is taught by natives, though one of the missionaries superintends it, and examines those ready to pass into higher classes. The regular attendance of the older ones shows how eager they are to hear the wisdom of the 'man of God.'

"While some of the older people are slow at learning, it is amazing how rapidly the children learn. The ease with which they memorize would surprize our boys and girls at home, and perhaps put some to shame. An example is a little boy whom we call 'Lungenyi,' which means 'wisdom.' He is surely a modern Solomon. He is not more than seven or eight years old and has been in school only about eighteen months. He entered the A, B, C class, but before the first term was over he was reading the parables of the Bible. The first quarter of the second term he was advanced three times, and is now in the Bible class with the evangelists. There is nothing in the Buluba language that he can not read. He is also a good speller and has made a fair beginning in arithmetic. A number of others have advanced almost as rapidly.

"Our mission schools are a great means to an end in reaching the boys and girls for Christ. The largest per cent of our converts are first reached by the school."

"WHOM YE IGNORANTLY WORSHIP."

Mr. J. A. Slimmon, a missionary in Honan, China, writes:

"One day while I was talking to the people about 'Our Father which art in heaven,' an old lady came in and sat down nearby, listening attentively. After the others were gone, she said, 'I am an old woman and can talk to you freely. The God you have been speaking of is the one I have worshiped all my life. I am now sixty-seven years old. At twenty my mother's eyesight began to fail, so I prayer: "O God, You who are so powerful and wonderful, if You will make my mother's eyes well I will offer You a meat offering and worship You all my life." I told Him how good my mother had been to me. Then my mother's eyes got better, but presently they were worse. Then I said: "O God, if You will really make my mother's eyes well, I will offer a sacrifice of my own flesh." She got well and kept my promise and cut a piece of flesh off my arm and offered it up.' The dear lady showed me a great scar on her left arm where twenty-six years ago she had offered herself a sacrifice to 'Our Father.'

"'Now,' she said, 'I want you to teach me this prayer (the Lord's praper) that I may use it daily.' Next day she brought a little granddaughter, saying: 'I am too old to remember much, but if you will teach this little girl, she will teach it to me after you are gone.'

"I felt I could say as Paul at Athens: 'Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, Him declare I unto you.'"

HOW THEY TEACH GRAMMAR IN ASSAM.

In the schools of the Welsh Presbyterians in the Khasia Hills, Assam, religious instruction gets itself imparted in all the classes. Thus in the grammar exercises the word taken for conjugation is "sin." "I sin, you sin, we all sin. Sin no more!" Some years ago there was an earthquake in these hills and the people thought Christ was coming. The believers brought out their musical instruments and sang hymns of praise. The heathen on the other hand, were in the bazaars fearful of Christ and saturating themselves with drink in order to be unconscious when He should appear.

HOW THE CHILDREN MAY HELP.

Rev. R. T. Coldt, a Southern Presbyterian missionary at Soonchun, Korea, writes of his work among Oriental children and suggests a way by which American children may help—namely, by sending Bible picture cards for distribution to the little folks beyond the sea. He says:

"Korean children have little in their lives to beautify them and few of them have even one tiny picture in their homes. Hence we have used up thousands of Bible cards up to now and can still use them. As I go from church to church, I can use to advantage thousands of cards such as you throw away."

CHRISTIAN LITERATURE IN JAPAN

The Christian Literature society of Japan has sold 2000 copies of a Japanese translation of Dr. Fosdick's "The Manhood of the Master," in six months. It has also sold 500 copies of Sabatier's "Life of St. Francis of Assisi," and 750 copies of Professor Kashiwai's "History of Christianity."

Mr. Edwards of the American board mission among the Marathis in India announces the conversion of a prominent guru, or Hindu religious leader, who has charge of eight-four villages and who will therefore exert a powerful influence for the evangelizing of these villages.

Bay Shore Chautauqua July 1.

La Porte, June 24.—The management of the Sylvan Beach park of this place, where the Bay Shore Chautauqua will be held July 1st to 16th, are exceedingly busy getting ready for the great assembly. They have a crew of over fifty men putting the finishing touches on the new bath house, repainting and repairing the old cottages and building new ones, and getting the park ready for the great crowds that are coming during the assembly.

They are expecting a record-breaking crowd on the evening of July 4th, when the patriotic pageant, "America," will be given. This pageant was written by James Lattimore Himrod, president of the Bay Shore Chautauqua, and will be given under the directions of Mrs. Olive McClintic Johnson. The pageant is historical in nature, and the details are being carefully worked out by a woman thoroughly competent in this line.

Better Than Spanking

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W., Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

MONEY TO LOAN TO BUILD HOMES

This company now offers loans on improved Waco residence property, and having operated throughout Texas for over 25 years, has assisted thousands in securing their own homes. The loans of this company are with a few exceptions, made on homes, either to build or to remove existing incumbrances. Many who have transferred their mortgages into this company find that they are now paying principle and interest as easily as they have heretofore paid the interest alone. The reason is plain: The payments are always the same and are due at fixed intervals. Every mortgage made by this company contains a clause providing for its discharge after a fixed number of payments have been made, unless sooner discharged through maturity. The mortgagor has the option to pay off his mortgage in full, or in part, at any time without having to pay any unearned interest. A loan from this company has to be adjusted but once. There is no annual uneasiness. Each month takes care of itself. The burden is easily distributed throughout the whole time. There is absolutely no delay in furnishing a loan through this company.

¶ CITY NEWS BRIEFS ¶

Due to the fact that Waco residents are still leaving on summer vacations to various points, the railroad ticket offices of the city were busy spots yesterday up to 1 o'clock, which is the closing hour on Saturday.

The regular weekly meeting of the city commission will be held this week on Wednesday instead of Thursday, in order to allow those of the commissioners who wish to attend the Y. M. B. L. trade trip to Tyler to do so.

An investigation of the city charter amendments is being made by City Attorney John Maxwell. The matter has been under careful surveillance for some time and the amendments will be submitted to the regular meeting of the commission Wednesday.

Many people from Waco left yesterday to attend the picnic that was held at Rowena. Conspicuous among the visitors were the candidates who went out in great numbers to take advantage of the opportunity of presenting their cause before the people.

The picnic that was to have been held at China Springs yesterday afternoon was postponed indefinitely. The reason for this was that many of the farmers were so busy with the crops and other farm work that it would have been impossible for many of them to attend.

There were quite a number of people who left Waco Friday night and yesterday for Galveston and who will remain in the Island City over today. The excursions are not quite as large as formerly, owing to the rather brief time limit, but many go even as it is.

Sheriff S. S. Fleming was yesterday notified that G. P. Lyda, against whom a complaint has been filed charging him with disposing of mortgaged property, has been arrested in Wichita Falls and was in jail. Falls and was in jail. Sheriff Fleming will send one of his deputies after Lyda.

The candidates who are in the races for the various positions before the July primaries must pay their assessments not later than tomorrow, June 26. Payments should be made to Secretary Charles Braun in the Amicable building. Many have already paid their assessments, but there are some who have not done so.

The Bob Brown Wesley Bible class of Herring Avenue Methodist church will observe its second annual lawn party Tuesday evening, June 27, from 7 to 11 o'clock, on the lawn of Mr. Wortham, corner Fifteenth and Herring. Real ice cream or good watermelon will be served at a very reasonable price. Every one is cordially invited.

MONEY WILL NOT BUY THIS AUTO: IT TAKES COUPONS

Autoes have been auctioned off in Waco before and have been given in premiums in voting contests, but the citizens of Waco will soon have a chance to bid on an auto, and other valuable articles, at a sale where money is as useless as a heating stove on a hot day in Mexico.

Great interest is being aroused in the unique proposition, which is already an assured success. The names of firms backing the auction are all that Wacoans need to prove that it is something well worth while. They are: the Famous Dry Goods company, Adams & Allcorn Piano company, Waco Auto Supply company, Herrick Hardware company, Sam Freund & Co. cigar stores and the Orpheum theatre.

All the bidding will be done by coupons. All articles will be sold to the highest bidders at the close of the sale, which starts August 15 and ends September 16. A five passenger baby grand Chevrolet automobile, now on exhibit in front of the Orpheum, is the headliner in the articles to be auctioned off. But there are many others of considerable value, and here they are: One player piano, stool and scarf; one diamond ring; one fifteen-jewel, gold-filled watch bracelet (American Beauty); two gold filled watch blacelets; one 0-size Premier gold filled watch; one Victory, seven jewel watch; one diamond set la valliere; one cameo set la valliere.

This is not a voting contest. It is a bona fide auction sale, with coupons being offered instead of dollars and cents. How will you get the coupons? Ask any of the dealers mentioned above. There are numerous coupons that come with various articles of every day use that can be exchanged at the Famous for coupon bonds, to be used at the auction.

Among the coupons that may be exchanged at the Famous, 100 coupons getting a 1000 coupon bond, are the following:

Octagon soap coupons.
Octagon powder coupons.
Babbitt's soap coupons.
Star soap coupons.
Clairrette soap coupons.
United Profit Sharing coupons.
All tobacco coupons of any value, such as:
Liggett & Myres.
American Tobacco Co.
P. Lorrilard Tobacco Co.
Scotten Dillon.
Clark & Scott Tobacco Co.
Clark and Snoyer Tobacco Co.
Colling Cigar certificates.
Eagle Tobacco Co. tin tags.
John Weisart Tobacco Co.
I. Lewis Tobacco Co. vouchers.
Lovell & Buffington Tobacco Co.
Subrug coupons.
United Cigar Stores certificates.
Universal mileage coupons.

Coupons packed by manufacturers in chocolate and cocoa, chewing gum, breakfast foods and cereals, coffee, Arbuckle, etc., condensed milk, rice, flour, mince meat, macaroni, matches or any other coupon of any value.

Admissions to the Orpheum are worth coupons. Merchandise cards will be sold on which 1000 coupons will be given for a $5 card and 3000 for a $10 card. The Waco Auto Supply company allows a discount on all cards or books sold. Adams & Allcorn will issue coupons on any amount, paid in cash, on a piano. Sam Freund & Co. will issue coupons on soda water books. In each sack of Texas-Maid flour, at Stubblefield's, will be found a coupon bond, also in each sack of Bosque-Maid flour at Luckett, Kraft & Clay and in Softed Snow flour at any grocery store in Waco.

Now is the time to get busy. The highest bidder wins out and at the last minute, cash won't help. It will take the coupons to secure any one of the valuable articles that will be auctioned off.

Young Men, Eager for Service Below Border, Crowd Recnuiting Stations, While Guardsmen Prepare

These pictures, which were taken at Youngstown, Ohio, this week, might have been taken in any one of a hundred cities throughout the country. Everywhere is seen the greatest activity in national guard circles. Young men, eager for service below the border, are crowding the guard recruiting stations, while the present members of the guard are busy inspecting arms and making all preparations for active service at or below the border.

Did You See The Wounded?

Doubtless he will not die, as the nurse in charge of the poor wounded man is paying particular attention to him and never for an instant leaving his bedside. She has been there for several days without a minute's leave of absence, and not once has she closed her eyes for fear that he will want something or some little attention. She is an "angel of the Red Cross," as the soldiers often call them.

One of the most interesting and timely show windows ever seen in Waco is one that was arranged a few days ago in Goldstein-Migel's corner window.

The subject is a Red Cross nurse room, with the complete equipment of bandages, medicine, nurse in full attire, cots and the general equipment of a nurse room. The most important thing about a nurse room is not missing, for there on the cot is a realistic wounded hero of some great battle. It is easy to conjecture, in looking at the half-dying man that he was wounded while charging the enemy's trench—probably single-handed, the rest of the company having fallen before reaching the goal.

The window is attracting much attention and a crowd is ever present watching the faithfulness of the nurse. In view of the recent appeals of the local chapter of the Red Cross, and the probability of their soon being engaged in their work of mercy the fully equipped window is of public interest.

Compulsory Education in Central African Village

Chief Compels All Children to Attend—School Numbers Four Hundred in Village of One Thousand—Many Grown-Ups Eager to Learn—Precocious African Boy—Schools an Evangelistic Agency.

By Southern Missionary News Bureau.

Compulsory school attendance in a central African village, introduced and enforced by the chief, is the surprising news that comes from Mutoto, on the upper Congo. Rev. F. R. Cleveland, a Southern Presbyterian missionary, located at Mutoto, tells the story in a recent letter:

"One of the most interesting features of our work here is the school system. Compulsory education was introduced through the influence of the chief, who is an elder in our church. The system has been running for a year, and is a great success.

"While the population of the village is not more than a thousand, the average attendance upon the school has been about four hundred. This means, of course, that many of the men and women attend, though only the children are obliged to come. The daily average of women alone has been over fifty. Many come with their babies, and hold them in their arms while they study. The school is taught by natives, though one of the missionaries superintends it, and examines those ready to pass into higher classes. The regular attendance of the older ones shows how eager they are to hear the wisdom of the 'man of God.'

"While some of the older people are slow at learning, it is amazing how rapidly the children learn. The ease with which they memorize would surprize our boys and girls at home, and perhaps put some to shame. An example is a little boy whom we call 'Lungenyi,' which means 'wisdom.' He is surely a modern Solomon. He is not more than seven or eight years old and has been in school only about eighteen months. He entered the A, B, C class, but before the first term was over he was reading the parables of the Bible. The first quarter of the second term he was advanced three times, and is now in the Bible class with the evangelists. There is nothing in the Buluba language that he can not read. He is also a good speller and has made a fair beginning in arithmetic. A number of others have advanced almost as rapidly.

"Our mission schools are a great means to an end in reaching the boys and girls for Christ. The largest per cent of our converts are first reached by the school."

"WHOM YE IGNORANTLY WORSHIP."

Mr. J. A. Slimmon, a missionary in Honan, China, writes:

"One day while I was talking to the people about 'Our Father which art in heaven,' an old lady came in and sat down nearby, listening attentively. After the others were gone, she said, 'I am an old woman and can talk to you freely. The God you have been speaking of is the one I have worshiped all my life. I am now sixty-seven years old. At twenty my mother's eyesight began to fail, so I prayer: "O God, You who are so powerful and wonderful, if You will make my mother's eyes well I will offer You a meat offering and worship You all my life." I told Him how good my mother had been to me. Then my mother's eyes got better, but presently they were worse. Then I said: "O God, if You will really make my mother's eyes well, I will offer a sacrifice of my own flesh." She got well and kept my promise and cut a piece of flesh off my arm and offered it up.' The dear lady showed me a great scar on her left arm where twenty-six years ago she had offered herself a sacrifice to 'Our Father.'

"'Now,' she said, 'I want you to teach me this prayer (the Lord's prayer) that I may use it daily.' Next day she brought a little granddaughter, saying: 'I am too old to remember much, but if you will teach this little girl, she will teach it to me after you are gone.'

"I felt I could say as Paul at Athens: 'Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, Him declare I unto you.'"

HOW THEY TEACH GRAMMAR IN ASSAM.

In the schools of the Welsh Presbyterians in the Khasia Hills, Assam, religious instruction gets itself imparted in all the classes. Thus in the grammar exercises the word taken for conjugation is "sin." "I sin, you sin, we all sin. Sin no more!" Some years ago there was an earthquake in these hills and the people thought Christ was coming. The believers brought out their musical instruments and sang hymns of praise. The heathen on the other hand, were in the bazaars fearful of Christ and saturating themselves with drink in order to be unconscious when He should appear.

HOW THE CHILDREN MAY HELP.

Rev. R. T. Coldt, a Southern Presbyterian missionary at Soonchun, Korea, writes of his work among Oriental children and suggests a way by which American children may help—namely, by sending Bible picture cards for distribution to the little folks beyond the sea. He says:

"Korean children have little in their lives to beautify them and few of them have even one tiny picture in their homes. Hence we have used up thousands of Bible cards up to now and can still use them. As I go from church to church, I can use to advantage thousands of cards such as you throw away."

Mr. Edwards of the American board mission among the Marathis in India announces the conversion of a prominent guru, or Hindu religious leader, who has charge of eight-four villages and who will therefore exert a powerful influence for the evangelizing of these villages.

METHODIST WOMEN'S CAMPAIGN BRINGS MANY NEW MEMBERS

Friday's whirlwind campaign by the women of the Methodist churches for increased membership in the Auxiliary netted seventy-seven new names to the rolls of the churches. Fifth street Methodist church secured ten adults, but did not cover the entire city in their campaign, so will devote one day this week to finishing the work. After the work is completed there will be a reception on the lawn of the church.

Elm street Methodist church did not complete their plans for the campaign last week but will wage an active one this week. Herring avenue Methodist church accepted thirteen new adult members, sixteen young ladies, eighteen juniors and two babies. After Friday's campaign there was an entertainment at the church at which there was an interesting tableaux demonstration of the work that is being done by the Auxiliary. By special reuqest it will be given again tonight at the church at 8:30. The Morris street Methodist church secured fifteen adults and after the campaign had a reception on the church lawn. The Clay street Methodist church secured four new members and will probably devote Tuesday to the follow up of the campaign, and will have a lawn party to celebrate the final wind-up of the work Wednesday night at 8:30.

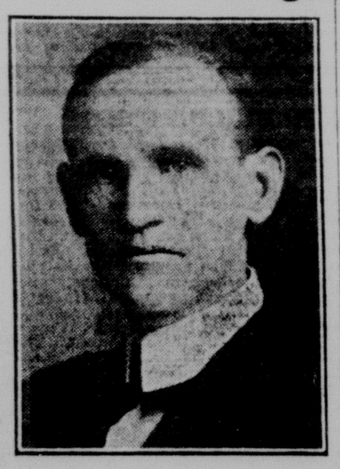

The result of the campaign here will be sent to the conference. This is part of a movement that extends over the entire south, and although the dates are different, all Methodist churches will wage the same kind of a campaign sometime this summer.

Some Reasons Why You Should Vote For

E. C. STREET

For

District Judge

1. He is a man against whom no one has aught to say.
2. All who have known him well speak his praise.
3. He is well educated, having graduated from two of the leading Universities of the South—the University of Alabama, in which state he was born and reared; also Vanderbilt University at Nashville, Tenn., in which state he resided several years.
4. He is well qualified for the position he seeks, having been in the active practice of law in Waco for the past fifteen years.
5. He has had experience and training in the position he seks, having served in the district courts of McLennan county more often than any other candidate for this position.
6. His proficiency is attested by the record he has made as Judge of the courts of McLennan county, the Court of Civil Appeals never having reversed a cause tried before Judge Street.
7. His record as Assistant County Attorney, under Honorable O. H. Cross, was one of efficiency, industry and accommodation.
8. Finally, he is a friend of the masses of the people of McLennan county. Born and reared in a community where industry and frugality prevailed, he is thoroughly democratic and in sympathy with the rural resident and any movement looking to the improvement of the conditions under which he lives.

National Tractor Demonstration Comes Next Month

Dallas, Tex., June 24.—Replies coming in to W. I. Bogardus, chairman of the exhibits committee, in response to a form letter sent out, indicate great interest on the part of tractor manufacturers and accessory dealers in the national tractor demonstration to be held at Dallas July 18 to 21. This letter was sent for the purpose of ascertaining as nearly as possible, the exact number of tractors to be here. Replies received indicate that the original estimate of 2000 is none too large. Replies received from a small portion of the exhibitors give a total of 122 tractors, with at least two-thirds yet to be heard from.

Each concern will have a car load, which means from three to five tractors, depending upon the size. Each concern will have from three to nine, and possibly a dozen tractors, in demonstration work or on exhibition, this depending on the number of sizes and types made by each company. These tractors will be used in demonstration work in part, while some will be in tents strictly on exhibition, and still others will be used in private demonstrations. Every size of tractor will be here, which means that tractors will be shown with a five h.-p. capacity, at the drawbar, up to forty h.-p. at the drawbar, and possibly some even larger.

Machinery is already coming in for the tractor demonstration. One company has three cars already here waiting for the time to put them on the field. Others have one or more cars. Some tractors are on the field or adjacent to the demonstration site. Replies from plow manufacturers indicate that practically every celebrated maker will have various sizes and types of his output on exhibition.

Special rates on all railroads have been secured.

The concessions committee has been equally as busy with as good results. Many concessions have been let, including ice cream, soft drinks, official photographer, oil, spark plugs, etc.

Big Agreed Judgment Against the Katy

An agreed judgment for $12,000 in favor of the plaintiff was entered in the Ninsteenth district court yesterday when the $15,000 damage suit of George Pluto against the Katy was filed. Mr. Pluto sought damages for himself and minor children for the killing of his wife and a child by a Katy train near West, April 19, last.

The Plutos were in an auto and were crossing the track when a train struck the car, killing Mrs. Pluto and one of the children. Mr. Pluto and the other five children, all of whom were in the car, were also injured.

BOYS AT PHARR FACE WAR WITH COURAGE

WOULD LIKE TO GIVE THE "WOULD-BE'S" CHANCE TO FIGHT.

The Soldiers Love Their Officers and Would Follow Them Anywhere.

The following letter was received from Edgar Wemple of company K, Second infantry, at Pharr, Texas, by his father:

Dear Father and Mother: Letter received and glad to hear that all are well. I am well and happy as can be.

I am getting used to army life now and if I come out O. K. I certainly will have learned something worth while. The drilling they give us is sure something fierce. That is what we need to make soldiers out of us.

We have plenty to eat but of course it is not like mama's cooking. Until we got settled the grub was not so good but now everything is fine. The people here at Pharr are certainly nice to us boys

With due respect to Mr. Kelly, if he had run across some of the snakes that we have, he would say, I seen 'em. They have fine crops here and some of the Mexicans have been very nice to us in giving us water melons, etc. Some of them are a little sulky, but as a whole they are nice.

Dad, if we had you here to drill for a few days, you could eat a dead mule stuffed with fire crackers. I wish I could get to see dear little Mammy, so I could pick her up and paddle her once in awhile like I used to. I believe I would get over my homesickness. We have just got orders to pack up everything and be ready to move at a moment's notice. We are ordered to sleep with our clothes on tonight. We have been issued 350 shells each. The boys are all happy and singing. You would think that there was a Methodist camp meeting going on. Dad don't worry about me. I will take care of myself. From what Mamy has told me about the Mexicans, I never let one pass me without watching both ways. We have one of the best if not the best captain in the whole army. He sure is good to his men and they love him. Do not think I am speaking disparagingly of the others, for they are as fine a lot of men as ever wore the U. S. uniform. I do not think there is any two captains in the U. S. army that are thought more of by their men than Captains Wright and Torrence. When they give the order to shoulder arms, forward march, we will follow them and they will look out for us. We might flinch under the first fire but when we start, Mexicans look out!

The Morning News and Times-Herald people are princes. They send each squad a paper.

Hello to all my friends and also to every man, woman and child in dear old Waco. Tell them to think of the boys every night in their prayers.

If we go to war, the Waco boys are going to do their part. The chances are that there will be a good many of us that will not come back Then the Waco people can speak with pride about the boys of companies K and G. I wish we had some of the would-bes here that called us tin soldiers. We would like to put them in front and tickle them with a bayonet once in awhile.

Well, dad, I must close, so good bye; with love to both,

EDGAR WEMPLE,
Co. K, 2nd Infantry,
Pharr, Texas.

PIMPLY TETTER ON HANDS AND FEET

Would Itch and Burn So Badly Could Not Sleep. Dared Not Put Hands in Water. Ashamed of Them.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I was troubled with tetter. It first began by very small bumps or pimples coming on my hands and feet. Large pimples would form and become awfully sore. I could not sleep at night the pimples would itch and burn so badly. I dared not put my hands in water for they would burn and itch so. I was ashamed to let any one see my hands they were so rough and sore, and I could not wear any clothing on the affected parts.

"I finally saw a Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement and I got a large sized box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Soap and in two months my hands and feet were perfectly healed." (Signed) J. B. Dickerson, Brookhaven, Miss., July 8, 1915.

FARNSWORTH TELLS OF BORDER TROUBLES

Troops Not Engaged in Actual Hostilities Are Turned Loose on the Community.

Dallas, Tex., June 24.—Vice President J. E. Farnsworth of the Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone company at Dallas today gave out an interview on border conditions in which he declares the fundamental cause of the trouble to be the inability to extend authority and responsible governmental organization in Mexico beyond the range of quick communication.

During the entire progress of the war in Mexico, and particularly since the raids along the Rio Grande commenced, Mr. Farnsworth has been in almost constant contact with the section of Texas which has suffered most. Reports to him cover all phases of the situation and have been made in connection with the effort to keep the wire system on the United States side of the river intact. Representatives of the Southwestern company have investigated conditions thoroughly and have even been in consultation with Mexican authorities and irregular leaders.

"The trouble now being experienced between Brownsville and Eagle Pass has many different phases intricate in their application, but fundamentally the condition arises from the fact that Mexican authorities and responsible military leaders of that country find it almost impossible to extend their authority beyond the range of their vision," says Mr. Farnsworth.

"Because of European competition the cost of war is going up. Mexico has been stripped and so, because of the exceptional problems of the commissariat, troops not engaged in actual hostilities are necessarily turned loose on the country to find their own sustenance.

"Once they are out of the cities, away from their responsible leaders they are likely to become irregulars. This is particularly true since it has become so hard for soldiers to subsist upon what they find in their own land and that across the river is rich and prosperous. Since there is no way of communicating with these soldiers, scattered in small bands to live off the country, except by courier, the leaders who appreciate the situation, are practically without control. There can be no reliable system of daily reports upon which to have information as to the immediate whereabouts of the men.

"There can be no doubt that many of the raiders are Mexican soldiers but their officers can not be held directly responsible by those who appreciate the conditions. Everything possible is being done to keep them in check but Mexico, especially that portion above Matamoras, is devoid of telephone lines and has but one frail telegraph wire.

"Mexican soldiers are out of touch, beyond the range of responsible authority when they are out of reach by wire. They can engage in short raids without being discovered by their high officers. Hunger spurs them on. Reports spread by Mexicans returning to their own country from the United States inflame them against this country. Their prejudices are played upon and they are made the dupes of agents who have personal reasons for fomenting trouble if they can.

"From these facts it will be seen that the lack of the methods of quick communication, particularly of telephone service, makes the administration of governmental functions almost impossible in Mexico. This is in direct contrast to the condition on this side of the river where the net work of telephone lines has proved the main protection for settlers and the most potent influence to assist the armed forces of the United States in their campaign to prevent war.

"In this country, as soon as a band of raiders is discovered, the word is flashed ahead. Assistance is rushed to exposed points. Lives and property are saved.

"The situation has been altogether critical, more so than many people have been willing to believe. Almost as many soldiers of the United States have met death in the defense of their own country as fell in the occupation of Vera Cruz. There have been times, indeed, when nothing less than the exercise of a high quality of judgment has saved the situation, but through it all the wire system has been kept practically intact, rendering its constant and unfailing service to those who were responsible for developments, to residents whose lives were endangered and to the whole country as it has been made possible to avoid complications of a far-reaching nature.

"In order to do this men representing the telephone company have more than once risked their lives. Linemen and other employes have ventured far into the brush at night alone, upon their difficult missions.

"The dependence placed upon these wires, and the importance attached to the maintenance of the service only accentuates the contrast which exists on two sides of a river; between a land where such conditions exist as to make violence and warfare a part of the common experience, and that where every effort is to save and the army is fighting to maintain the peace.

Large Packages Are to Be Delivered by Parcel Postmen

Parcel post packages in the future will be delivered by carriers and will, under no circumstances, be given out at the windows at the postoffice, according to a new rule made yesterday by Postmaster C. B. McCollum. While this change will cost the department considerable in money, and a great deal of extra work and trouble, it will save the citizens from carrying the often heavy bundles home from the postoffice.

It is desired that all understand the fact that no parcel post packages will be given out at the office, as they will be delivered. While they will not be delivered as rapidly as regular mail, the service will be as quick as it is possible under the present system. There are many articles that are sent by mail that are of a bulky nature, and for the convenience of the public all these will be delivered by parcel postmen or carriers. The greatest aid that the public can give to the department in the establishment of the new system is not to go to the windows and ask for the larger packages, as that will be of no avail, but on the other hand will take considerable time.

It was stated yesterday that if the parcel post business increases during the coming year as it has done in the past it will be necessary to enlarge the force to handle the increased mail.

METHODIST WOMEN'S CAMPAIGN BRINGS MANY NEW MEMBERS

Friday's whirlwind campaign by the women of the Methodist churches for increased membership in the Auxiliary netted seventy-seven new names to the rolls of the churches. Fifth street Methodist church secured ten adults, but did not cover the entire city in their campaign, so will devote one day this week to finishing the work. After the work is completed there will be a reception on the lawn of the church.

Elm street Methodist church did not complete their plans for the campaign last week but will wage an active one this week. Herring avenue Methodist church accepted thirteen new adult members, sixteen young ladies, eighteen juniors and two babies. After Friday's campaign there was an entertainment at the church at which there was an interesting tableaux demonstration of the work that is being done by the Auxiliary. By special request it will be given again tonight at the church at 8:30. The Morris street Methodist church secured fifteen adults and after the campaign had a reception on the church lawn. The Clay street Methodist church secured four new members and will probably devote Tuesday to the follow up of the campaign, and will have a lawn party to celebrate the final wind-up of the work Wednesday night at 8:30.

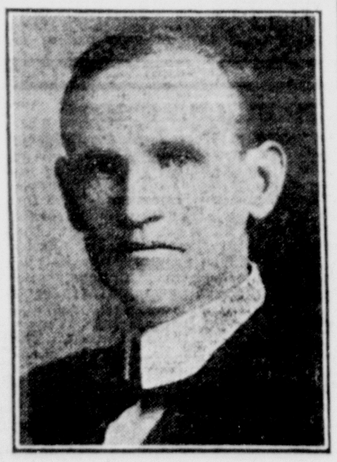

The result of the campaign here will be sent to the conference. This is part of a movement that extends over the entire south, and although the dates are different, all Methodist churches will wage the same kind of a campaign sometime this summer.

National Tractor Demonstration Comes Next Month

Dallas, Tex., June 24.—Replies coming in to W. I. Bogardus, chairman of the exhibits committee, in response to a form letter sent out, indicate great interest on the part of tractor manufacturers and accessory dealers in the national tractor demonstration to be held at Dallas July 18 to 21. This letter was sent for the purpose of ascertaining as nearly as possible, the exact number of tractors to be here. Replies received indicate that the original estimate of 2000 is none too large. Replies received from a small portion of the exhibitors give a total of 122 tractors, with at least two-thirds yet to be heard from.

Each concern will have a car load, which means from three to five tractors, depending upon the size. Each concern will have from three to nine, and possibly a dozen tractors, in demonstration work or on exhibition, this depending on the number of sizes and types made by each company. These tractors will be used in demonstration work in part, while some will be in tents strictly on exhibition, and still others will be used in private demonstrations. FARNSWORTH TELLS OF BORDER TROUBLES

Dallas, Tex., June 24.—Vice President J. E. Some Advice on Planning Your Yards and Grounds by Expert Horticulturist

Some of the pertinent remarks made by W. Hensel, the judge of the Rotary gardens, follow:

"Have you an ordinance requiring mufflers on the numerous autos of the city?

"Have you a rigid dog ordinance and is it enforced?

"Have you made a campaign against the unsightly fence? The fence, you know, is a relic of barbarism and has no excuse for existing. Many of your lovely homes are marred by their fences and no matter how well kept a fence is the yard is prettier without it.

"At this place the fence at the front and sides is banked by a lovely growth of shrubs and flowers first and then linked to the yard, so to speak, by a mass of low bloom and so long as we must have the fence this is the way to treat it.

"At this place you notice the beds are very much out of scale. Scale is something very few people take into consideration, and is the relative proportion of lot and house and should always be considered. The neatness and plan of the place are almost perfect, but the grading suffers for lack of harmony of scale.

"Here you notice the color of the house is warm and with this profusion of red flowers the heat seems intensified. If these blooms were of a cool color the grade on harmony would be higher.

"Here is a place that is as nearly perfect as any I have seen and only a trained eye would see the slight defect. The hydrant in the centr of the lawn is unboxed and has made a slight depression in the otherwise perfect surface.

"The parkings in the north are always kept in grass and at the College we are taught that grass is the perfect setting, but with our warm skies and beautiful southern background the parkings are beautiful in flowers and there they are planted in the low-growing varieties and are of the same height and the effect is splendid.

"At this place you see the parkings are most harmonious with scarlet and white verbena and the general harmony with the color of the house gives a very high grading.

"This place, where the red cannas are banked against the cross fence and then linked to the yard with the white daisies, the effect is beautiful.

"Where the walk up to the front is bordered with a narrow bed it is always best to have low growing flowers that bloom profusely and where there is a space for flowers or grass in the center of a walk, as at this place, if flowers are used they should be of a low growth.

"Here I must give a lower grade because of too much crowding in the beds.

"At this place the grading will suffer because of the heavy hedge around such a small yard, which is made to look smaller because of the fence-like hedge."

RACES AT COTTON PALACE PARK ON FOURTH OF JULY

When the Fourth of July races are held at the Cotton Palace park, the visitors will be given the most liberal treatment. It is not to be a money-making affair in any sense of the word and the only admission fee is to be 50 cents to cover the expenses of the meet and to provide the purses.

The grand stand is to be free.

Children between 8 and 12 years will be charged 25 cents ,and children under 8 years will be free.

This is the plan announced by "Bob" Nichols who was up from Mart yesterday to confer with a number of local racing enthusiasts who are interested in the meet that is to be arranged for and who are giving Mr. Nichols their moral and active support in the arrangements.

This will be the only big affair for the Fourth of July in this vicinity. Excursion rates are provided for on all railroads and on all interurbans and the people from nearby towns can come and get the opportunity to enjoy an afternoon of sport.

There will be two harness races and three running events. Some of the horses that will enter are already here and Mr. Nichols have been advised by owners in this part of the state that they are to attend and put their horses in the several events. He has sent letters to every horse owner in this part of the state and expects answers during the next few days.

ELABORATE PROGRAM FOR AD CONVENTION

Philadelphia, June 24.—Between 8000 and 10,000 delegates are gathered here tonight for the opening tomorrow of the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, at which purveyors of nearly a billion dollars a year in advertising will exchange ideas in business and salesmanship.

The program for the convention has been divided into thirty departments, whose sessions will continue for four days. Various buildings of the University of Pennsylvania have been reserved for these departmental meetings, and in addition there will be two mass meetings for all the delegates in the commercial museum. The first of these tomorrow afternoon, will be addressed by Adolph S. Ochs, of the New York Times, Cyrus H. K. Curtis, of the Curtis Publishing company, Philadelphia; R. Goodwin Rhett, president of the National Chamber of Commerce, and N. C. Kingsbury, vice president of the Postal Telegraph company.

Thursday afternoon the second mass meeting will be held when the delegates will sum up the work of the convention. At this session officers will be elected and the city for next year's convention will be chosen.

Elaborate preparations have been made for the convention, which leading delegates say will rank as the most important gathering of its kind in the history of the world. Since early last fall, an organized campaign of publicity has been carried on throughout the country, more than half a million dollars having been spent in newspaper billboards, placards and posters calling attention to the sessions.

While this campaign of national publicity was going on, the Poor Richard club kept the convention before the Philadelphia public. Business men of the city contributed $38,000 to the convention fund while the city appropriated $25,000 more for the entertainment of the delegates.

Between sessions the Poor Richard club, members of which will act as hosts for the visitors, will stage a series of pageants. The first will be held Monday night, in the form of a monster parade on Broad street, in which floats representing various periods of the country's development will be seen. One division will illustrate the history of advertising in America. In this will appear "Benjamin Franklin," printing his Pennsylvana Gazette. The Baldwin Locomotive works will have in line two locomotives ,one, "Old Ironsides," built in 1832 by Mathias Baldwin, and the other the latest type turned out of the factory. The J. G. Brill Car works will show a miniature plant turning out a tiny trolley car every few minutes.

Tuesday night a military and naval display will be staged on Franklin field and on Thursday night a pageant will be held on the Schuylkill river, with a procession of floats and a big display of fireworks. Every day during the convention aeronauts will make flights over the city in dirigible balloons and band concerts will be held twice a day on the university campus.

The delegates will visit the Philadelphia navy yard on Tuesday afternoon, for the first public inspection of the new dreadnaugh Pennsylvania, recently completed at Newport News. The advertising men will be the first visitors to be aboard the new man-o'-war. On Friday, the day after the convention closes, the delegates will go to Atlantic City as the guests of the Poor Richard club.

Many women accompanied the visitors who arrived today and a program of entertainment is provided for them. There will be a reception at one of the leading hotels on Monday, followed by a luncheon with the delegates at the University of Pennsylvania. Tuesday the women will visit the city's big stores and shops and the Philadelphia navy yard. On Wednesday they will be guests of the Curtis Publishing company at luncheon in the company's plant and on Thursday they will visit Valley Forge. Out of town clubs will provide cabarets at the hotels each night.

ELABORATE PROGRAM FOR AD CONVENTION

Philadelphia, June 24.—Between 8000 and 10,000 delegates are gathered here tonight for the opening tomorrow of the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, at which purveyors of nearly a billion dollars a year in advertising will exchange ideas in business and salesmanship.

The program for the convention has been divided into thirty departments, whose sessions will continue for four days. Various buildings of the University of Pennsylvania have been reserved for these departmental meetings, and in addition there will be two mass meetings for all the delegates in the commercial museum. The first of these tomorrow afternoon, will be addressed by Adolph S. Ochs, of the New York Times, Cyrus H. K. Curtis, of the Curtis Publishing company, Philadelphia; R. Goodwin Rhett, president of the National Chamber of Commerce, and N. C. Kingsbury, vice president of the Postal Telegraph company.

Thursday afternoon the second mass meeting will be held when the delegates will sum up the work of the convention. At this session officers will be elected and the city for next year's convention will be chosen.

Elaborate preparations have been made for the convention, which leading delegates say will rank as the most important gathering of its kind in the history of the world. Since early last fall, an organized campaign of publicity has been carried on throughout the country, more than half a million dollars having been spent in newspaper billboards, placards and posters calling attention to the sessions.

While this campaign of national publicity was going on, the Poor Richard club kept the convention before the Philadelphia public. Business men of the city contributed $38,000 to the convention fund while the city appropriated $25,000 more for the entertainment of the delegates.

Between sessions the Poor Richard club, members of which will act as hosts for the visitors, will stage a series of pageants. The first will be held Monday night, in the form of a monster parade on Broad street, in which floats representing various periods of the country's development will be seen. One division will illustrate the history of advertising in America. In this will appear "Benjamin Franklin," printing his Pennsylvana Gazette. The Baldwin Locomotive works will have in line two locomotives ,one, "Old Ironsides," built in 1832 by Mathias Baldwin, and the other the latest type turned out of the factory. The J. G. Brill Car works will show a miniature plant turning out a tiny trolley car every few minutes.

Tuesday night a military and naval display will be staged on Franklin field and on Thursday night a pageant will be held on the Schuylkill river, with a procession of floats and a big display of fireworks. Every day during the convention aeronauts will make flights over the city in dirigible balloons and band concerts will be held twice a day on the university campus.

The delegates will visit the Philadelphia navy yard on Tuesday afternoon, for the first public inspection of the new dreadnaugh Pennsylvania, recently completed at Newport News. The advertising men will be the first visitors to be aboard the new man-o'-war. On Friday, the day after the convention closes, the delegates will go to Atlantic City as the guests of the Poor Richard club.

Many women accompanied the visitors who arrived today and a program of entertainment is provided for them. There will be a reception at one of the leading hotels on Monday, followed by a luncheon with the delegates at the University of Pennsylvania. Tuesday the women will visit the city's big stores and shops and the Philadelphia navy yard. On Wednesday they will be guests of the Curtis Publishing company at luncheon in the company's plant and on Thursday they will visit Valley Forge. Out of town clubs will provide cabarets at the hotels each night.

NEWT WILLIAMS TALKS ON ROBERTSON LAW

WACO LEGISLATOR DECLARES PRESENT INSURANCE STATUTE ALL RIGHT.

Foreign Companies Back of Gibson Bill Is Claimed—Loan Money in Texas.

An address of much interest, and containing much food for thought, was delivered yesterday at 12:15 at the meeting of the Lawyers' Lunch club at the Raleigh hotel by Hon. Newt. B. Williams on the Robertson insurance law, and the address was warmly commended by those who took the same view as Mr. Williams, and was admitted by those who did not agree with him altogether to have been a very searching presentation of his side of the case.

The address was too lengthy to present in detail, but in opening his remarks Mr. Williams said, dealing with the Robertson insurance law and the Gibson bill:

"I have selected for my subject the Robertson insurance law vs. the Gibson bill, for several reasons.

"1. Because it affords an opportunity for me to report to a representative body of this county my reasons for so strenuously opposing the repeal of the Robertson law as your representative;

"2. Because you are going to be called upon as voters of this county and as lawyers in this county to help determine in the July primaries whether that law shall remain on our statute books.

"3. Because I believe that it is the best piece of insurance legislation and of more benefit to the people of Texas than any other one act of the legislature of the last twenty-five years, and I further believe it would be an absolute crime against the best interests of the people of this state to repeal this law.

"The law was prepared and introduced in the legislature by James H. Robertson of Austin, in 1907. The principal feature of the law is a requirement that foreign insurance companies writing insurance in Texas shall invest 75 per cent of the Texas reserve in Texas securities. The reserve on Texas policies amounts to about 40 per cent of the premiums paid on Texas policies. Hence the law requires that about $40 out of every $100 that Texas people pay for life protection is required to be invested in Texas securities subject to the laws of this state and within the reach of the courts of this state.

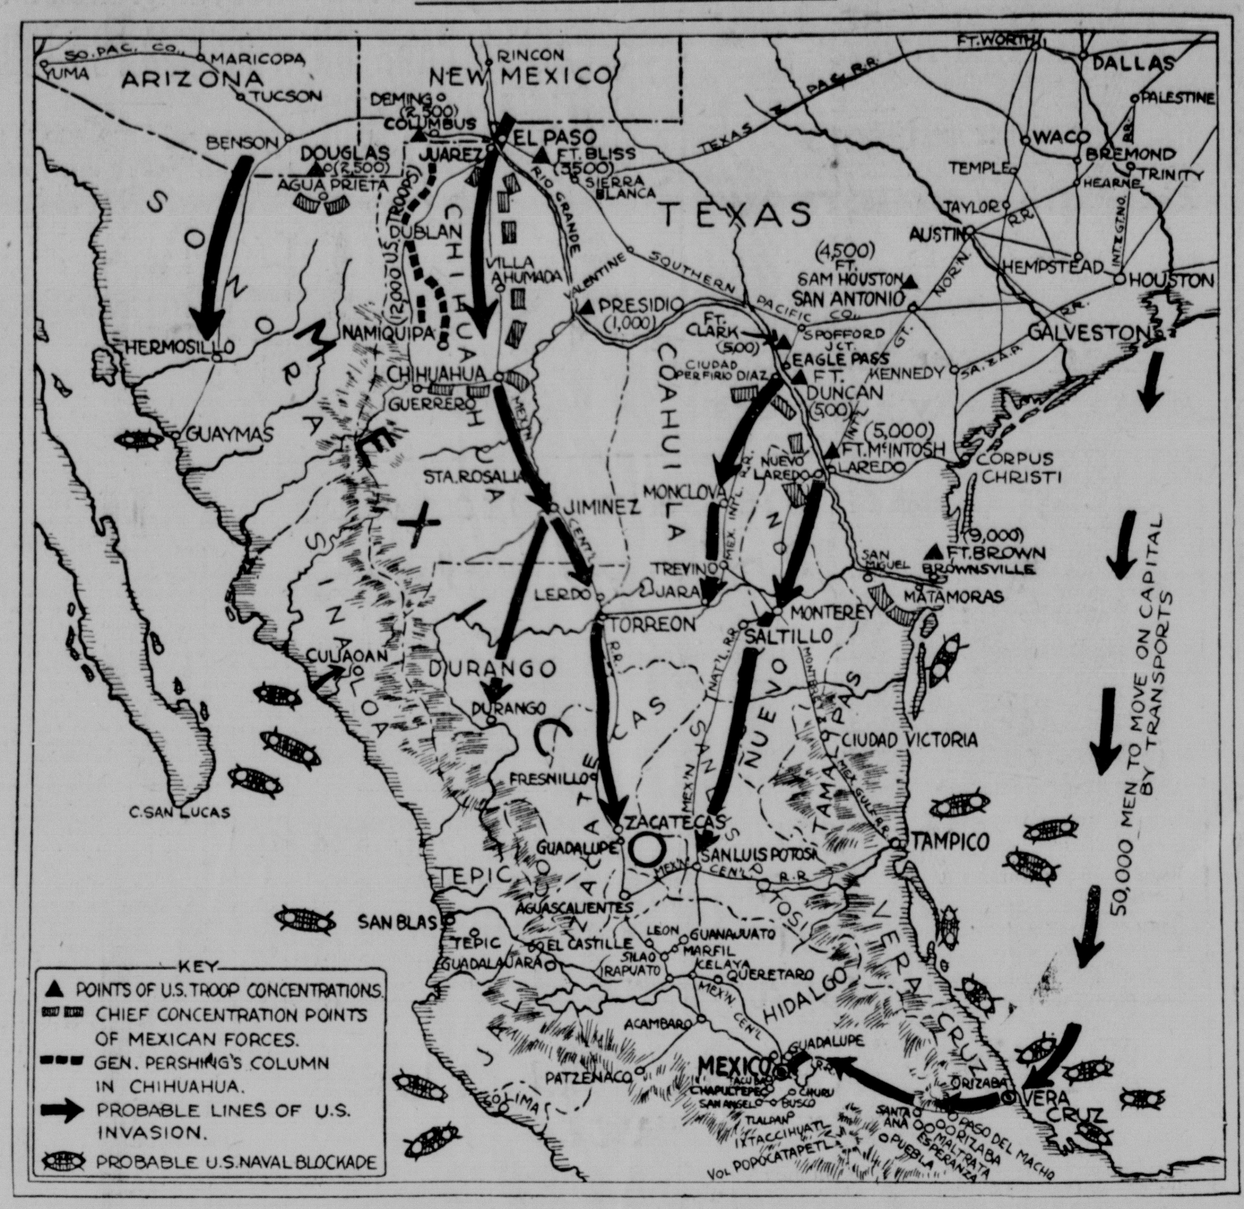

"When the law was enacted twenty-one foreign insurance companies then writing business in Texas left the state; since that time two have returned. The insurance companies when they left the state said they would have Texas on her knees begging them to return within two years. They thought they were big enough and strong enough to so embarrass the financial institutions of Texas and that we would have to repeal the law. By their action they did force a stringency in the money of this state and caused us to pass through a financial crisis. But Texas was stronger than they figured, and she has overcome the stringency and more than that proven that the law was beneficial and wholesome for the people of this state. These insurance companies sought to give us the death blow, but they now see that we have sown the seed that is likely to bring the money trust in New York the death blow, and therefore they are knocking at the doors of Texas and asking in every conceivable way to get Texas to repeal the law which bids fair to be so detrimental to their high finances in New York. They say they want to come back, but they cannot come back under the Robertson law. We say that we are willing for them to come back, but we want them to come back on equal terms with those companies who remained here and paid the taxes and complied with the laws of this state. We want them to come back on an equal basis with the insurance companies of Texas who have been builded up and become giant Texas corporations and complied with Texas laws since these other companies left.

"There is no reason why they can not come back now, and the argument that they cannot is false and fallacious. The Robertson law specifically provides that any foreign insurance company not writing insurance in Texas can keep agents in Texas for the purpose of collecting their premiums and making investments. Their pretensions that they want to come back and lend money in Texas, but that they cannot and that it is necessary to repeal the Robertson law for them to come back, is absolutely without foundation. Their pretensions that they cannot lend money in Texas without writing insurance in Texas, and lend that money under the present laws of Texas, is absolutely without foundation. The truth is that there is today about $21,000,000 lent in Texas on Texas securities by foreign insurance companies not writing insurance in Texas.

"It is attempted to be made to appear that this insurance agitation for the repeal of the Robertson law originated with the people of Texas and that the people of Texas are the cause of this effort. I tell you that such is not the case, that the first specific move of this character was made in 1913 when the foreign insurance companies employed a noted lawyer and politician of this state and paid him a handsome fee to have presented to the legislature a bill in substance like the Gibson bill. The Gibson bill itself was not prepared by Mr. Gibson, but was prepared by Mr. Locke, attorney for the forign insurance companies.

"I tell you that in my opinion the foreign insurance companies paid not less than $100,000 in their effort before the last legislature to have the Robertson insurance law repealed. They paid none of this money improperly and made no improper or illegal effort to influence the representatives of this state, but they brought to bear every political pull, every tie of friendship or family, and every string they could possibly pull by people who were not members of the legislature, lobbying and persuading the members of the legislature to repeal this law. It is foolishness for them to pretend that there are men of note in Texas who would quit their business and spend months lobbying with the legislature of this state for the repeal of the law in which they were not interested, and this too without paying such lobbyists."

Specific information as to the dis-

General Pershing's troops are strung out along a three hundred mile line of communications running south from Columbus, N. M., the border base of the expedition. Bodies of American troops hold Bocagrande Colonia Diaz, Ascension, Corralitos, Colonia Dublan, Galeana, El Valle, Las Cruces and Namiquipa. Colonia Dublan is the main expedition base and Namiquipa the advance base and headquarters of General Pershing.

General Pershing's forces are entrenched at all of the stations and have well protected water supplies. At Colonia Dublan the camp is on the east bank of the Casas Grandes river and in addition to extensive entrenchments with communicating along the line of the Mexican Northwestern railroad, at every other station there are small garrisons of Carrancistas, and at Casas Grandes and trenches, the trops have erected permanent adobes from logs and wicker reeds and have also provided themselves with dugouts.

Camps of engineers have been doing much work on the roads, grades, bridges, etc. The road is reported in excellent condition. They have established stations all along the route from Columbus to Namiquipa. Near each station is a cleared space for aeroplane landings.

At every American border town from Nogales, Ariz., to El Paso are patrols of American troops. The same condition exists southeast from El Paso along the Southern Pacific railroad line as far as Del Rio, Texas, there being American troops, regulars and federalized Texas National Guardsmen posted at nearly every railroad station and guarding every steel structure bridge along the route.

Nueva Casas Grandes, where the railroad crosses the American line of opposition of Trevino's forces is difficult to obtain, but generally the Mexican troops are stationed as follows: Starting at Juarez, follow south the line of the Mexican National railroad as far as Chihuahua City, which is the main Mexican base for the operations around General Pershing's column, and that place is also the headquarters of Gen. Jacinto Trevino, commander-in-chief of the de facto government's troops in the north.

Directly east of El Valle, on the Mexican Central railroad at Villa Ahumada, is a heavy concentration of Mexican troops. This place commands and menaces the center of the American line of communications at El Valle, just thirty-five miles west. Trevino has between fourteen and seventeen thousand troops at Villa Ahumada.

Also from Juarez to the southwest erations. There is a Carranza garrison at Pearson, and several detachments of unknown strength sectioned along the southern part of this line as far south as Madera.

There are Mexican troops at Agua Prieta, Sonora, which is opposite Douglas, Ariz., and the railroad to the south to Nacozari. Carranza is reported to have between eight and ten thousand troops stationed along a line which is approximately on the boundary line between the Mexican states of Chihuahua, Sonora. These are under the command of Gen. Elias Plutarcus Calles.

At Juarez there is a Carranza garrison of 4,000 trops under command of Gen. Francisco Gonzales. Recruiting and fortifying are going on in Juarez now.

Gen. George Bell, Jr., commands the American troops across the river at El Paso and Fort Bliss, which number about 3,500.

WACO MOTOR FLUID COMPANY ORGANIZED TO OPERATE IN WACO

The Waco Motor Fluid company is the name selected by the Waco men who are connected with the new company which has been formed to manufacture the fluid which is expected to revolutionize the automobile business and to make itself felt in many ways if the expectations and hopes of the men heading the organization are borne out and realized.

At a meeting held on South Fourth street it was decided that the concern should incorporate, and this will be done, though no time will be lost in starting operations. Material for the beginning of operations has been ordered, machinery will be ordered this week, a building will be leased and operations commenced. Application for a charter will be made tomorrow or Tuesday, and in fact there will be no delay at any stage of the game.

The contract has been let for the beautiful and modern new residence of Harry Archenhold, which is to be built on Sixteenth near Barron. The contract was let to J. H. Montgomery, and building operations will start as soon as material can be assembled. Plans for the residence were drawn by Roy E. Lane. This will be a two-story residence, and one of the most beautiful in that entire section of the city.

CHESS TOURNEY INSPIRES POET

In the giddy whirl of modern Americanism the average business man looks upon the royal game of chess with indifference and even contempt. However, there is a goodly number of both men and women in every city and hamlet, many of whom are the most progressive and cultured citizens of these communities, who fully appreciate the superior merits of this most fascinating of all sports.

A chess tourney of unusual interest is now being waged at the Y. M. C. A. Two sections of ten men each are playing from 4 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon every day. The members of the two sections each play two games, the five winning the most games will play a series of games with the winners of the other section. So far the contest is very close between the best players, and the interest is growing daily.

The final contest will be one of the most interesting ever held in Waco, and no lover of the game can afford to miss it.

The Royal Game of Chess.

No greater joy can me afford
With a true and genial friend
Than sit beside a checkered board
And there an hour or two to spend
In the royal game of chess.

I love a glorious feast,
To sip a friendly cup,
All other joys increased;
But would gladly give them up
For a single game of chess.

I like to see my friend perplexed
By the move that I had made;
And perchance a little vexed
When, too late, he sees the plot I laid
In a brilliant game of chess.

To make a bold and fierce attack
On some vital piece or pond
And force my adversary back
Like a hare before the hound
Adds luster to a game of chess.

Yes, I know it monopolizes time
From some useful toil or book,
But such leisure is sublime
Compared to that of other folk,
For sad thoughts are drown'd in chess.

This life is but a checkered board
On which we play the games of skill and chance;
If each move me make can joy afford
Then let us work and play and sing and dance
In this royal game of life.

So join, good friends, in revelry,
And play and sing and dance,
Then hie away to some quiet spot with me
Each night and rainy day
And play the royal game of chess.

(From the Manchester Guardian.)

Miscellany has received a letter from the front for its readers. It gives one or two little stories of actual incidents which have occurred in the writer's regiment somewhere in France. All ranks, as soon as they land in France, are urgently warned against answering questions asked them by people whom they don't know—even though the questioner is apparently a British officer, for enemy agents have been found in the uniform of all ranks.

A certain conscientious young sub. was in the front line the other day when a major on the divisional staff came along and began questioning the boy, with a view to testing his alertness and efficiency.

"What trench is this?"

"I don't know, sir."

"What regiment is on your right?"

"I don't know, sir."

"How do your rations come up?"

"I don't know, sir.'

"Well, you don't seem to know much, young fellow, do you?"

"Excuse me, sir, but I don't know who you are."

CANADA CHURCHES JOIN HANDS.

(Manitoba Free Press.)

By the decisive vote of 406 to 88 the general assembly of the Presbyterian church has resolved to unite its forces with the Methodist and Congregational churches. The outcome of the vote was a triumph for a cause which marks a new era in the history of the Protestant churches in Canada, and which, viewed from every angle, is certain to have a far reaching effect in broadening still further the religious life of the country at large.

It is significant to observe that during the debate, which consumed about twelve hours, the arguments of the opposing forces played an important part in influencing the vote. The tone of the unionists from beginning to end was, on the whole, spiritual and inspiring in its appeal, while the antis dwelt with considerable stress on legalities and technicalities. As an evidence that the assembly understood clearly the real religious value to be gained by the adoption of union it is significant to point out that when the final vote was given out there was no demonstration such as one might have expected.

Another Gas Robbery.

A man who was seized by violent toothache did not succumb any too readily to the gas administered by the dentist, but in the course of time he was sleeping peacefully, and the offending molar was removed.

"Ten shillings," said the dentist.

"Ten shillings!" the man exclaimed. "Yes, sir," said the dentist. "It was an unusually hard job getting that tooth out, and you required twice the ordinary amount of gas."

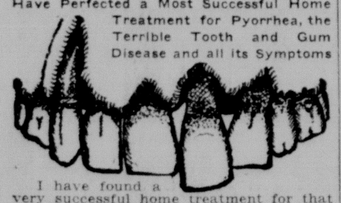

"Well, here's the money. But the next time I take gas in your place I'll want to look at the meter."—Chicago Journal.

Overland Makes Good Record on Trip to Colorado Springs

The following has been received by Percy Willis:

"Colorado Springs, Colo., June 19, 1916.—Mr. Percy Willis, Waco, Texas: Dear Mr. Willis—Thinking that the experiences of our trip may be of interest to you, I will give them to you briefly. Of course, making a trip of this kind we encountered some obstacles, but altogether our trip was fine. We covered 975 miles; left Waco at 9:30 Monday morning and reached Colorado Springs at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and we took our own time at that. We used 70 gallons of gas and one and one-half gallons of oil. This is an average of fourteen miles to the gallon, as you will notice.

"The car is in tip-top shape and we are anticipating a good time during the next two or three weeks. We had no trouble whatever other than one puncture, and we find Overland service excellent everywhere; in fact, this seems to be an Overland country.

"Assuring you of my good wishes, in which Mrs. King joins me, I am,

"There is no reason why they can not come back now, and the argument that they cannot is false and fallacious. The Robertson law specifically provides that any foreign insurance company not writing insurance in Texas can keep agents in Texas for the purpose of collecting their premiums and making investments. Their pretensions that they want to come back and lend money in Texas, but that they cannot and that it is necessary to repeal the Robertson law for them to come back, is absolutely without foundation. Their pretensions that they cannot lend money in Texas without writing insurance in Texas, and lend that money under the present laws of Texas, is absolutely without foundation. The truth is that there is today about $21,000,000 lent in Texas on Texas securities by foreign insurance companies not writing insurance in Texas.

"It is attempted to be made to appear that this insurance agitation for the repeal of the Robertson law originated with the people of Texas and that the people of Texas are the cause of this effort. I tell you that such is not the case, that the first specific move of this character was made in 1913 when the foreign insurance companies employed a noted lawyer and politician of this state and paid him a handsome fee to have presented to the legislature a bill in substance like the Gibson bill. The Gibson bill itself was not prepared by Mr. Gibson, but was prepared by Mr. Locke, attorney for the forign insurance companies.

"I tell you that in my opinion the foreign insurance companies paid not less than $100,000 in their effort before the last legislature to have the Robertson insurance law repealed. They paid none of this money improperly and made no improper or illegal effort to influence the representatives of this state, but they brought to bear every political pull, every tie of friendship or family, and every string they could possibly pull by people who were not members of the legislature, lobbying and persuading the members of the legislature to repeal this law. It is foolishness for them to pretend that there are men of note in Texas who would quit their business and spend months lobbying with the legislature of this state for the repeal of the law in which they were not interested, and this too without paying such lobbyists."

Specific information as to the dis-

General Pershing's troops are strung out along a three hundred mile line of communications running south from Columbuc, N. M., the border base of the expedition. Bodies of American troops hold Bocagrande Colonia Diaz, Ascension, Corralitos, Colonia Dublan, Galeana, El Valle, Las Cruces and Namiquipa. Colonia Dublan is the main expedition base and Namiquipa the advance base and headquarters of General Pershing.

General Pershing's forces are entrenched at all of the stations and have well protected water supplies. At Colonia Dublan the camp is on the east bank of the Casas Grandes river and in addition to extensive entrenchments with communicating along the line of the Mexican Northwestern railroad, at every other station there are small garrisons of Carrancistas, and at Casas Grandes and trenches, the trops have erected permanent adobes from logs and wicker reeds and have also provided themselves with dugouts.

Camps of engineers have been doing much work on the roads, grades, bridges, etc. The road is reported in excellent condition. They have established stations all along the route from Columbus to Namiquipa. Near each station is a cleared space for aeroplane landings.

At every American border town from Nogales, Ariz., to El Paso are patrols of American troops. The same condition exists southeast from El Paso along the Southern Pacific railroad line as far as Del Rio, Texas, there being American troops, regulars and federalized Texas National Guardsmen posted at nearly every railroad station and guarding every steel structure bridge along the route.

Nueva Casas Grandes, where the railroad crosses the American line of opposition of Trevino's forces is difficult to obtain, but generally the Mexican troops are stationed as follows: Starting at Juarez, follow south the line of the Mexican National railroad as far as Chihuahua City, which is the main Mexican base for the operations around General Pershing's column, and that place is also the headquarters of Gen. Jacinto Trevino, commander-in-chief of the de facto government's troops in the north.

Directly east of El Valle, on the Mexican Central railroad at Villa Ahumada, is a heavy concentration of Mexican troops. This place commands and menaces the center of the American line of communications at El Valle, just thirty-five miles west. Trevino has between fourteen and seventeen thousand troops at Villa Ahumada.

Also from Juarez to the southwest erations. There is a Carranza garrison at Pearson, and several detachments of unknown strength sectioned along the southern part of this line as far south as Madera.

There are Mexican troops at Agua Prieta, Sonora, which is opposite Douglas, Ariz., and the railroad to the south to Nacozari. Carranza is reported to have between eight and ten thousand troops stationed along a line which is approximately on the boundary line between the Mexican states of Chihuahua, Sonora. These are under the command of Gen. Elias Plutarcus Calles.

At Juarez there is a Carranza garrison of 4,000 trops under command of Gen. Francisco Gonzales. Recruiting and fortifying are going on in Juarez now.

Gen. George Bell, Jr., commands the American troops across the river at El Paso and Fort Bliss, which number about 3,500.

WACO MOTOR FLUID COMPANY ORGANIZED TO OPERATE IN WACO

The Waco Motor Fluid company is the name selected by the Waco men who are connected with the new company which has been formed to manufacture the fluid which is expected to revolutionize the automobile business and to make itself felt in many ways if the expectations and hopes of the men heading the organization are borne out and realized.

At a meeting held on South Fourth street it was decided that the concern should incorporate, and this will be done, though no time will be lost in starting operations. Material for the beginning of operations has been ordered, machinery will be ordered this week, a building will be leased and operations commenced. Application for a charter will be made tomorrow or Tuesday, and in fact there will be no delay at any stage of the game.

The contract has been let for the beautiful and modern new residence of Harry Archenhold, which is to be built on Sixteenth near Barron. The contract was let to J. H. Montgomery, and building operations will start as soon as material can be assembled. Plans for the residence were drawn by Roy E. Lane. This will be a two-story residence, and one of the most beautiful in that entire section of the city.

Loose Teeth Sore Gums

(PYORRHEA)

I am a Dentist of 25 years' experience. I Have Perfected a Most Successful Home Treatment for Pyorrhea, the Terrible Tooth and Gum Disease and all its Symptoms

I have found a very successful home treatment for that terrible disease called Pyorrhea or Riggs Disease of the gums. You may have been told that there is no cure for it, that there is no cure for loose teeth, bleeding, spongy, shrinking gums and dropping out of teeth; but many who have used my home treatment say there is, AND PROVE IT.

Don't have good teeth pulled. You may save every one of them—make them firm, healthy, sound teeth again.

Hundreds of patients say Dr. Willard's home treatment stops the teeth from being loose or wobbly and that it has done so in cases where the patient could almost pull his teeth out with his fingers, where the gums were soft and spongy, bleeding and shrinking away from the teeth. You may make these conditions positively and absolutely disappear and end your Pyorrhea. There is no pain, no fussing, no waste of time.

The letters I will send you from people in all parts of the country will tell you that they now enjoy good teeth, good chewing and a good stomach once more. If you have any of the symptoms mentioned, then Pyorrhea, sometimes called Riggs Disease, is on the way—you are bound to lose your teeth and have to wear those awful false teeth if you don't find a cure for it now. Simply send your name and address on coupon below and I will tell you all about this dreadful disease and how my simple home treatment may save your teeth, without pain and at small expense.

CHESS TOURNEY INSPIRES POET

In the giddy whirl of modern Americanism the average business man looks upon the royal game of chess with indifference and even contempt. However, there is a goodly number of both men and women in every city and hamlet, many of whom are the most progressive and cultured citizens of these communities, who fully appreciate the superior merits of this most fascinating of all sports.

A chess tourney of unusual interest is now being waged at the Y. M. C. A. Two sections of ten men each are playing from 4 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon every day. The members of the two sections each play two games, the five winning the most games will play a series of games with the winners of the other section. So far the contest is very close between the best players, and the interest is growing daily.

The final contest will be one of the most interesting ever held in Waco, and no lover of the game can afford to miss it.

The Royal Game of Chess.

No greater joy can me afford
With a true and genial friend
Than sit beside a checkered board
And there an hour or two to spend
In the royal game of chess.

I love a glorious feast,
To sip a friendly cup,
All other joys increased;
But would gladly give them up
For a single game of chess.

I like to see my friend perplexed
By the move that I had made;
And perchance a little vexed
When, too late, he sees the plot I laid
In a brilliant game of chess.

To make a bold and fierce attack
On some vital piece or pond
And force my adversary back
Like a hare before the hound
Adds luster to a game of chess.

Yes, I know it monopolizes time
From some useful toil or book,
But such leisure is sublime
Compared to that of other folk,
For sad thoughts are drown'd in chess.

This life is but a checkered board
On which we play the games of skill and chance;
If each move me make can joy afford
Then let us work and play and sing and dance
In this royal game of life.

So join, good friends, in revelry,
And play and sing and dance,
Then hie away to some quiet spot with me
Each night and rainy day
And play the royal game of chess.

(From the Manchester Guardian.)

Miscellany has received a letter from the front for its readers. It gives one or two little stories of actual incidents which have occurred in the writer's regiment somewhere in France. All ranks, as soon as they land in France, are urgently warned against answering questions asked them by people whom they don't know—even though the questioner is apparently a British officer, for enemy agents have been found in the uniform of all ranks.

A certain conscientious young sub. was in the front line the other day when a major on the divisional staff came along and began questioning the boy, with a view to testing his alertness and efficiency.

"What trench is this?"

"I don't know, sir."

"What regiment is on your right?"

"I don't know, sir."

"How do your rations come up?"

"I don't know, sir.'

"Well, you don't seem to know much, young fellow, do you?"

"Excuse me, sir, but I don't know who you are."

In this Matter of Health

one is either with the winners or with the losers.

It's largely a question of right eating—right food. For sound health one must cut out rich, indigestible foods and choose those that are known to contain the elements that build sturdy bodies and keen brains.

Grape-Nuts

is a wonderfully balanced food, made from whole wheat and barley. It contains all the nutriment of the grain, including the mineral phosphates, indispensable in Nature's plan for body and brain rebuilding.

Grape-Nuts is a concentrated food, easy to digest. It is economical, has delicious flavor, comes ready to eat, and has helped thousands in the winning class.

"There's a Reason"

CANADA CHURCHES JOIN HANDS.

(Manitoba Free Press.)

By the decisive vote of 406 to 88 the general assembly of the Presbyterian church has resolved to unite its forces with the Methodist and Congregational churches. The outcome of the vote was a triumph for a cause which marks a new era in the history of the Protestant churches in Canada, and which, viewed from every angle, is certain to have a far reaching effect in broadening still further the religious life of the country at large.

It is significant to observe that during the debate, which consumed about twelve hours, the arguments of the opposing forces played an important part in influencing the vote. The tone of the unionists from beginning to end was, on the whole, spiritual and inspiring in its appeal, while the antis dwelt with considerable stress on legalities and technicalities. As an evidence that the assembly understood clearly the real religious value to be gained by the adoption of union it is significant to point out that when the final vote was given out there was no demonstration such as one might have expected.

Another Gas Robbery.

A man who was seized by violent toothache did not succumb any too readily to the gas administered by the dentist, but in the course of time he was sleeping peacefully, and the offending molar was removed.

"How much?" asked the patient, after the ordeal was over.

"Ten shillings," said the dentist.

"Ten shillings!" the man exclaimed.

"Yes, sir," said the dentist. "It was an unusually hard job getting that tooth out, and you required twice the ordinary amount of gas."

Overland Makes Good Record on Trip to Colorado Springs

The following has been received by Percy Willis:

"Colorado Springs, Colo., June 19, 1916.—Mr. Percy Willis, Waco, Texas: Dear Mr. Willis—Thinking that the experiences of our trip may be of interest to you, I will give them to you briefly. Of course, making a trip of this kind we encountered some obstacles, but altogether our trip was fine. We covered 975 miles; left Waco at 9:30 Monday morning and reached Colorado Springs at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and we took our own time at that. We used 70 gallons of gas and one and one-half gallons of oil. This is an average of fourteen miles to the gallon, as you will notice.

"The car is in tip-top shape and we are anticipating a good time during the next two or three weeks. We had no trouble whatever other than one puncture, and we find Overland service excellent everywhere; in fact, this seems to be an Overland country.

"Assuring you of my good wishes, in which Mrs. King joins me, I am,

"Yours very truly, J. M. KING."

RED CROSS APPEALS FOR WACO'S SUPPORT

MANY BANDAGES AND RED CROSS PARAPHERNALIA TO BE MADE HERE.

WANT LARGE MEMBERSHIP

Headquarters for the Waco chapter of the American National Red Cross has been established in the Cameron building, near the corner of Austin avenue and Seventh street, by W. W. Seley, president, and H. H. Flynn, secretary.

At this headquarters building there is to be an important meeting of the local chapter Monday night. President Seley, Rev. W. P. Witsell and Rabbi I. Warsaw, who are in charge of the active campaign for new members, make the request that every member who has been enrolled be present and take part in the business matters that are to be presented.

The help of the Red Cross is needed now more than it has been needed in this country for years.

There are more than three hundred Waco boys on the border of Mexico. Just now they are in leash, but when the word from Washington reaches General Funston, to "let slip the dogs of war," the Waco boys will be among the first to cross the border between the United States and Mexico. The American Red Cross will send its nurses, its supplies and its agents in the wake of that army. Even now the Red Cross is on the border looking after those who are ill and who need attention. Waco has a part in this work because not only is Waco a unit in the activities of the United States and wants to do its patriotic share in case of hostilities, but Waco wants to show that the people here have an interest in the Waco boys who are going to the front.

If every kinsman of a member of company K and company G and of each member of the Fourth regimental band, of this city, would join the American Red Cross the local membership would be given a remarkable increase in its enrollment.

The meeting Monday night is a very important one, and this appeal for attendance is made through local press with the hope that all who read it will respond.

If you are a member, come and bring a couple more.

If you are not a member, come and you will be welcomed.

The following appeal to the general public was written yesterday by the local officers:

"Will you please help to increase our American Red Cross membership? Membership in the American Red Cross does not involve any financial obligation other than the payment of dues, which for annual members are only a dollar. This includes subscription to the monthly magazine.

"The law requires all Red Cross accounts to be audited by the war department and an annual report of its proceedings to be made to congress.

"Since its re-organization in 1905, the American Red Cross has aided the victims of over eighty serious disasters at home and abroad. It has helped hundreds of thousands in Mexico who have suffered from the disturbed conditions in that country during the last four years. During the present European war it has sent nearly four hundred doctors, nurses and relief agents into the war zone, and has helped the impoverished and homeless populations, has swept the typhus out of Serbia, and has cared for the sick and wounded of armies on a scale which may well be a source of pride to every American.

"The magnitude of the Red Cross operations is well known by the fact that in the last eleven years it has expended for relief over $10,000,000 in cash and distributed donated relief supplies worth more than $5,000,000.

"Through its medical bureau it has taught yealy thousands of industrial employes accident prevention and first aid to the injured. For this it employs five instructors and has two railroad cars as traveling schools. Through its nurses bureau it has enrolled for active service in time of need over six thousand of the best graduate trained nurses whose names and records are on file at headquarters in Washington. Under this bureau are classes for women in home care of the sick. Thus it makes its services of value in the everyday life of our people, as well as in war and disaster.

"Will you please help this great work and give your membership, for which the Red Cross will be very grateful?

"Yours sincerely,
"W. W. SELEY, President.
"I. WARSAW, Treasurer.
"H. H. FLYNN, Secretary.
"W. P. WITSELL,
"Membership Committee."

The funds which are contributed to the local chapter in Waco in membership fees are divided between the national headquarters and the local organization. The local organization is expected to use these funds in the manufacture of supplies for use in the field. President Seley has received from headquarters patterns for garments that are to be made by this chapter. There will also be a demand for surgical dressing and other first-aid facilities, and it is very important that the membership here be increased and the activities of the organization be commenced.

The membership in the Waco chapter of the American National Red Cross gives the member a standing also with the national organization, authorizes him or her to wear the Red Cross button, and allows subscription to the Red Cross Magazine. The following are the several classes of members:

Annual member, $1 a year.
Sustaining member, $10 a year.
Life member, $25 a year.
Patron member, $100 a year.

The local officers are very anxious to have several patron members enrolled and some life members. Contributions of this kind from those of this city who can afford to give that much to the cause will be welcomed.

In order that the general public may have some idea of what the local chapter is required at this time to furnish for the United States army and navy, now on the march, the following list of the needed supplies is given:

AMERICAN FLAG AT HALF-MAST FOR DEATH OF UNITED STATES SOLDIER

While out chopping wood in the Cruces Canyon, the machine gun company of the 17th infantry was attacked by Villa bandits led by Cervantes, the noted Villa lieutenant. One American soldier was killed. The photo shows the flag at half-mast on the occasion of the soldier's burial.

Sabbath Observance Committee Still at Work for Ice Man

The ladies who visited the proprietors of the ice factories and who talked with the ice men who deliver ice on Sunday feel that by a concerted effort much can be done to relieve the Sunday situation, especially if the people will take their ice on Saturday for Sunday consumption.

"We found the ice people just as willing to co-operate as could be, and believe that if the people who buy ice will only take the little trouble necessary to get their ice on Saturday much of the work of the ice men on Sunday will be done away with," said a member of the ladies' committee yesterday. She stated that many people are thoughtlessly making work for the ice men on Sunday, instead of aiding in giving them a day of rest, and said that most people, if the matter is kept before them, will after awhile go to buying their ice on Saturday for Sunday use.

The committee feels much encouraged, and believe that if the work is kept up persistently the people, or a great majority of them, will be glad to give the ice men a chance to rest on Sunday and attend church where they wish to do so. RED CROSS APPEALS FOR WACO'S SUPPORT

Headquarters for the Waco chapter of the American National Red Cross has been established in the Cameron building, near the corner of Austin avenue and Seventh street, by W. W. Seley, president, and H. H. Flynn, secretary.

At this headquarters building there is to be an important meeting of the local chapter Monday night. President Seley, Rev. W. P. Witsell and Rabbi I. Warsaw, who are in charge of the active campaign for new members, make the request that every member who has been enrolled be present and take part in the business matters that are to be presented.

The help of the Red Cross is needed now more than it has been needed in this country for years.

There are more than three hundred Waco boys on the border of Mexico. Just now they are in leash, but when the word from Washington reaches General Funston, to "let slip the dogs of war," the Waco boys will be among the first to cross the border between the United States and Mexico. The American Red Cross will send its nurses, its supplies and its agents in the wake of that army. Even now the Red Cross is on the border looking after those who are ill and who need attention. Waco has a part in this work because not only is Waco a unit in the activities of the United States and wants to do its patriotic share in case of hostilities, but Waco wants to show that the people here have an interest in the Waco boys who are going to the front.

If every kinsman of a member of company K and company G and of each member of the Fourth regimental band, of this city, would join the American Red Cross the local membership would be given a remarkable increase in its enrollment.

The meeting Monday night is a very important one, and this appeal for attendance is made through local press with the hope that all who read it will respond.

If you are a member, come and bring a couple more.

If you are not a member, come and you will be welcomed.

The following appeal to the general public was written yesterday by the local officers:

"Will you please help to increase our American Red Cross membership? Membership in the American Red Cross does not involve any financial obligation other than the payment of dues, which for annual members are only a dollar. This includes subscription to the monthly magazine.

"The law requires all Red Cross accounts to be audited by the war department and an annual report of its proceedings to be made to congress.

"Since its re-organization in 1905, the American Red Cross has aided the victims of over eighty serious disasters at home and abroad. It has helped hundreds of thousands in Mexico who have suffered from the disturbed conditions in that country during the last four years. During the present European war it has sent nearly four hundred doctors, nurses and relief agents into the war zone, and has helped the impoverished and homeless populations, has swept the typhus out of Serbia, and has cared for the sick and wounded of armies on a scale which may well be a source of pride to every American.

"The magnitude of the Red Cross operations is well known by the fact that in the last eleven years it has expended for relief over $10,000,000 in cash and distributed donated relief supplies worth more than $5,000,000.

"Through its medical bureau it has taught yealy thousands of industrial employes accident prevention and first aid to the injured. For this it employs five instructors and has two railroad cars as traveling schools. Through its nurses bureau it has enrolled for active service in time of need over six thousand of the best graduate trained nurses whose names and records are on file at headquarters in Washington. Under this bureau are classes for women in home care of the sick. Thus it makes its services of value in the everyday life of our people, as well as in war and disaster.

"Will you please help this great work and give your membership, for which the Red Cross will be very grateful?

"Yours sincerely,
"W. W. SELEY, President.
"I. WARSAW, Treasurer.
"H. H. FLYNN, Secretary.
"W. P. WITSELL,
"Membership Committee."

The funds which are contributed to the local chapter in Waco in membership fees are divided between the national headquarters and the local organization. The local organization is expected to use these funds in the manufacture of supplies for use in the field. President Seley has received from headquarters patterns for garments that are to be made by this chapter. There will also be a demand for surgical dressing and other first-aid facilities, and it is very important that the membership here be increased and the activities of the organization be commenced.

The membership in the Waco chapter of the American National Red Cross gives the member a standing also with the national organization, authorizes him or her to wear the Red Cross button, and allows subscription to the Red Cross Magazine. The following are the several classes of members:

Annual member, $1 a year.
Sustaining member, $10 a year.
Life member, $25 a year.
Patron member, $100 a year.

The local officers are very anxious to have several patron members enrolled and some life members. Contributions of this kind from those of this city who can afford to give that much to the cause will be welcomed.

In order that the general public may have some idea of what the local chapter is required at this time to furnish for the United States army and navy, now on the march, the following list of the needed supplies is given:

Dreaded An Operation More Than Anything

TRIED FRUITOLA AND TRAXO AND HAS NEVER SINCE BEEN TROUBLED WITH GALL-STONES.

Mrs. Mary E. Franse, whose address is West Point, Neb., Box 411, has written to the Pinus laboratories a very strong endorsement of Fruitola and Traxo. In her letters Mrs. Franse says: "About ten years ago I was about to undergo an operation for gall-stones when I heard of your medicine. Dreading an operation above everything, I determined to try Fruitola and Traxo and have never been sorry I did so, as I have never been troubled with gall-stones since."

Fruitola is a powerful lubricant for the intestinal organs, and one dose is usually sufficient to give ample evidence of its efficacy. It softens the congested masses, disintegrates the hardened particles that occasion so much suffering, and expels the accumulated waste to the great relief of the patient. Following a dose of Fruitola, Traxo should be taken three or four times a day in order to rebuild and restore the system that has been weakened and run down by constant suffering. It is a splendid tonic, acting on the liver and stomach most beneficially.

Fruitola and Traxo are prepared in the Pinus Laboratories at Monticello, Ill., and arrangements have been made to supply them through representative druggists. In Waco they can be obtained at W. B. Morrison's Drug Co.

Do You Know the Art of Traveling a La Book?

While it is impossible for you to take a "really truly" trip to Europe this summer, you may take a delightfully realistic imaginary one in your hammock. The public library will furnish you books that will aid you in making the trip. The following list represents a few of the attractive books to be had. If none of these cover the trip you wish to make, ask for one that does. The library has material on each of the European countries.

"Seeing Europe by Automobile," by Lee Meriwether. A five-thousand-mile motor trip through France, Switzerland, Germany and Italy, with an excursion into Andorra, Corfu, Dalmatia and Montenegro.

"How to Visit Europe on Next to Nothing," by E. P. Prentys. The author takes an imaginary trip with you, spending only $300 in eight weeks. A memoranda of actual expenses, together with such information as will enable others to make the trip, is kept.

"Around the Clock in Europe," by Charles Fish Howell. A travel-sequence which takes you to Edinburgh, Antwerp, Rome, Prague, Schevengingen, Berlin, London, Naples, Heidleberg, Interlaken, Venice and Paris. The illustrations by Harold Field Kellogg form an attractive feature of this bok.

"The Picture Towns of Europe," by Albert B. Osborne. The author says, "My aim has been to select from each country of Europe I have visited the towns that suggest most clearly the colorful and picturesque past."

"The Spell of Holland," by Burton E. Stevenson. A story of a pilgrimage to the land of dykes and windmills, with illustrations from photographs by the author.

"The Spell of Italy," by Caroline A. Mason. Enthusiastic account of a leisurely tour of a mother and daughter through Italy, which, besides the usual tourist's impressions, includes a thread of a story.

"Cathedral Cities in France," by Herbert Marshall. Most of the cities in France containing the well-known cathedrals are sketched in this volume which is beautifully illustrated in color. Of special interest since many of the cathedrals described have been destroyed in the present European war.

"Paris Nights and Other Impressions of Places and People," by Arnold Bennett. About fifty random sketches of life in Paris, London, Florence and the Riveria, as well as out-of-the-way corners in France, Switzerland and England.

"Four Months Afoot in Spain, by Harry A. Franck. An unusually entertaining account of a journey—on foot for the most part—through Spain. Experiences on the road and the details of accomplishing the trip on a total cost of $172, are told with humor and charm.

"Romantic Germany, by Robert H. Schauffler. A charming book of travel in which is told with poetic interpretation the story of Germany's principal cities—their people, their customs, manners and beliefs, their legends, traditions and history.

OVER SIX HUNDRED ENROLLED AT BAYLOR

PLAN TO BRING ALFRED NOYES, THE POET, TO THIS CITY.

Societies Entertain New Students. Baylor Events for the Week Announced.

The enrollment of the Baylor summer school has been increased by the matriculation of a number of students during the past week, until it now totals 623, a very remarkable growth which can be accounted for only by the popular realization of the opportunities which Baylor and Waco offer for summer work. The second normal should bring many more, and the authorities have planned many features which will make the advantages equal to those of the first six weeks.

Prospects for an interesting session from September to June are already developing. At the present time, negotiations are being carried on with the New York representative of the celebrated English poet, Alfred Noyes, which may bring him to Texas during the winter. His coming would be a great event to all lovers of English literature.

Two hundred and fifty new books have recently been turned over to the library by the department of English. These form half of the gift of 500 books which was a feature of the Shakespeare celebration in April. A list of the titles will be published this week in the Lariat, the university weekly newspaper, and persons interested may have this mailed to them without charge. Many of these books are on contemporary drama.

Friday evening at 6:45 the first of the story hours was held on the campus. Miss Lillie Martin told the story of Dan to a large crowd of students and visitors, who were seated in chairs on the campus just in front of Brooks hall. Miss Martin's stories are enjoyed very much by children and grown-ups alike, and the audience contained a goodly number of both ages.

The program was begun by the singing of popular songs, which was led by Prof. J. M. Evans from the fine arts department. A number of the old favorite melodies were sung, and then Prof. Evans 'own "My Little Waco Maid," which has achieved such well deserved popularity. Miss Annie Daniels of Waco accompanied him at the piano.

SOCIETIES ENTERTAIN NEW STUDENTS.

On Friday evening the Philomathesian and Calliopean literary societies gave a reception in the art studio for the new students in the summer school and normal. Such a large crowd was present that the reception was moved to the campus after a short program had been given, punch had been served and an opportunity had been given for each one to meet many of those present. On entering the chapel building each guest had been given a number by which he or she might find a partner for the evening, partners had been found, and Miss Miriam Webster of the Calliopean society had served punch to all, Earl Grogan, who had been selected as chairman of the reception committee, delivered the address of welcome to the new students, and assured them that they had the best wishes of Philos and Callies for a very pleasant summer in Baylor. The receiving line consisted of a number of old Philos and Calliopeans, among whom were Pat M. Neff, Judge and Mrs. W. H. Jenkins, Mrs. S. P. Brooks, Prof. and Mrs. J. B. Johnson, Mrs. W. H. Pool and others. Other faculty members who were not affiliated with either of these societies were also present to meet the students and to make them feel altogether at home in Baylor. A feature of the program was the musical dialogue by Prof. and Mrs. J. M. Evans, prepared by Prof. Evans from a number of recent popular song hits. It proved very popular and received much applause because of its cleverness and novelty.

After the crowd had adjourned to the campus, sherbet was served in orange cups, with dainty Philo emblems and daisies as favors or souvenirs. The programs for the evening were in the colors of the two societies, and contained the Philo and Calliopean songs. Further entertainment was furnished by impromptu music on the piano and victrola.

On Saturday evening the Erisophians and R. C. B.'s were at home on the campus to all of the new students, and a delightful program was rendered. President W. H. Barton of the two societies extended a welcome to the new students in the opening address, inviting them to share the good things that had been provided for the evening, and to become members of the Erisophian or R. C. B. societies at some time in the near future. Pierce Harlan responded heartily in behalf of the new men, thanking the old students for their hospitality and kindness. Miss Bernice Compere favored the audience with a violin solo which all appreciated. Miss Watsie Nowlin, a Baylor graduate of 1913, and an old R. C. B., extended a welcome to the new R. C. B.'s, and promised them that many benefits and pleasures were in store for them. Then a musical number followed, a piano solo by Miss Turner.

Addresses to new members were given by two old Erisophians—J. W. Hale and Gerald Craig, of the class of 1915—and between these speeches Miss Louise Head, a south Waco R. C. B., rendered a vocal solo. Miss Nellie Lee Hill, an accomplished student from the department of expression, gave a reading, and Mr. W. H. Payne, an old Erisophian, who now resides in Waco, gave a much enjoyed vocal solo. The program was concluded by the serving of punch, while toasts were heard from the members, old, new and prospective.

FEATURES FOR THE COMING WEEK.

On Tuesday evening at 8:15 Prof. Anton Navratil of the fine arts department will give a violin recital in Carroll chapel. Prof. Navratil is well known to Waco people both as a teacher of violin, as a violin soloist, and as the director of one of the best orchestras in the whole southwest. He announces the following program for Tuesday evening:

Romance, op 26.....Johan S. Svendsen
Mazurka, op 73.....Rudolf Frimd
Bygone Days, op 65....Rudolf Frimd
Andante, from Concerto in E minor.. ..... Mendelssohn
The Bee ..... Schubert
Legende, op 17.....Wieniawski
Mazurka ..... Mlynarski
Perpetuum mobile, op 34..... Ries

Those who have heard Mr. Navratil and are qualified to judge his work, pronounce him not only a very skillful and well trained artist, but also a genius of unlimited natural ability. He is as yet only a very young man, and a very bright future seems to be in store for him.

On Thursday evening Miss Myrtle Thompson, head of the department of expression, will give a dramatic reading on the campus. She will read the "War Brides," one of the most interesting and exciting of modern dramas. It's present historical significance makes it one of the pieces of modern literature with which every person should be familiar. Miss Thompson's splendid recitals always draw a large crowd, and this should prove a popular feature. She will not be able to give her second reading as scheduled, because of her engagement with the Curry School of Expression in Boston, but the place will be filled by one of her most talented pupils, Miss Louise Irwin of Waco. Miss Irwin's interpretations from Mark Twain are unusually fine and she will read from his work on that occasion. The reading of the "War Brides" will take place promptly at 6:45 on Thursday evening.

The story for the Friday evening story hour will be that of Baldur, and will be told by Miss Lillie Martin. The song feature will also be continued. Friends from the city are very cordially invited to take advantage of all of these free features, which will be continued throughout the twelve weeks' term.

Personal Items.

During the week D. R. Baker, '15, of the summer faculty, was called to join his company in the Louisiana national guard. A letter received yesterday states that he has gone to the mobilization camp, and is engaged in drilling.

R. L. Grogan, '16, who is teaching in the summer school, has been operated upon for appendicitis in a Fort Worth sanitarium. A letter from him yesterday stated that he is now recovering nicely, and hopes to be back at work early in July.

Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Newman will spend the summer in the mountains of North Carolina.

Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Eby of Austin who are well known to Waco people, will take their vacation in the Ozarks this summer.

H. F. Saunders, '18, will teach in Stamford high school next year.

Misses Ella and Nora Oatman and Miss Effie Williams will leave this week for a vacation at the Palacios encampment.

Both literary societies have elected officers for the summer term. The Erisophians and R. C. B.'s chose Henderson Barton and Miss Claudia Dubose to be their leaders for the summer; the Philos and Calliopeans elected J. M. Garrett as president and Miss Edna Payne as secretary.

Superintendent B. B. Cobb of the Waco public schools, is making the daily chapel hour a very interesting one by his series of talks on pedagogy.

During Mrs. Claypool's absence the girls' dormitories will be under the care of Miss Miriam Buck.

Baylor people are manifesting much interest in the latest book of Rev. J. M. Dawson, which has just been published at the university press.

Fred T. Rogers, 1911, who will receive his doctor's degree this summer at the University of Chicago, has received a very flattering offer to remain there as an instructor, but has announced that he will accept the position offered here, and return to Baylor.

"My Work is Done"

The Mid-Year Mitchell, and the plant that builds it, embody in full my ideas of efficiency. The car is my 17th Model. I have spent 13 years on the factory. I submit the result to all men as marking the best that lies within me.—John W. Bate

Every man, in any line of business, should study this Mid-Year Mitchell.

It matters not what car you own, or what car you favor. Or if you want no car at all.

The New Mitchell, in a thousand details, typifies efficiency. It is the product of a model efficiency plant. It is the creation of a genius in efficiency. Every man can gain some inspiration from it.

A Car to Rule

John W. Bate, the efficiency engineer, came here to build the master car. And to found a plant to build that car at the lowest cost.

It has taken him long. The industry was new. The very machinery had to be invented. It took ten years to evolve the Light Six type, which seems finality.

But the results you see in this Mid-Year Mitchell will win your deep respect.

Big Safety Factors Lifetime Service

Mr. Bate's great aim was to build a long-lived car. And to build a reliable car, practically trouble-proof.

He has dealt with part by part. He has almost wiped out castings. In this New Mitchell, 440 parts are either drop forged or stamped from toughened steel.

He has used a wealth of Chrome-Vanadium. He has made parts oversize. His margins of safety are at least 50 per cent. In the car itself, Mr. Bate has made more than 700 improvements.

Six of his Mitchells have averaged 164,372 miles each—over 30 years of ordinary service. And they are still in active use.

Cost Reduced 50%

Despite his high standards, he has in six years reduced Mitchell costs 50 per cent.

He has done this by building a model plant. By equipping that plant with 2092 up-to-date machines. And by training our army of workers.

Probably no other plant could build this New Mitchell within 20 per cent of our cost.

26 Extras—Free

The results show in the car. It is the most complete car that was ever built.

Luxury in Extreme

This Mid-Year Mitchell embodies 73 new attractions. All the new touches are in it—all the luxuries and beauties which our experts found in 257 Show cars.

It has a 22-coat finish. It has French-finished upholstery. It has Bate cantilever springs. It has a power tire pump, a locked compartment, a light in the tonneau—scores of things you want.

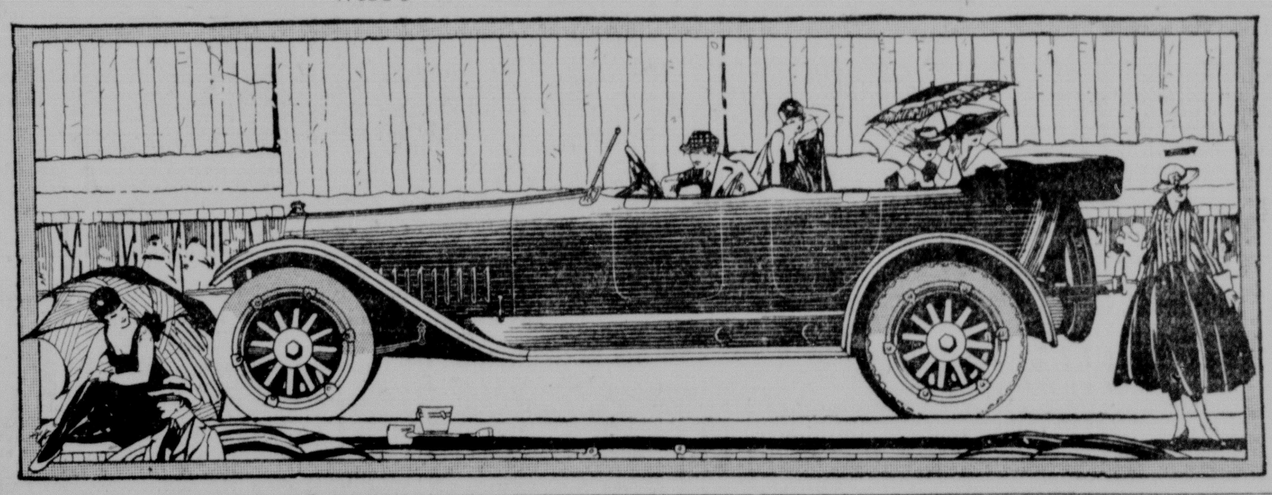

Do yourself the justice of inspecting this car. We know you will say that Mr. Bate deserves the thanks of Motordom.

At the showroom you will see how great engineers regard him. You will find the proof that they regard this car a mechanical masterpiece. And it is, as you know, the most talked-about car of the time.

TO THAWS ONE MILLION MORE.

Litigation Over Shares of Standard Oil Company Stock Is Ended.

(Pittsburg Dispatch.)

One million dollars, or approximately that sum, will be distributed to five of the children of William Thaw, deceased, by the trustee of his estate, under an opinion and decree of Judge James D. Over, handed down in answer to the litigation that has been in process for many weeks, affecting the right of the children to share in the income of shares of Standard Oil company stock.

The five children to whom this money will be transferred, all of whom are life tenants in a portion of the Thaw estate, are Harry Kendall Thaw, Margaret Thaw Carnegie, Alice Thaw Whitney, Edward Thaw and Josiah Thaw.

The litigation came to the court's notice in the filing of the fourth audit of the estate for distribution by the trustees. When the elder Thaw died he left several thousand shares in the oil company to the trustees, the income of which was to be paid to the children. On December 1, 1911, the company was dissolved, and the outstanding stock of the company was exchanged for that in the subsidiary companies.

The question raised in the litigation was whether the income from the stock in these subsidiaries should be distributed to the life tenants or to the corpus estate. Counsel for the life tenants contended that the income from all the stock accruing from the dissolution should be paid to them.

The court held that the stock in part represented what was capital stock at the inception of the trust, and the income accumulated since should be divided between the tenants for life and the corpus estate, pro rata, the latter for the benefit of the remainder men.

Dreaded An Operation More Than Anything

TRIED FRUITOLA AND TRAXO AND HAS NEVER SINCE BEEN TROUBLED WITH GALL-STONES.

Mrs. Mary E. Franse, whose address is West Point, Neb., Box 411, has written to the Pinus laboratories a very strong endorsement of Fruitola and Traxo. In her letters Mrs. Franse says: "About ten years ago I was about to undergo an operation for gall-stones when I heard of your medicine. Dreading an operation above everything, I determined to try Fruitola and Traxo and have never been sorry I did so, as I have never been troubled with gall-stones since."

Fruitola is a powerful lubricant for the intestinal organs, and one dose is usually sufficient to give ample evidence of its efficacy. It softens the congested masses, disintegrates the hardened particles that occasion so much suffering, and expels the accumulated waste to the great relief of the patient. Following a dose of Fruitola, Traxo should be taken three or four times a day in order to rebuild and restore the system that has been weakened and run down by constant suffering. It is a splendid tonic, acting on the liver and stomach most beneficially.

Fruitola and Traxo are prepared in the Pinus Laboratories at Monticello, Ill., and arrangements have been made to supply them through representative druggists. In Waco they can be obtained at W. B. Morrison's Drug Co.

Do You Know the Art of Traveling a La Book?

While it is impossible for you to take a "really truly" trip to Europe this summer, you may take a delightfully realistic imaginary one in your hammock. The public library will furnish you books that will aid you in making the trip. The following list represents a few of the attractive books to be had. If none of these cover the trip you wish to make, ask for one that does. The library has material on each of the European countries.

"Seeing Europe by Automobile," by Lee Meriwether. A five-thousand-mile motor trip through France, Switzerland, Germany and Italy, with an excursion into Andorra, Corfu, Dalmatia and Montenegro.

"How to Visit Europe on Next to Nothing," by E. P. Prentys. The author takes an imaginary trip with you, spending only $300 in eight weeks. A memoranda of actual expenses, together with such information as will enable others to make the trip, is kept.

"Around the Clock in Europe," by Charles Fish Howell. A travel-sequence which takes you to Edinburgh, Antwerp, Rome, Prague, Scheveningen, Berlin, London, Naples, Heidleberg, Interlaken, Venice and Paris. The illustrations by Harold Field Kellogg form an attractive feature of this bok.

"The Picture Towns of Europe," by Albert B. Osborne. The author says, "My aim has been to select from each country of Europe I have visited the towns that suggest most clearly the colorful and picturesque past."

"The Spell of Holland," by Burton E. Stevenson. A story of a pilgrimage to the land of dykes and windmills, with illustrations from photographs by the author.

"The Spell of Italy," by Caroline A. Mason. Enthusiastic account of a leisurely tour of a mother and daughter through Italy, which, besides the usual tourist's impressions, includes a thread of a story.

"Cathedral Cities in France," by Herbert Marshall. Most of the cities in France containing the well-known cathedrals are sketched in this volume which is beautifully illustrated in color. Of special interest since many of the cathedrals described have been destroyed in the present European war.

"Paris Nights and Other Impressions of Places and People," by Arnold Bennett. About fifty random sketches of life in Paris, London, Florence and the Riveria, as well as out-of-the-way corners in France, Switzerland and England.

"Four Months Afoot in Spain, by Harry A. Franck. An unusually entertaining account of a journey—on foot for the most part—through Spain. Experiences on the road and the details of accomplishing the trip on a total cost of $172, are told with humor and charm.

"Romantic Germany, by Robert H. Schauffler. A charming book of travel in which is told with poetic interpretation the story of Germany's principal cities—their people, their customs, manners and beliefs, their legends, traditions and history.

OVER SIX HUNDRED ENROLLED AT BAYLOR

PLAN TO BRING ALFRED NOYES, THE POET, TO THIS CITY.

Societies Entertain New Students. Baylor Events for the Week Announced.

The enrollment of the Baylor summer school has been increased by the matriculation of a number of students during the past week, until it now totals 623, a very remarkable growth which can be accounted for only by the popular realization of the opportunities which Baylor and Waco offer for summer work. The second normal should bring many more, and the authorities have planned many features which will make the advantages equal to those of the first six weeks.

Prospects for an interesting session from September to June are already developing. At the present time, negotiations are being carried on with the New York representative of the celebrated English poet, Alfred Noyes, which may bring him to Texas during the winter. His coming would be a great event to all lovers of English literature.

Two hundred and fifty new books have recently been turned over to the library by the department of English. These form half of the gift of 500 books which was a feature of the Shakespeare celebration in April. A list of the titles will be published this week in the Lariat, the university weekly newspaper, and persons interested may have this mailed to them without charge. Many of these books are on contemporary drama.

Friday evening at 6:45 the first of the story hours was held on the campus. Miss Lillie Martin told the story of Dan to a large crowd of students and visitors, who were seated in chairs on the campus just in front of Brooks hall. Miss Martin's stories are enjoyed very much by children and grown-ups alike, and the audience contained a goodly number of both ages.

The program was begun by the singing of popular songs, which was led by Prof. J. M. Evans from the fine arts department. A number of the old favorite melodies were sung, and then Prof. Evans 'own "My Little Waco Maid," which has achieved such well deserved popularity. Miss Annie Daniels of Waco accompanied him at the piano.

SOCIETIES ENTERTAIN NEW STUDENTS.

On Friday evening the Philomathesian and Calliopean literary societies gave a reception in the art studio for the new students in the summer school and normal. Such a large crowd was present that the reception was moved to the campus after a short program had been given, punch had been served and an opportunity had been given for each one to meet many of those present. On entering the chapel building each guest had been given a number by which he or she might find a partner for the evening, partners had been found, and Miss Miriam Webster of the Calliopean society had served punch to all, Earl Grogan, who had been selected as chairman of the reception committee, delivered the address of welcome to the new students, and assured them that they had the best wishes of Philos and Callies for a very pleasant summer in Baylor. The receiving line consisted of a number of old Philos and Calliopeans, among whom were Pat M. Neff, Judge and Mrs. W. H. Jenkins, Mrs. S. P. Brooks, Prof. and Mrs. J. B. Johnson, Mrs. W. H. Pool and others. Other faculty members who were not affiliated with either of these societies were also present to meet the students and to make them feel altogether at home in Baylor. A feature of the program was the musical dialogue by Prof. and Mrs. J. M. Evans, prepared by Prof. Evans from a number of recent popular song hits. It proved very popular and received much applause because of its cleverness and novelty.

After the crowd had adjourned to the campus, sherbet was served in orange cups, with dainty Philo emblems and daisies as favors or souvenirs. The programs for the evening were in the colors of the two societies, and contained the Philo and Calliopean songs. Further entertainment was furnished by impromptu music on the piano and victrola.

On Saturday evening the Erisophians and R. C. B.'s were at home on the campus to all of the new students, and a delightful program was rendered. President W. H. Barton of the two societies extended a welcome to the new students in the opening address, inviting them to share the good things that had been provided for the evening, and to become members of the Erisophian or R. C. B. societies at some time in the near future. Pierce Harlan responded heartily in behalf of the new men, thanking the old students for their hospitality and kindness. Miss Bernice Compere favored the audience with a violin solo which all appreciated. Miss Watsie Nowlin, a Baylor graduate of 1913, and an old R. C. B., extended a welcome to the new R. C. B.'s, and promised them that many benefits and pleasures were in store for them. Then a musical number followed, a piano solo by Miss Turner.

Addresses to new members were given by two old Erisophians—J. W. Hale and Gerald Craig, of the class of 1915—and between these speeches Miss Louise Head, a south Waco R. C. B., rendered a vocal solo. Miss Nellie Lee Hill, an accomplished student from the department of expression, gave a reading, and Mr. W. H. Payne, an old Erisophian, who now resides in Waco, gave a much enjoyed vocal solo. The program was concluded by the serving of punch, while toasts were heard from the members, old, new and prospective.

FEATURES FOR THE COMING WEEK.

On Tuesday evening at 8:15 Prof. Anton Navratil of the fine arts department will give a violin recital in Carroll chapel. Prof. Navratil is well known to Waco people both as a teacher of violin, as a violin soloist, and as the director of one of the best orchestras in the whole southwest. He announces the following program for Tuesday evening:

Romance, op 26.....Johan S. Svendsen
Mazurka, op 73.....Rudolf Frimd
Bygone Days, op 65....Rudolf Frimd
Andante, from Concerto in E minor.. .....Mendelssohn
The Bee .....Schubert
Legende, op 17.....Wieniawski
Mazurka .....Mlynarski
Perpetuum mobile, op 34.....Ries

Those who have heard Mr. Navratil and are qualified to judge his work, pronounce him not only a very skillful and well trained artist, but also a genius of unlimited natural ability. He is as yet only a very young man, and a very bright future seems to be in store for him.

On Thursday evening Miss Myrtle Thompson, head of the department of expression, will give a dramatic reading on the campus. She will read the "War Brides," one of the most interesting and exciting of modern dramas. It's present historical significance makes it one of the pieces of modern literature with which every person should be familiar. Miss Thompson's splendid recitals always draw a large crowd, and this should prove a popular feature. She will not be able to give her second reading as scheduled, because of her engagement with the Curry School of Expression in Boston, but the place will be filled by one of her most talented pupils, Miss Louise Irwin of Waco. Miss Irwin's interpretations from Mark Twain are unusually fine and she will read from his work on that occasion. The reading of the "War Brides" will take place promptly at 6:45 on Thursday evening.

TO THAWS ONE MILLION MORE.

Litigation Over Shares of Standard Oil Company Stock Is Ended.

(Pittsburg Dispatch.)

One million dollars, or approximately that sum, will be distributed to five of the children of William Thaw, deceased, by the trustee of his estate, under an opinion and decree of Judge James D. Over, handed down in answer to the litigation that has been in process for many weeks, affecting the right of the children to share in the income of shares of Standard Oil company stock.

The five children to whom this money will be transferred, all of whom are life tenants in a portion of the Thaw estate, are Harry Kendall Thaw, Margaret Thaw Carnegie, Alice Thaw Whitney, Edward Thaw and Josiah Thaw.

The litigation came to the court's notice in the filing of the fourth audit of the estate for distribution by the trustees. When the elder Thaw died he left several thousand shares in the oil company to the trustees, the income of which was to be paid to the children. On December 1, 1911, the company was dissolved, and the outstanding stock of the company was exchanged for that in the subsidiary companies.

The question raised in the litigation was whether the income from the stock in these subsidiaries should be distributed to the life tenants or to the corpus estate. Counsel for the life tenants contended that the income from all the stock accruing from the dissolution should be paid to them.

The court held that the stock in part represented what was capital stock at the inception of the trust, and the income accumulated since should be divided between the tenants for life and the corpus estate, pro rata, the latter for the benefit of the remainder men.

And Look at Those Pinch Hits

WACO - 11 - 10 SANTONE - 3 - 8

NAVS POUND BALL AND FIELD REMARKABLY BEHIND PITCHERS.

BITTLE AND MAL HIT HARD

San Antonio, June 24.—In a futile attempt to halt the onward speed of Hardy's Navigators, George Osman Cap Leidy used up four-fifths of his alleged pitching staff Saturday afternoon, Waco taking the first game 11 to 3, and then capturing the second after four attempts 10 to 8. The Tars' pitching was not much to brag on, for Hardy's staff also is sorely crippled through overwork. But Waco had the consolation of perfect support in the second infliction, while San Antonio saw its game kicked away heartlessly.

Each affray was a slam-bang affair. The Navigators totalled twenty-nine hits for their two games, while the Bronchos acquired a grand total of twenty-six. Mixed up in the locals' biffs were two home runs, one by Mike Wotell and the other by Johnny Baggan. Wotell's smite was the longest drive of the season and it slipped under the scoreboard in far left center, scoring two runs ahead of the hitter and saving a whitewash. Baggan's homer was the first one over the right-field fence in two seasons.

But for consecutive, consistent and confounding hitting, Bittle and Malmquist of the Tars took the watch. In the first game Bittle two out of four and in the second four out of five, giving him for the day the hitting mark of .667. Malmquist in the first game got one out of two and in second four out of four, which got him the paltry batting mark of .833. A lot of these blows happened in the pinches, too.

The Bronchos did the hardest hitting they have done this year, easily the hardest. But Waco was in the same mood—only more so. Ellis Hardy let Hill go the route in the first game for the very good reason that he never really was in danger of a licking. Donalds staged a comeback and went all the way in the second for the excellent reason that he about rounded out the pitching staff remaining to the husky Tar boss. Both of them were treated murderously, but their support was practically perfect and their club was doing all sorts of things to the hapless quartette of Leidymen who strove to throw the ball—for throwing it was and mighty little pitching. Even "no-hit" Harding was driven to cover in a game already hopelessly lost. Ogle succeeded him in a sort of post-mortem system of relief—after the game was dead and buried. But it was all the same, anyway.

It was a hot afternoon, and players and spectators took it out on Umpire Vitter, whose work was hard enough as it was. At that, Vitter came through in better form than at least three athletes, for he fined Westerzil, Donalds and Tanner. However, every one's nerves were on the raw edge by this time.

There was some fast baseball, the fielding of Grubb being especially brilliant, while Clark robbed James of a mighty blow by a catch the fielder made look easy. Stark made a one-hand stab in the second game that was one of the best of the season. The scores:

Southern Leaguer Sold to Dallas

Memphis, June 24.—Announcement was made last night that the Memphis club of the Southern Association had sold William Robertson, a pitcher, to the Dallas club of the Texas league.

"Rupe" Mills, of Newark, Is Only One-Man Ball Team in World

Newark, N. J., June 24.—Something new in the way of a ball team is found in Newark, where "Rupe" Mills plays a whole game all alone. Every morning he's out for practice, chasing the flies he bats himself, and every afternoon he plays a nip and tuck game with himself, cheered or hooted occasionally by the small boys who very naturally come around to see. Mills does all this because he's determined to get the $3000 written into his Newark Fed contract. When the Federal league dispersed he and Pat Powers, once Newark owner, engaged in a dialogue as follows:

"The Federal league and the Newark club," said Powers, "are dead."

"That interests me but mildly," said Mills. "I have a signed contract which declares and affirms that I am to be paid the sum of $3000 for my services through the season of 1916. That the Fed league is dead I deplore—but I didn't kill it. And I don't intend to suffer by its decease."

Following which Mr. Powers said that Mills would get not a cent he did not earn, and Mills said that he was glad and eager to earn it and that if Mr. Powers would state his pleasure he would be glad to comply. And so Mr. Powers stated his pleasure and when Mills goes to the ball yard every day and puts on a game as related he is complying.

Mills is a well grown youngster with a height of six feet and four or five inches, and with proportionate weight. Moreover, he acts like a regular ball player. The Feds picked him up at Notre Dame university, whence many stars have come, and where Mills was a football star as well.

"Last June," says Mills, "when I had graduated from school, a Fed scout came to Notre Dame and signed me up for two years at $3000 a year. Then last winter the Federal league blew and left me without an actual job, but I had the contract with another season to run. And I made up my mind I'd get what was coming to me."

Since starting the one-man ball game idea, Mills has had a chance to go to Toronto at a much smaller figure, but he passed it by. Anyway, Toronto wanted a third baseman and Mills is a first sacker. He was offered $500 to cancel his Fed contract but he couldn't be persuaded.

"If I'd failed to make good at Toronto I'd been out of a job and about $2500 loser. My present job isn't very exciting, but it's pretty good practice, and occasionally a few boys are around to chase my three baggers. I'm going to go through with the thing conscientiously and if I should be given a chance to play tomorrow I'd be in perfect trim."

"Rupe" Mills.

And Look at Those Pinch Hits

WACO - 11 - 10 SANTONE - 3 - 8

NAVS POUND BALL AND FIELD REMARKABLY BEHIND PITCHERS.

BITTLE AND MAL HIT HARD

San Antonio, June 24.—In a futile attempt to halt the onward speed of Hardy's Navigators, George Osman Cap Leidy used up four-fifths of his alleged pitching staff Saturday afternoon, Waco taking the first game 11 to 3, and then capturing the second after four attempts 10 to 8. The Tars' pitching was not much to brag on, for Hardy's staff also is sorely crippled through overwork. But Waco had the consolation of perfect support in the second infliction, while San Antonio saw its game kicked away heartlessly.

Each affray was a slam-bang affair. The Navigators totalled twenty-nine hits for their two games, while the Bronchos acquired a grand total of twenty-six. Mixed up in the locals' biffs were two home runs, one by Mike Wotell and the other by Johnny Baggan. Wotell's smite was the longest drive of the season and it slipped under the scoreboard in far left center, scoring two runs ahead of the hitter and saving a whitewash. Baggan's homer was the first one over the right-field fence in two seasons.

But for consecutive, consistent and confounding hitting, Bittle and Malmquist of the Tars took the watch. In the first game Bittle two out of four and in the second four out of five, giving him for the day the hitting mark of .667. Malmquist in the first game got one out of two and in second four out of four, which got him the paltry batting mark of .833. A lot of these blows happened in the pinches, too.

The Bronchos did the hardest hitting they have done this year, easily the hardest. But Waco was in the same mood—only more so. Ellis Hardy let Hill go the route in the first game for the very good reason that he never really was in danger of a licking. Donalds staged a comeback and went all the way in the second for the excellent reason that he about rounded out the pitching staff remaining to the husky Tar boss. Both of them were treated murderously, but their support was practically perfect and their club was doing all sorts of things to the hapless quartette of Leidymen who strove to throw the ball—for throwing it was and mighty little pitching. Even "no-hit" Harding was driven to cover in a game already hopelessly lost. Ogle succeeded him in a sort of post-mortem system of relief—after the game was dead and buried. But it was all the same, anyway.

It was a hot afternoon, and players and spectators took it out on Umpire Vitter, whose work was hard enough as it was. At that, Vitter came through in better form than at least three athletes, for he fined Westerzil, Donalds and Tanner. However, every one's nerves were on the raw edge by this time.

There was some fast baseball, the fielding of Grubb being especially brilliant, while Clark robbed James of a mighty blow by a catch the fielder made look easy. Stark made a one-hand stab in the second game that was one of the best of the season. The scores:

Southern Leaguer Sold to Dallas

Memphis, June 24.—Announcement was made last night that the Memphis club of the Southern Association had sold William Robertson, a pitcher, to the Dallas club of the Texas league.

"Rupe" Mills, of Newark, Is Only One-Man Ball Team in World

Newark, N. J., June 24.—Something new in the way of a ball team is found in Newark, where "Rupe" Mills plays a whole game all alone. Every morning he's out for practice, chasing the flies he bats himself, and every afternoon he plays a nip and tuck game with himself, cheered or hooted occasionally by the small boys who very naturally come around to see. Mills does all this because he's determined to get the $3000 written into his Newark Fed contract. When the Federal league dispersed he and Pat Powers, once Newark owner, engaged in a dialogue as follows:

"The Federal league and the Newark club," said Powers, "are dead."

"That interests me but mildly," said Mills. "I have a signed contract which declares and affirms that I am to be paid the sum of $3000 for my services through the season of 1916. That the Fed league is dead I deplore—but I didn't kill it. And I don't intend to suffer by its decease."

Following which Mr. Powers said that Mills would get not a cent he did not earn, and Mills said that he was glad and eager to earn it and that if Mr. Powers would state his pleasure he would be glad to comply. And so Mr. Powers stated his pleasure and when Mills goes to the ball yard every day and puts on a game as related he is complying.

Mills is a well grown youngster with a height of six feet and four or five inches, and with proportionate weight. Moreover, he acts like a regular ball player. The Feds picked him up at Notre Dame university, whence many stars have come, and where Mills was a football star as well.

"Last June," says Mills, "when I had graduated from school, a Fed scout came to Notre Dame and signed me up for two years at $3000 a year. Then last winter the Federal league blew and left me without an actual job, but I had the contract with another season to run. And I made up my mind I'd get what was coming to me."

Since starting the one-man ball game idea, Mills has had a chance to go to Toronto at a much smaller figure, but he passed it by. Anyway, Toronto wanted a third baseman and Mills is a first sacker. He was offered $500 to cancel his Fed contract but he couldn't be persuaded.

"If I'd failed to make good at Toronto I'd been out of a job and about $2500 loser. My present job isn't very exciting, but it's pretty good practice, and occasionally a few boys are around to chase my three baggers. I'm going to go through with the thing conscientiously and if I should be given a chance to play tomorrow I'd be in perfect trim."

"Rupe" Mills.

ZINN COMES HOME WITH BAD RIGHT ARM

BIG FELLOW SLIPS A LIGAMENT IN HIS SHOULDER.

Jimmy Says He Feels Like a Loafer, Laying Off When Staff Is Overworked Already.

Jimmie Zinn, who up to the time the Champs took the road, was bringing home a win every out with his good right arm, is at home having that same said arm tinkered on by an osteopath. Jimmie slipped a ligament in his shoulder and will be laid up for about a week, according to his own belief.

"Gee, I've been out only a few days up to now," said Jimmie yesterday, "and it seems like a few years. With Sage not feeling the best in the world, with Donalds, Causey and Hill overworked and with the team facing several doubleheaders, it makes me feel like a loafer laying up here doing nothing. Why, I haven't even tossed a ball for three days. And just because some little old ligament somewhere on the inside of my working shoulder took a notion to change places with some other ligament or other. It's pretty tough, but the doc says I'll be back out there in less than a week now.

"By the way, it don't make much difference who pitches if the old gang goes every day like they did yesterday. Did you ever see such scrapping? They just got their necks bowed to win that game behind Donalds and nobody couldn't have stopped 'em, that's all.

"The foreman was in hopes Sage would be able to work Sunday, and George said he guessed he'd be all right by then, but of course that'll depend on how he feels today. If he's sick and if they don't take on another pitcher—which is unlikely—I don't see how they can play a double-header Sunday. As far as that goes, Newnam isn't in any too good condition, unless he sends Mullins in to pitch the two games.

"The only out, if a double-header is staged, is for Sage to work one game, Causey the other; then let Hill double back Monday and Donalds Tuesday, and maybe by that time I'll be ready to take up my end of the work.

"Gee, I hope so, anyhow, for it hurts to be loafing right now when they need me. Anyhow, they'll need me just as bad, maybe, later, and then I can pay 'em back for the hard times now."

Sporting Comment

THE PERFECT HITTERS YESTERDAY.

Those who batted 1.000 in the Texas, American and National leagues:

Player—	AB.	Hits	Total Bases
Vaughn, Chicago Nat.	1	1	1
Nixon, Beaumont	3	3	3
Jenkins, Houston	4	4	8
Northen, Houston	2	2	3
Malmquist, Waco	4	4	5
Cook, San Antonio	1	1	1
Rousch, N. Y. Nat.	1	1	1
Plank, St. L. Am.	1	1	1
Wambsganss, Cleve.	2	2	2

Grubb held down third base in the second affair, and performed brilliantly in a fielding way.

Wow! Some slugfests. Twenty-nine hits in two games off "Cap Leidy's alleged pitching staff," as the San Antonio writer styles them. Harding won't have any designs on another no-hit game in the near future.

This fellow Jenkins, who catches as a side line, and slugs as a specialty, tore the trademark off Prexy Morris' playpretties during the last seven games. He only hit for twenty-two bases in his last nineteen attempts.

According to a Galveston correspondent, Delehanty is dickering with Gene Moore. Can you beat that? Already has three left-handers and after another. This old sun down in Texas sure be dommed hot, ben't it, Del?

They jes' kept a-pickin' on Jost and Brant and Donalds in that second game. Fans in front of the News scoreboard had hard work in figuring up who was ahead in the last stages of the battle, as every inning brought one or more counts for each side.

A pair of sweet hitters were Malmquist and Bittle throughout the entire bargain affray. The stolid Swede compiled an average of .833 for the day, while the lead-off man got enough bingles to be worth a mark of .667. Archie Tanner was n't even noticed with a measly .500.

According to advices received here, George Sage has about recovered from his recent indisposition, and is ready to go in the box. It is likely that he will oppose the Buffs today. The Bayou gang have been going great guns lately, but Gawge is the one to tame them if he's feeling all right.

Dallas took a flyer into the damp water of the cellar, passing Beaumont, who was on the way out to get a little view of the gang upstate. It's Comment's guess that the Giants will enjoy their view of the pennant race from the same delightful spot unless Joe Gardner strengethens up a bit.

Young Nabors of the Athletics allowed the Red Sox but three hits, and yet he lost. Sheehan, the day before, gave out two hits to the same club and he, too, met defeat. What's the matter with the club's driving power? The kid pitchers have loosened up with the hot weather, but what encouragement do they get?

That raw old border sun got on Ump Vitter's nerves yesterday and led him to do something that other arbiters haven't been forced to do in decades. He plastered fines on two exuberant members of our dynamic young ball club, Donalds and Tanner. Eddie had good reason for beefing, though—he didn't know how his hectic performance was going to pan out.

A. Rankin Johnson was the Texas league iron man yesterday. His slow, toe-kicking delivery had the Pirates baffled through two games, although they did manage to eke out a tie off him in the last encounter. The rest between games apparently did him more harm than good, for he yielded three runs in the first inning, all that Galveston got.

Walters helped catch the Yankees into second place, and whaled out a triple on his own account. Al also has the exclusive job of receiving Cullop, who happens to be the American league's premier twirler in the last published averages. Cullop has won six games and lost none, while his per centage of earned runs to the game, 1.35, is the lowest of any.

Ty Cobb aptly disproved a Gotham sport writer's claim that the Georgian had slowed up this season to such an extent that he would be on the shelf in a couple of years and that the youthful spring and fire had left him. Tyrus hammered out four blows in five times up and stole three bases on Steve O'Neill, reputed to be right up there among the Mask and Mitt Union's select. And he's gaining about 5 points a week on the pace-setters in the hitting division.

Wild Bill, of the Yanks, should exude many thanks,
For Caldwell and Fisher and Keating
Are three shining Rays, who, on their working days
Slip many a ball club a beating.
And even if Bill finds, at chucking the pill,
These glistening stars fail to sparkle,
He needn't get sore, for the Yanks have three more
In Cullop and Mogridge and Markle.

Nags Fighting Hard For League Honors

San Antonio, June 24.—With the Waco Navigators here today in the final games of the series and Dallas the card beginning Sunday, the fans are beginning to realize that the Nags are waging a bitter fight for recognition, one that will keep its seven rivals watching with both eyes.

The fans, too, realize the Nags have two grand pitchers in Harding and Stewart and another likely candidate in Grover Brant. Harding early in the week pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the hard-hitting Shreveport Gassers, much to the delight of local bugs. There was no alibi to Harding's stunt, either, as the Nags did not make an error, only two men getting on the sacks, both via the walk route.

Harry Stewart earlier in the season pitched a no-hit game so that both are entitled to the no-hit sobriquet. That Harding is proud of his stunt there is no question and the long boy looks as if he will finish up the season at a mighty clip.

The Nag infield, with the recent addition of Dee at short and Stark at second, is working like a clock and the pitcher who can't win games with that quartet of pastimers cutting up high jinks on the defensive certainly is in a bad way.

Hatton Ogle again was knocked off the mound Wednesday and the Professor, who was wished on the locals by Ellis Hardy, looks to be about through as a Texas leaguer. He seldom lasts the limit and Prexy Benson is on a still hunt for a live heaver.

IT TAKES A LOT OF MONEY TO RUN A BIG LEAGUE BALL CLUB

The cost of running a ball club is something awful. With a handful of figures and a pencil you can spend a delightful evening figuring how much it takes for the Yanks to go down to St. Louis and take a game—as the case may be—from the Browns.

Through the last fifteen years the big leagues have spent more than $4,000,000 in hotel bills and railroad tickets alone. That's not figuring in training trips or anything like that. Just to haul the players about, feed 'em and pay for their beds. Of course when the team's at home for a spell it isn't so bad.

You take the average big league player. What do you think it costs to transport, feed and house the average big league player when the team is on the road? Eight dollars a day. Good night!

These figures have been compiled by expert accountants and are quite correct. The amount of money spent by ball clubs on necessary expenses through the season, if changed into dollar bills and tied end to end would probably reach from here to the moon or some point adjacent. The sum total of dollar bills spent on baseball, including admissions and all, would do even more amazing tricks.

The $8 spent on the individual player reckons only his railroad ticket, sleeper and hotel keep. Salaries are not included and of course that would swell the sum. Railroad owners and hotel keepers feel friendly toward ball players now, in view of their patronage, and no longer regard them as disorderly hoodlums which once they were somewhat disposed to do. It is also true that players of today are more modest and refined in their manner than once they were. Whether they have mended their behavior that they might have welcome at the leading inns or whether the influence of cultured surroundings has produced this change is what you might call a moot point. At any rate, inn-keepers give them the jovial mitt and are pleased to rake in the reckoning.

WHY DO MEN GROW OLD?

Science Proves That Some Organisms Become Younger With Time.

(London Nation.)

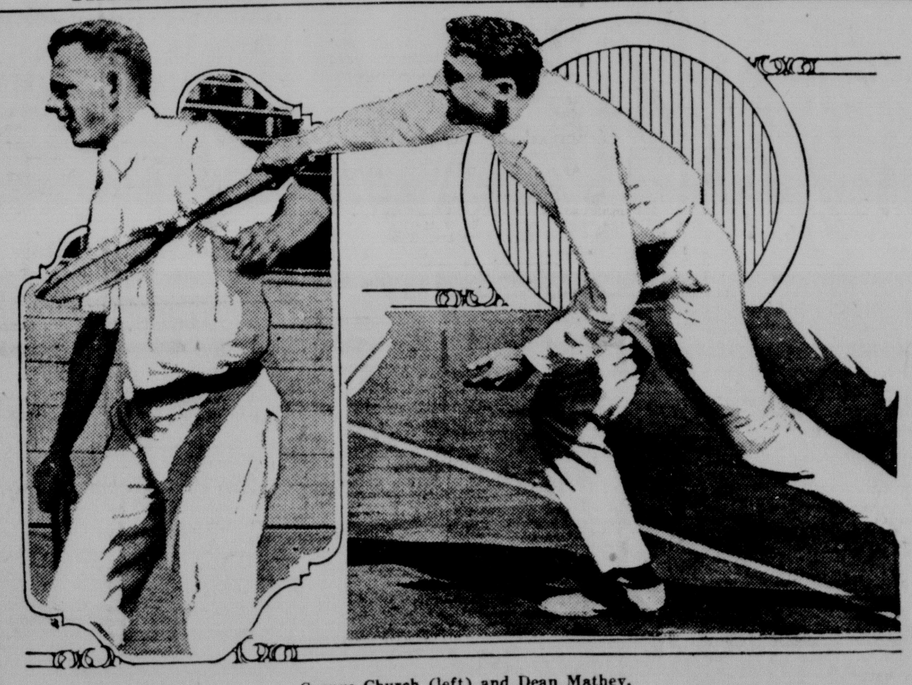

To the question, "Why do we grow old?" many answers have been given. Metschnikoff suggested that we are poisoned by the absorption of the products of bacterial activity in the large intestine, for this brings about hardening of the walls of the arteries and also corrupts our bodyguard of wandering amoeboid cells so that they become traitors, turning upon the cells of the central nervous system. Others have suggested other modes of auto-intoxication. To some it has seemed enough to refer to wear and tear of hard worked organs like brain and heart, liver and kidneys, for a chain is no stronger than its weakest link. Others have referred to the waning activity of the all important organs of internal secretion, and others to the important fact that there is no multiplication or replacement of the cells of our central nervous system after a very early date in our life. It may be pointed out, however, that most, if not all, of the theories break down because they do not admit of all-round application. Thus it is plain that many animals that are not troubled with a large intestine nevertheless grow old. Furthermore, the theories seize on symptoms rather than on causes, for while it is good sense to refer to wear and tear, the question arises why all animals do not exhibit the perfect recuperation to which some at least have attained.

Professor Child of Chicago has been working for fifteen years or more with simple creatures called Planarian worms. One of the features of their life which he brought to light is their capacity for periodically becoming young again. Thus it often happens that a Planarian separates off the posterior third or quarter of its body, which speedily grows into a whole, while the diminished original heals itself and grows a new tail. When a Planarian is starved it can continue living on its own resources for several months. Its cells become smaller and they also become fewer, but life is not surrendered. Such facts have led Professor Child to a survey of the animal kingdom, the result of which is to show that there is a much wider occurrence of rejuvenescence than has been hitherto realized. It occurs especially in connection with vegetative multiplication, but there are other occasions in which the creature becomes younger in whole or in part by lying low for a season. Perhaps this may be part of the value of processes of dying back and rearrangement which occur in winter in some animals and in many plants.

CHURCH AND MATHEY MAY HAVE HOT TUSSLE IN DEFENSE OF THEIR DOUBLES TITLE; CLAY COURT TOURNAMENT AT HAND

George Church and Dean Mathey, who together hold the national clay court doubles championship, will have their title to defend in the national clay court tournament beginning June 24 at the courts of the Lakewood Tennis club, Lakewood, Ohio. So many brilliant youngsters have been upsetting the dope this season that there is warrant for the suspicion that Church and Mathey may be obliged to do their top stride in defense of their title.

ZINN COMES HOME WITH BAD RIGHT ARM

BIG FELLOW SLIPS A LIGAMENT IN HIS SHOULDER.

Jimmy Says He Feels Like a Loafer, Laying Off When Staff Is Overworked Already.

Jimmie Zinn, who up to the time the Champs took the road, was bringing home a win every out with his good right arm, is at home having that same said arm tinkered on by an osteopath. Jimmie slipped a ligament in his shoulder and will be laid up for about a week, according to his own belief.

"Gee, I've been out only a few days up to now," said Jimmie yesterday, 'and it seems like a few years. With Sage not feeling the best in the world, with Donalds, Causey and Hill overworked and with the team facing several doubleheaders, it makes me feel like a loafer laying up here doing nothing. Why, I haven't even tossed a ball for three days. And just because some little old ligament somewhere on the inside of my working shoulder took a notion to change places with some other ligament or other. It's pretty tough, but the doc says I'll be back out there in less than a week now.

"By the way, it don't make much difference who pitches if the old gang goes every day like they did yesterday. Did you ever see such scrapping? They just got their necks bowed to win that game behind Donalds and nobody couldn't have stopped 'em, that's all.

"The foreman was in hopes Sage would be able to work Sunday, and George said he guessed he'd be all right by then, but of course that'll depend on how he feels today. If he's sick and if they don't take on another pitcher—which is unlikely—I don't see how they can play a double-header Sunday. As far as that goes, Newnam isn't in any too good condition, unless he sends Mullins in to pitch the two games.

"The only out, if a double-header is staged, is for Sage to work one game, Causey the other; then let Hill double back Monday and Donalds Tuesday, and maybe by that time I'll be ready to take up my end of the work.

"Gee, I hope so, anyhow, for it hurts to be loafing right now when they need me. Anyhow, they'll need me just as bad, maybe, later, and then I can pay 'em back for the hard times now."

THE PERFECT HITTERS YESTERDAY.

Those who batted 1.000 in the Texas, American and National leagues:

Player—	AB.	Hits	Total Bases
Vaughn, Chicago Nat..	1	1	1
Nixon, Beaumont	3	3	3
Jenkins, Houston	4	4	8
Northen, Houston	2	2	3
Malmquist, Waco	4	4	5
Cook, San Antonio.....	1	1	1
Rousch, N. Y. Nat.....	1	1	1
Plank, St. L. Am.....	1	1	1
Wambsganss, Cleve....	2	2	2

Grubb held down third base in the second affair, and performed brilliantly in a fielding way.

Wow! Some slugfests. Twenty-nine hits in two games off "Cap Leidy's alleged pitching staff," as the San Antonio writer styles them. Harding won't have any designs on another no-hit game in the near future.

This fellow Jenkins, who catches as a side line, and slugs as a specialty, tore the trademark off Prexy Morris' playpretties during the last seven games. He only hit for twenty-two bases in his last nineteen attempts.

According to a Galveston correspondent, Delehanty is dickering with Gene Moore. Can you beat that? Already has three left-handers and after another. This old sun down in Texas sure be dommed hot, ben't it, Del?

They jes' kept a-pickin' on Jost and Brant and Donalds in that second game. Fans in front of the News scoreboard had hard work in figuring up who was ahead in the last stages of the battle, as every inning brought one or more counts for each side.

A pair of sweet hitters were Malmquist and Bittle throughout the entire bargain affray. The stolid Swede compiled an average of .833 for the day, while the lead-off man got enough bingles to be worth a mark of .667. Archie Tanner was n't even noticed with a measly .500.

According to advices received here, George Sage has about recovered from his recent indisposition, and is ready to go in the box. It is likely that he will oppose the Buffs today. The Bayou gang has been going great guns lately, but Gawge is the one to tame them if he's feeling all right.

Dallas took a flyer into the damp water of the cellar, passing Beaumont, who was on the way out to get a little view of the gang upstate. It's Comment's guess that the Giants will enjoy their view of the pennant race from the same delightful spot unless Joe Gardner strengethens up a bit.

Young Nabors of the Athletics allowed the Red Sox but three hits, and yet he lost. Sheehan, the day before, gave out two hits to the same club and he, too, met defeat. What's the matter with the club's driving power? The kid pitchers have loosened up with the hot weather, but what encouragement do they get?

That raw old border sun got on Ump Vitter's nerves yesterday and led him to do something that other arbiters haven't been forced to do in decades. He plastered fines on two exuberant members of our dynamic young ball club, Donalds and Tanner. Eddie had good reason for beefing, though—he didn't know how his hectic performance was going to pan out.

A. Rankin Johnson was the Texas league iron man yesterday. His slow, toe-kicking delivery had the Pirates baffled through two games, although they did manage to eke out a tie off him in the last encounter. The rest between games apparently did him more harm than good, for he yielded three runs in the first inning, all that Galveston got.

Walters helped catch the Yankees into second place, and whaled out a triple on his own account. Al also has the exclusive job of receiving Cullop, who happens to be the American league's premier twirler in the last published averages. Cullop has won six games and lost none, while his per centage of earned runs to the game, 1.35, is the lowest of any.

Ty Cobb aptly disproved a Gotham sport writer's claim that the Georgian had slowed up this season to such an extent that he would be on the shelf in a couple of years and that the youthful spring and fire had left him. Tyrus hammered out four blows in five times up and stole three bases on Steve O'Neill, reputed to be right up there among the Mask and Mitt Union's select. And he's gaining about 5 points a week on the pace-setters in the hitting division.

Wild Bill, of the Yanks, should exude many thanks,
For Caldwell and Fisher and Keating
Are three shining Rays, who, on their working days
Slip many a ball club a beating.
And even if Bill finds, at chucking the pill,
These glistening stars fail to sparkle,
He needn't get sore, for the Yanks have three more
In Cullop and Mogridge and Markle.

Nags Fighting Hard For League Honors

San Antonio, June 24.—With the Waco Navigators here today in the final games of the series and Dallas the card beginning Sunday, the fans are beginning to realize that the Nags are waging a bitter fight for recognition, one that will keep its seven rivals watching with both eyes.

The fans, too, realize the Nags have two grand pitchers in Harding and Stewart and another likely candidate in Grover Brant. Harding early in the week pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the hard-hitting Shreveport Gassers, much to the delight of local bugs. There was no alibi to Harding's stunt, either, as the Nags did not make an error, only two men getting on the sacks, both via the walk route.

Harry Stewart earlier in the season pitched a no-hit game so that both are entitled to the no-hit sobriquet. That Harding is proud of his stunt there is no question and the long boy looks as if he will finish up the season at a mighty clip.

The Nag infield, with the recent addition of Dee at short and Stark at second, is working like a clock and the pitcher who can't win games with that quartet of pastimers cutting up high jinks on the defensive certainly is in a bad way.

Hatton Ogle again was knocked off the mound Wednesday and the Professor, who was wished on the locals by Ellis Hardy, looks to be about through as a Texas leaguer. He seldom lasts the limit and Prexy Benson is on a still hunt for a live heaver.

WHY DO MEN GROW OLD?

Science Proves That Some Organisms Become Younger With Time.

(London Nation.)

To the question, "Why do we grow old?" many answers have been given. Metschnikoff suggested that we are poisoned by the absorption of the products of bacterial activity in the large intestine, for this brings about hardening of the walls of the arteries and also corrupts our bodyguard of wandering amoeboid cells so that they become traitors, turning upon the cells of the central nervous system. Others have suggested other modes of auto-intoxication. To some it has seemed enough to refer to wear and tear of hard worked organs like brain and heart, liver and kidneys, for a chain is no stronger than its weakest link. Others have referred to the waning activity of the all important organs of internal secretion, and others to the important fact that there is no multiplication or replacement of the cells of our central nervous system after a very early date in our life. It may be pointed out, however, that most, if not all, of the theories break down because they do not admit of all-round application. Thus it is plain that many animals that are not troubled with a large intestine nevertheless grow old. Furthermore, the theories seize on symptoms rather than on causes, for while it is good sense to refer to wear and tear, the question arises why all animals do not exhibit the perfect recuperation to which some at least have attained.

Professor Child of Chicago has been working for fifteen years or more with simple creatures called Planarian worms. One of the features of their life which he brought to light is their capacity for periodically becoming young again. Thus it often happens that a Planarian separates off the posterior third or quarter of its body, which speedily grows into a whole, while the diminished original heals itself and grows a new tail. When a Planarian is starved it can continue living on its own resources for several months. Its cells become smaller and they also become fewer, but life is not surrendered. Such facts have led Professor Child to a survey of the animal kingdom, the result of which is to show that there is a much wider occurrence of rejuvenescence than has been hitherto realized. It occurs especially in connection with vegetative multiplication, but there are other occasions in which the creature becomes younger in whole or in part by lying low for a season. Perhaps this may be part of the value of processes of dying back and rearrangement which occur in winter in some animals and in many plants.

The cost of running a ball club is something awful. With a handful of figures and a pencil you can spend a delightful evening figuring how much it takes for the Yanks to go down to St. Louis and take a game—as the case may be—from the Browns.

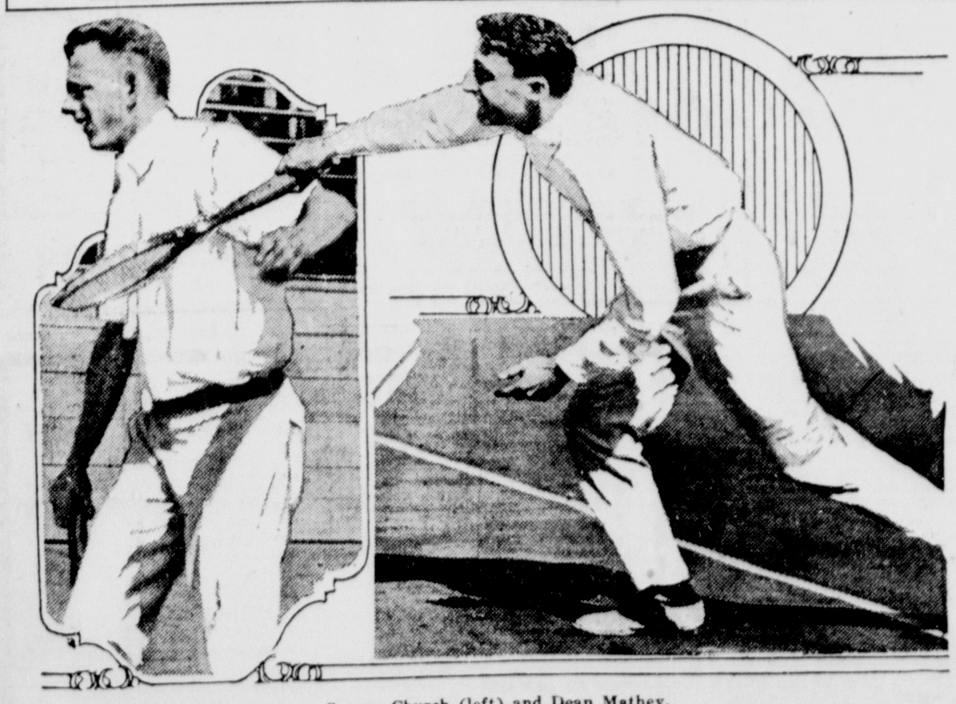

Through the last fifteen years the big leagues have spent more than $4,000,000 in hotel bills and railroad tickets alone. That's not figuring in training trips or anything like that. Just to haul the players about, feed 'em and pay for their beds. Of course when the team's at home for a spell it isn't so bad.

You take the average big league player. What do you think it costs to transport, feed and house the average big league player when the team is on the road? Eight dollars a day. Good night!

These figures have been compiled by expert accountants and are quite correct. The amount of money spent by ball clubs on necessary expenses through the season, if changed into dollar bills and tied end to end would probably reach from here to the moon or some point adjacent. The sum total of dollar bills spent on baseball, including admissions and all, would do even more amazing tricks.

The $8 spent on the individual player reckons only his railroad ticket, sleeper and hotel keep. Salaries are not included and of course that would swell the sum. Railroad owners and hotel keepers feel friendly toward ball players now, in view of their patronage, and no longer regard them as disorderly hoodlums which once they were somewhat disposed to do. It is also true that players of today are more modest and refined in their manner than once they were. Whether they have mended their behavior that they might have welcome at the leading inns or whether the influence of cultured surroundings has produced this change is what you might call a moot point. At any rate, inn-keepers give them the jovial mitt and are pleased to rake in the reckoning.

CHURCH AND MATHEY MAY HAVE HOT TUSSLE IN DEFENSE OF THEIR DOUBLES TITLE; CLAY COURT TOURNAMENT AT HAND

George Church and Dean Mathey, who together hold the national clay court doubles championship, will have their title to defend in the national clay court tournament beginning June 24 at the courts of the Lakewood Tennis club, Lakewood, Ohio. So many brilliant youngsters have been upsetting the dope this season that there is warrant for the suspicion that Church and Mathey may be obliged to do their top stride in defense of their title.

The noted preacher, once, while being shown through a cotton factory, said as he watched the life-like workings of the loom, "That thing ought to vote." This was before the day of automobiles. The mechanical workmanship of a fine automobile resembles more the workings of an intelligent being than did the loom which Mr. Moody was watching when he remarked, "That thing ought to vote." Do you ever consider these facts when your automobile is out of order, when your motor needs mechanical attention? Don't mistreat your car. When it needs attention, carry it to men who specialize on high-class workmanship on high-class automobiles.

Wins New Fame in Mexican Campaign

In the recent attack by American troops in Mexico, which resulted in the killing of Colonel Julio Cardenas, a Villa leader, second in importance only to his chief, Dodge Brothers motor cars were the vehicles used in a thrilling charge. Without the fast going, sturdy cars, it would have been impossible to have gotten Col. Cardenas.

The Cardenas ranch is so situated that it was impossible for the troops to approach within three miles without being sighted. Spies had reported to the American troops several times that bandits were making their headquarters there, but when cavalry would proceed to the ranch the bandits would have escaped and only the women and children would be left.

General Pershing finally ordered three of the Dodge Brothers cars attached to his division to be filled with men and started for the ranch.

They proceeded quietly until they topped a rise nearly three miles from the ranch. Then the drivers "stepped on it" and raced for the ranch at a speed of nearly sixty miles per hour, although the going was so rough that the men had to cling desperately to keep from being thrown out.

Col. Cardenas, with two men, were at the ranch. They hurried out and attempted to escape, but the motor column was on them before they could get away, and in a pistol duel with Lieut. Patton, Cardenas was wounded and afterwards killed by troopers when he tried to escape.

Sportsmanship In Racing.

It takes a true sportsman to give a good account of himself in defeat. It is hard for most of us to bear reverses with a smile and without a murmur or a complaint. Recognizing this failing of the average person, it is indeed refreshing to encounter so true a sportsman as Ralph de Palma.

Twice in four years he has had to taste defeat when victory seemed almost within his grasp, and twice have followers of the racing game been treated to an exhibition of the clean sportsmanship of the famous driver. Probably no race pilot has had to smile and show the stuff of which he is made as has de Palma, who in the Chicago race of Sunday met with reverses almost as disheartening as on that well remembered day at Indianapolis four years ago when, with only two laps more to go, and first money easily his, he was obliged to give up because his engine failed him.

De Palma drives for all that is in him; if he wins he is not the least bit top-heavy over it; if he loses he is still the same smiling, philosophical Ralph. Few of us can meet defeat so gracefully. Such exhibitions of unadulterated manhood are rare, and the racing game and its followers are to be congratulated on having such men in their midst. Our hats are off to Ralph.

GOODYEAR TIRE CO. FURNISH BALLOON TO AMERICAN NAVY

Is First Kite Balloon Ever Constructed by Any Concern for Uncle Sam.

The distinction of furnishing the United States navy with its first kite balloon has fallen to the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, Akron, Ohio. Kite balloons are so called because of the method of rigging, which is similar to that of a boy's kite. They are also known as captive balloons from the practice of holding them captive at any desired height by means of a wire cable attached to balloon rigging.

The balloon which has just been delivered to the navy was designed by Goodyear aeronautical engineers and made entirely in the Goodyear factories. It has been placed in commission at the United States navy aeronautic station at Pensacola, Florida, and is eighty-one feet in height while its largest diameter is twenty-two feet. Hydrogen gas is used in inflating the big sausage-shaped bag. This gas is produced by a simplified process through the use of a hydrogen generator.

Kite balloons are being used by the hundreds on both sides in the European war. They are of inestimable value in making military observations and directing the fire of batteries and battleships. Their general purpose is to keep a watch on the whole fighting front both on sea and land.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company recently sent an aeronautic expert abroad to study developments in the use of kite balloons in order to be better able to assist the United States government in building up the aeronautical branch of the service.

In addition to the new kite balloon, the United States navy owns a Goodyear spherical balloon, modeled after the famous racing balloon, "Goodyear," which won the international championship at Paris in 1913.

Offer Standing Reward for Auto Thieves

Milwaukee, Wis., June 22.—A standing offer of $50 reward for the arrest and conviction of every motor car thief for an indefinite period has been hung up by the Milwaukee Automobile Dealers, Inc., to protect Milwaukee city and county motorists from the wave of thefts of the last few months.

Milwaukee has been afflicted for a long time by a coterie of motor bandits, who proved to be nothing more than joy-riders. Cars were stolen for an hour or two and then abandoned in a badly damaged condition.

The M. A. D. has appointed a vigilance committee consisting of President Alton J. March, Leslie D. Frint, John G. Wolleager, Frank J. Edwards, Ray C. Chidester, Secretary Herbert Bonnell and Treasurer Jesse A. Smith.

Placards have also been printed and mailed to the police, sheriffs, marshals, garage owners, automobile dealers and hotel keepers in twenty counties around Milwauke, advising them of the standing offer.

INFLATED MONEY RAISES PRICES.

Americans Now Have More Cash Than Before, but Buying Power Is Less.

(From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

Said the wise old somebody-or-other, "Money makes the mare go." It also makes prices go, and go just one way, and that is the direction taken by the smoke in the chimney.

Mr. McAdoo has again counted for us the amount of cash in circulation. For each person in the land there is $38.36, although sometimes one feels lucky to have just the thirty-six cents. That is more money than Americans ever had before. It is $3.17 more than each of us possessed only two years ago. But you see one result of this huge amount of money is a higher price for everything you purchase.

If there were $100 in circulation for everybody, everybody would pay vastly more for every article than is paid today.

Lots of money is the common way of saying inflation, and inflation spells more troubles than Pandora found in the box.

It is easy to imagine copper at such a high price that it would pay to melt down our pennies for the mtal in them.

It is easier to picture a price for silver that would make a neat profit in melting half the silver money in the world and turning it into bullion.

The allies saw that every picture after they had been bidding against each other for silver and which buying sent to a perilous price. Fifteen cents an ounce more and bang.

If the nations paid too much for silver to make new money all the old silver money would flee to the smelters and convert itself into bullion. That is why the allies put their heads together and decided to stop buying the white metal and so permit it to take a tumble.

MAKES HIS MONEY EN ROUTE.

California Banker Adopts Novel Plan for Publicity.

(Philadelphia North American.)

Atlantic City, N. J.—A genuine California booster is in our midst. He is C. F. Langley of Watsonville, Cal.

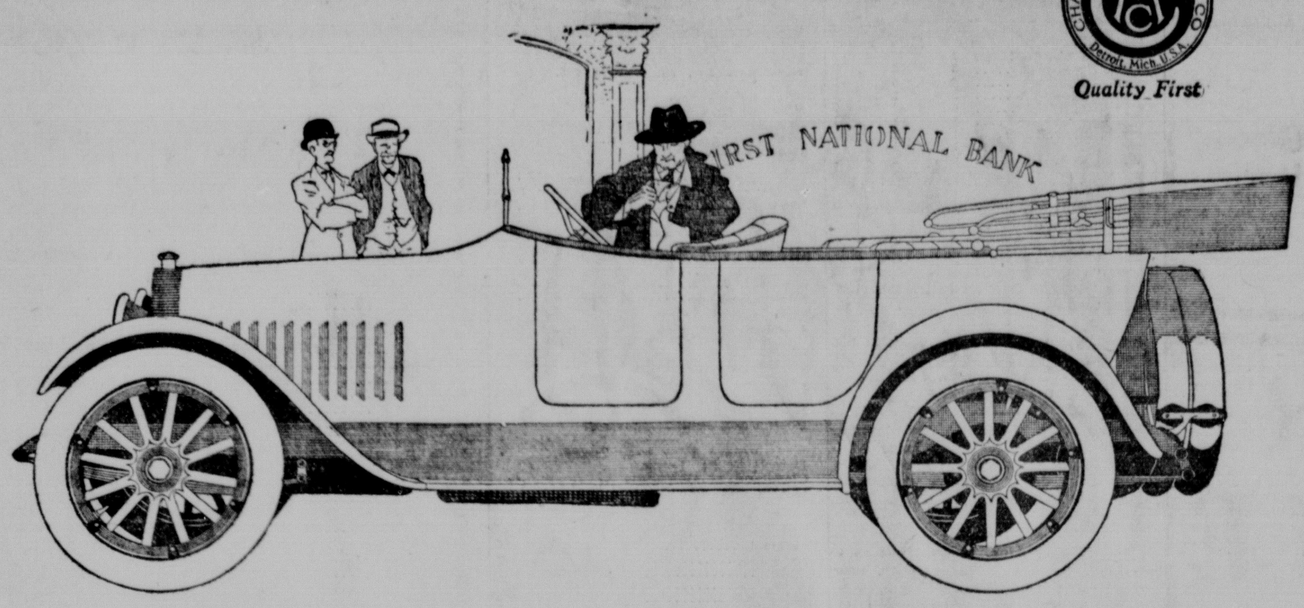

Mr. Langley is president of the Pajaro Valley National bank, in Watsonville, and he puts the bank, the town and the state on the map by advertising in an unusual way.

Whenever a waiter presents a check in the dining room, Mr. Langley brings out a pair of scissors and a roll of green paper, clips off a $5 bank note, signs it with his fountain pen and pays the check. The captains and waiters know their business and accepted Mr. Langley's money making stunt without a lift of the eyebrows. The bank notes are already signed by the cashier of the California bank.

A new truck tire catalog is now being issued to the trade by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company. It is primarily a booklet for truck owners and discusses the factors which are important in motor truck tires. The object of the booklet is to place before truck owners the plain, simple facts about Goodyear tires and to lead business men to give more attention to a matter that may involve hundreds of dollars yearly. A copy will be sent free to any truck owner.

For years truck engineers have resorted to the expedient of putting two tires side by side on the same wheel, to get the advantages of pneumatic equipment. The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company has perfected a large pneumatic tire which is rapidly replacing this dual equipment. The single tire obviously does away with the difficulty of maintaining equal air pressure.

To make a larger area available as a site for the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company's new mechanical goods and chemical plants which have become imperative to accommodate the rapidly increasing volume of business in Goodcavating a new channel for the Little Cuyahoga river, and incidentally shortyear mechanicals, the company is exening its course.

CHALMERS MOTOR CO. Detroit, Mich. U.S.A.

Quality First

ABILITY

That's the one word that fully describes the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers

A man came in to my place the other day and said:

"What! a 3400 r.p.m. Chalmers at $1090. I never knew Chalmers built a car under $2,000."

So many ask the same question. We never feature price in big type. We don't sell price. We sell a car first; then tell how much it costs afterwards.

I suppose we lose some sales that way. But, of course, we have a car of such decided quality, of such extraordinary ability, of such terrific power from an engine that you wonder where it all comes from—well, we just don't know how to talk price when so many other things bob up in our minds.

Now take power. Here it is rated at 25.3 H. P. when you buy your license. You get her out in mud, or sand, or on a hill—and bing, you can just double that figure.

You have got just about 100 per cent more power than we give her credit for.

Of course, lots of cars have great big power. But with most of them you've got to pay the piper every time you use it. Those big power cars have great big engines mostly, and great big engines have a terrific appetite for gas. You know, I don't need to tell you.

And not only power, but she gets away like a scared horse. I have to watch my foot when it is on the little button. First thing I know I am going too fast.

That's what the boys back at the Chalmers plant call "acceleration." I call it "pep." That's my language.

Now it is all different.

People are buying cars more intelligently. They want what they call ability. There are too many cars that look alike and have the same price tag on them. The only thing that separates them is ability. There's all the difference in the wide world between cars when you look at them this way.

One car is sluggish like a ploughing horse. Another has got a light foot and gets under way without taking a quarter mile to get into high.

Why, with this 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers I forget once in a while and actually start her on high.

There aren't many cars that ever do that.

Then she runs so everlastingly quiet I am always a little bit suspicious of her—like a fellow who doesn't talk much, but usually delivers.

She's got anything in this town beat. So far I have yet to meet her equal in "pep." She's got everything from get-away to a twister on a hill.

Then when you come right down to look at her, you will have to admit she's got blue eyes. She's beautiful.

The big-town people have all fallen for her this year. I got a letter from the factory the other day telling me they had shipped 18,000 since December 1.

And there are thousand of orders unfilled.

Take a friendly tip and get your order on file now. I don't want to see you disappointed by delayed delivery right in the best part of the driving season.

You folks who have driven a lot will see the difference in a jiffy. Come on down and try her out. She's there.

Chicago, June 24.—The $2,000,000 merger which was looked upon as the greatest consolidation in the history of commerce has been abandoned. This merger, which was to unite the Willys-Overland, Hudson, Chalmers and Auto-Lite forces, together with a number of others, was called off this morning on account of complications arising out of the distribution of stock in the new company. Soon after the brokerage offices opened this morning, wires from New York brought a statement from John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland company, and the proposed head of the new organization, in which he said:

"Because of complications, the proposed consolidation has been abandoned. Therefore, the Willys-Overland, Hudson, Chalmers and Auto-Lite companies will continue to operate individually."

REASON FOR MERGER.

The reason given for the proposed merger was the abnormal state of the raw material market. In view of the fact that every large manufacturing concern this year has suffered more or less severely owing to the unexpected rise in the price of steel and many other commodities, it was felt that the best insurance against fluctuations in the cost of raw material was either for the motor car plants to establish steel mills of their own, or to form combinations of such strength financially that they could take over existing steel mills, thereby absorbing them into the merger virtually if not actually.

Everything seemed to be moving serenely at the time the merger was announced in last week's issue of Motor Age. It was understood that each company in the merger was to get a certain amount of stock and cash and rumors receivd here today are to the effect that there was some difference of opinion as to the proper distribution of power.

A most remarkable demonstration of motor car and tire efficiency was conducted recently, in which a Maxwell car equipped with Goodyear cord tires covered forty-five miles on a single gallon of gasoline, running from Oakland to San Jose, Cal. The gasoline was measured carefully and carried in a gallon can fastened to the side of the car, and all connections between the carburetor and the regular gasoline supply severed. The Goodyear cord tires were a very important factor in this remarkable run. Their power saving qualities made possible the attainment of such unusual mileage. Their air capacity is 10 per cent more than that of regular fabric tires, which permits a corresponding reduction of 10 per cent in air pressure.

New Plant for Jordan Company Is Completed

Cleveland, Ohio, June 24.—The new plant of the Jordan Motor company, for which ground was broken in Cleveland April 1, was completed and ready for occupancy May 25.

The Jordan executive and factory organization is now complete and shipments are expected to begin within thirty days. The plant is of the most modern construction, admirably adapted to the production of a high-grade car. The details of the Jordan car are yet to be made public.

Only 100 well established dealers will be given selling privileges for the Jordan car, as it is the intention of the company to establish a schedule of deliveries which can be maintained and to provide a system of inspection which will make this car distinctive in the trade, it is stated.

County Purchases Seven Dodge Cars

A striking tribute to Dodge Brothers cars has been given in Los Angeles, where the county has purchased a fleet of seven Dodge Brothers cars for use in public work.

In no place in this country is competition more keen in motor car selling than in Southern California, and when a purchase is to be made by public officials, this competition is intensified, as the prestige of being selected is very desirable.

Dodge Brothers cars were selected in the present instance after a careful investigation, and turned particularly on the cost of up-keep. The officials found, according to their statement in recommending the purchase, that the Dodge Brothers car were particulary low in repair costs as well as general operating expenses when service rendered was considered; in fact, they led all of the cars tested by a wide margin.

DWIGHT L. MOODY

The noted preacher, once, while being shown through a cotton factory, said as he watched the life-like workings of the loom, "That thing ought to vote." This was before the day of automobiles. The mechanical workmanship of a fine automobile resembles more the workings of an intelligent being than did the loom which Mr. Moody was watching when he remarked, "That thing ought to vote." Do you ever consider these facts when your automobile is out of order, when your motor needs mechanical attention? Don't mistreat your car. When it needs attention, carry it to men who specialize on high-class workmanship on high-class automobiles.

Wins New Fame in Mexican Campaign

In the recent attack by American troops in Mexico, which resulted in the killing of Colonel Julio Cardenas, a Villa leader, second in importance only to his chief, Dodge Brothers motor cars were the vehicles used in a thrilling charge. Without the fast going, sturdy cars, it would have been impossible to have gotten Col. Cardenas.

The Cardenas ranch is so situated that it was impossible for the troops to approach within three miles without being sighted. Spies had reported to the American troops several times that bandits were making their headquarters there, but when cavalry would proceed to the ranch the bandits would have escaped and only the women and children would be left.

General Pershing finally ordered three of the Dodge Brothers cars attached to his division to be filled with men and started for the ranch.

They proceeded quietly until they topped a rise nearly three miles from the ranch. Then the drivers "stepped on it" and raced for the ranch at a speed of nearly sixty miles per hour, although the going was so rough that the men had to cling desperately to keep from being thrown out.

Col. Cardenas, with two men, were at the ranch. They hurried out and attempted to escape, but the motor column was on them before they could get away, and in a pistol duel with Lieut. Patton, Cardenas was wounded and afterwards killed by troopers when he tried to escape.

Sportsmanship In Racing.

It takes a true sportsman to give a good account of himself in defeat. It is hard for most of us to bear reverses with a smile and without a murmur or a complaint. Recognizing this failing of the average person, it is indeed refreshing to encounter so true a sportsman as Ralph de Palma.

Twice in four years he has had to taste defeat when victory seemed almost within his grasp, and twice have followers of the racing game been treated to an exhibition of the clean sportsmanship of the famous driver. Probably no race pilot has had to smile and show the stuff of which he is made as has de Palma, who in the Chicago race of Sunday met with reverses almost as disheartening as on that well remembered day at Indianapolis four years ago when, with only two laps more to go, and first money easily his, he was obliged to give up because his engine failed him.

De Palma drives for all that is in him; if he wins he is not the least bit top-heavy over it; if he loses he is still the same smiling, philosophical Ralph. Few of us can meet defeat so gracefully. Such exhibitions of unadulterated manhood are rare, and the racing game and its followers are to be congratulated on having such men in their midst. Our hats are off to Ralph.

The distinction of furnishing the United States navy with its first kite balloon has fallen to the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, Akron, Ohio. Kite balloons are so called because of the method of rigging, which is similar to that of a boy's kite. They are also known as captive balloons from the practice of holding them captive at any desired height by means of a wire cable attached to balloon rigging.

The balloon which has just been delivered to the navy was designed by Goodyear aeronautical engineers and made entirely in the Goodyear factories. It has been placed in commission at the United States navy aeronautic station at Pensacola, Florida, and is eighty-one feet in height while its largest diameter is twenty-two feet. Hydrogen gas is used in inflating the big sausage-shaped bag. This gas is produced by a simplified process through the use of a hydrogen generator.

Kite balloons are being used by the hundreds on both sides in the European war. They are of inestimable value in making military observations and directing the fire of batteries and battleships. Their general purpose is to keep a watch on the whole fighting front both on sea and land.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company recently sent an aeronautic expert abroad to study developments in the use of kite balloons in order to be better able to assist the United States government in building up the aeronautical branch of the service.

In addition to the new kite balloon, the United States navy owns a Goodyear spherical balloon, modeled after the famous racing balloon, "Goodyear," which won the international championship at Paris in 1913.

Offer Standing Reward for Auto Thieves

Milwaukee, Wis., June 22.—A standing offer of $50 reward for the arrest and conviction of every motor car thief for an indefinite period has been hung up by the Milwaukee Automobile Dealers, Inc., to protect Milwaukee city and county motorists from the wave of thefts of the last few months.

Milwaukee has been afflicted for a long time by a coterie of motor bandits, who proved to be nothing more than joy-riders. Cars were stolen for an hour or two and then abandoned in a badly damaged condition.

The M. A. D. has appointed a vigilance committee consisting of President Alton J. March, Leslie D. Frint, John G. Wolleager, Frank J. Edwards, Ray C. Chidester, Secretary Herbert Bonnell and Treasurer Jesse A. Smith.

Placards have also been printed and mailed to the police, sheriffs, marshals, garage owners, automobile dealers and hotel keepers in twenty counties around Milwauke, advising them of the standing offer.

INFLATED MONEY RAISES PRICES.

(From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

Said the wise old somebody-or-other, "Money makes the mare go." It also makes prices go, and go just one way, and that is the direction taken by the smoke in the chimney.

Mr. McAdoo has again counted for us the amount of cash in circulation. For each person in the land there is $38.36, although sometimes one feels lucky to have just the thirty-six cents. That is more money than Americans ever had before. It is $3.17 more than each of us possessed only two years ago. But you see one result of this huge amount of money is a higher price for everything you purchase.

If there were $100 in circulation for everybody, everybody would pay vastly more for every article than is paid today.

Lots of money is the common way of saying inflation, and inflation spells more troubles than Pandora found in the box.

It is easy to imagine copper at such a high price that it would pay to melt down our pennies for the mtal in them.

It is easier to picture a price for silver that would make a neat profit in melting half the silver money in the world and turning it into bullion.

The allies saw that every picture after they had been bidding against each other for silver and which buying sent to a perilous price. Fifteen cents an ounce more and bang.

If the nations paid too much for silver to make new money all the old silver money would flee to the smelters and convert itself into bullion. That is why the allies put their heads together and decided to stop buying the white metal and so permit it to take a tumble.

MAKES HIS MONEY EN ROUTE.

California Banker Adopts Novel Plan for Publicity.

(Philadelphia North American.)

Atlantic City, N. J.—A genuine California booster is in our midst. He is C. F. Langley of Watsonville, Cal.

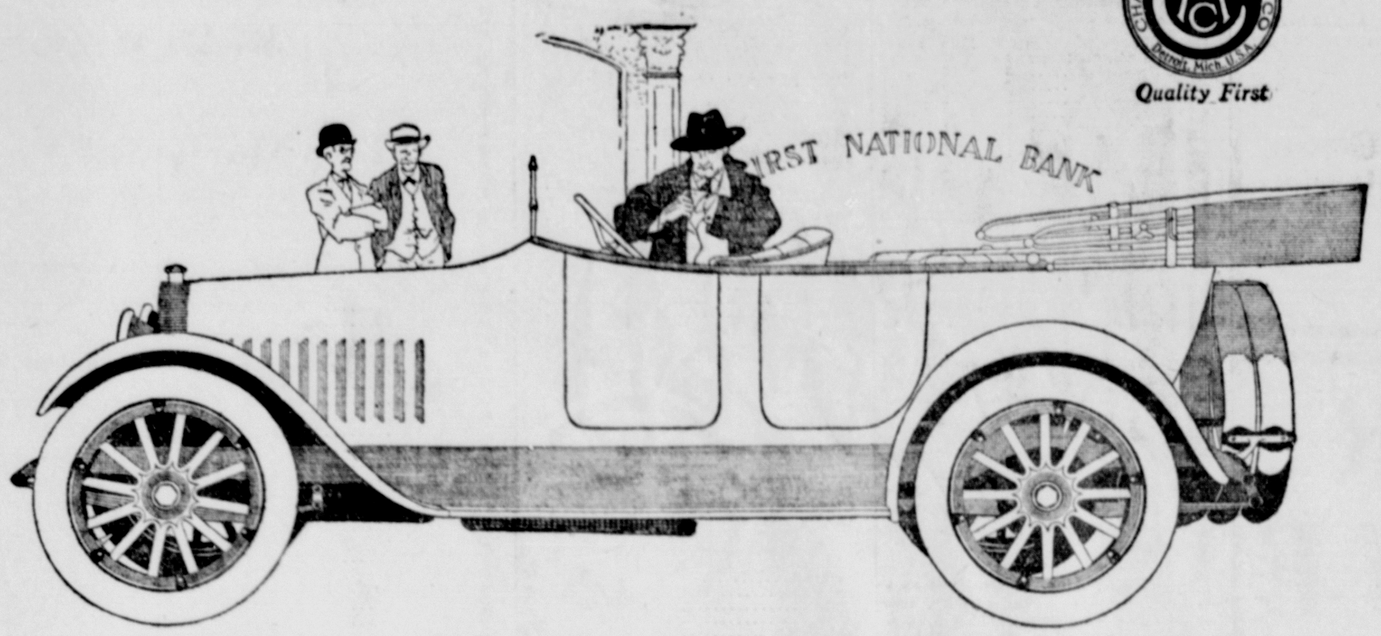

Mr. Langley is president of the Pajaro Valley National bank, in Watsonville, and he puts the bank, the town and the state on the map by advertising in an unusual way.

Whenever a waiter presents a check in the dining room, Mr. Langley brings out a pair of scissors and a roll of green paper, clips off a $5 bank note, signs it with his fountain pen and pays the check. The captains and waiters know their business and accepted Mr. Langley's money making stunt without a lift of the eyebrows. The bank notes are already signed by the cashier of the California bank.

A new truck tire catalog is now being issued to the trade by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company. It is primarily a booklet for truck owners and discusses the factors which are important in motor truck tires. The object of the booklet is to place before truck owners the plain, simple facts about Goodyear tires and to lead business men to give more attention to a matter that may involve hundreds of dollars yearly. A copy will be sent free to any truck owner.

For years truck engineers have resorted to the expedient of putting two tires side by side on the same wheel, to get the advantages of pneumatic equipment. The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company has perfected a large pneumatic tire which is rapidly replacing this dual equipment. The single tire obviously does away with the difficulty of maintaining equal air pressure.

To make a larger area available as a site for the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company's new mechanical goods and chemical plants which have become imperative to accommodate the rapidly increasing volume of business in Goodcavating a new channel for the Little Cuyahoga river, and incidentally shortyear mechanicals, the company is exening its course.

CHALMERS MOTOR CO. Detroit, Mich. U.S.A.

ABILITY

That's the one word that fully describes the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers

A man came in to my place the other day and said:

So many ask the same question. We never feature price in big type. We don't sell price. We sell a car first; then tell how much it costs afterwards.

I suppose we lose some sales that way. But, of course, we have a car of such decided quality, of such extraordinary ability, of such terrific power from an engine that you wonder where it all comes from—well, we just don't know how to talk price when so many other things bob up in our minds.

Now take power. Here it is rated at 25.3 H. P. when you buy your license. You get her out in mud, or sand, or on a hill—and bing, you can just double that figure.

You have got just about 100 per cent more power than we give her credit for.

Of course, lots of cars have great big power. But with most of them you've got to pay the piper every time you use it. Those big power cars have great big engines mostly, and great big engines have a terrific appetite for gas. You know, I don't need to tell you.

And not only power, but she gets away like a scared horse. I have to watch my foot when it is on the little button. First thing I know I am going too fast.

That's what the boys back at the Chalmers plant call "acceleration." I call it "pep." That's my language.

Now it is all different.

People are buying cars more intelligently. They want what they call ability. There are too many cars that look alike and have the same price tag on them. The only thing that separates them is ability. There's all the difference in the wide world between cars when you look at them this way.

One car is sluggish like a ploughing horse. Another has got a light foot and gets under way without taking a quarter mile to get into high.

Why, with this 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers I forget once in a while and actually start her on high.

There aren't many cars that ever do that.

Then she runs so everlastingly quiet I am always a little bit suspicious of her—like a fellow who doesn't talk much, but usually delivers.

She's got anything in this town beat. So far I have yet to meet her equal in "pep." She's got everything from get-away to a twister on a hill.

Then when you come right down to look at her, you will have to admit she's got blue eyes. She's beautiful.

The big-town people have all fallen for her this year. I got a letter from the factory the other day telling me they had shipped 18,000 since December 1.

And there are thousand of orders unfilled.

Take a friendly tip and get your order on file now. I don't want to see you disappointed by delayed delivery right in the best part of the driving season.

You folks who have driven a lot will see the difference in a jiffy. Come on down and try her out. She's there.

Chicago, June 24.—The $2,000,000 merger which was looked upon as the greatest consolidation in the history of commerce has been abandoned. This merger, which was to unite the Willys-Overland, Hudson, Chalmers and Auto-Lite forces, together with a number of others, was called off this morning on account of complications arising out of the distribution of stock in the new company. Soon after the brokerage offices opened this morning, wires from New York brought a statement from John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland company, and the proposed head of the new organization, in which he said:

"Because of complications, the proposed consolidation has been abandoned. Therefore, the Willys-Overland, Hudson, Chalmers and Auto-Lite companies will continue to operate individually."

WACO TEXAS

Location Decided Upon by Chamber of Commerce Directors

Much interest has been shown by the public in the announcement that the Chamber of Commerce will have downtown and downstairs quarters, using the building formerly occupied by the Texas Telephone company on North Fifth street, in a few weeks.

The downstairs floor and the upstairs will be used, and a fine auditorium for meetings will be upstairs. The traffic department will be with the Chamber of Commerce, and County Demonstration Agent J. A. Pipkin will also have an office there, making this quite a center.

In the larger cities the custom is to have the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce on the ground floor, this being much more businesslike, and Waco is now to come in on this basis. The rooms which have been used were quite desirable, but it is stated by some of the directors that the new plan is more modern and probably will prove more satisfactory.

THEATRES

HIPPODROME.

Program for Week.

Monday and Tuesday—H. B. Warner in the new Triangle play, "The Market of Vain Desire." New Keystone (title later).

Wednesday and Thursday—William S. Hart in the Ince Triangle play, "The Apostle of Vengeance," and Billie Burke in the latest episode of "Gloria's Romance"—"The Mesh of Mystery."

Friday and Saturday—Bertha Kalich in the new Fox photodrama, "Ambition," also new Keystone, "The Snow Cure" with Ford Sterling, and new Mutt and Jeff cartoon.

"The Market of Vain Desire."

"The Market of Vain Desire," the new Ince-Triangle play starring H. B. Warner and showing at the Hippodrome tomorrow and Tuesday, is a production of marked beauty. It is a triumh of artistic treatment, many of the scenes displaying fine knowledge of picture composition and the whole a pleasing combination of craftsmanship and artistry. In the arrangements of sets and lighting the director has secured some remarkably beautiful scenes. H. B. Warner as the serious young minister deserves all the praise that one can give him. He is sufficiently active in the quiet moments and subdued in the dramatic ones to be both pleasing and real. The material is natural, the situations are not overstrained and nothing is unnecessarily exaggerated. Another point in its favor is that the picture is so thoroughly modern and can be applied anywhere and any time to almost any circle of society. Clara Williams, cast as Helen Badgley, plays opposite Mr. Warner with unaffected charm. Charles Miller and Gertrude Claire are excellent in their parts of the count and the girl's mother.

When a young minister learns that the only member of his congregation whom he has real faith in and admiration for is about to marry a count she does not love merely for social position and to please her ambitious mother, he is aroused to preach a sermon on loveless marriages. This brings a storm of wrath down on his head. He meets a street woman, and telling her he will pay her well to come to his church Sunday, he persuades her. Then when he preaches he points to the woman of the street as being no worse than the women who every day sell themselves for social position. As a result the engagement of Helen and the count is broken and the count threatens to sue millionaire Badgley. The climax and end follow swiftly, and are full of action. "The Market of Vain Desire" is from the pen of C. Gardner Sullivan.

"Ambition."

The common curse, when indulged beyond reason, "Ambition," has been made the theme of the newest William Fox play featuring Bertha Kalich and showing at the Hippodrome Friday and Saturday. Worthy ambition is certainly not to be condemned, but when it overreaches the mark it is a great power for evil. History, fiction and our everyday life prove this truth every day, and the treatment given the subject by the film, "Ambition," is particularly effective and timely. Madame Kalich is one of the intensely dramatic artists of the day and is wonderfully well cast in this play; she is beautiful on the screen, and acts with a quiet impressiveness much in contrast to the emotional, furious manner of many dramatic stars. Her play is a drama of the highest type, full of strong human emotions and intense climaxes. William Tooker in the role of Moore, the political leader, is also excellent, and Kenneth Hunter and little Kittens Reichert are others who are worthy of highest praise.

Powers and his wife are both ambitious for his political future, and when Moore, the most influential man in the town, announces that he will support another man, Powers suggests that Marian try to persuade him to change his mind. She undertakes the matter and seconds her husband's invitation to Moore to spend the week-end with them at their country home. While the men hunt, Powers accidentally, seemingly, shoots Moore in the leg and insists that he stay at their home until he is entirely well. In this time Marian realizes that she is really falling in love with the man who shows great strength of character. Moore loves her, too, but loves her too much to say anything that would bring scandal to her name, so prepares to leave. At once Powers upbraids his wife for not "making love" to Moore to win the promise, and she realizes his unworthiness. The result is an ending of stirring action and drama.

"The Apostle of Vengeance."

Realism is carried to a fine point in the new Thomas H. Ince picture featuring William S. Hart, "The Apostle of Veneance," and as shown at the Hippodrome theatre Wednesday and Thursday the film can be classed among the real "thrillers" of the screen. The author, Monte M. Katterjohn, has furnished the director with a strong, red-blooded story, and from it there has come one of the best pictures yet released by the wizard of good pictures, Thomas H. Ince. Hart does the best of his Triangle work in "The Apostle of Vengeance." All his well known strength of expression and action, his earnestness, his volume of suppressed power are here, and the great appeal of his work and character are felt in strong measure. Once before Hart has characterized a young minister, in "The Disciple," but it was a far different man from the one who refuses to fight in the old family feud and suffers ostracism by his own family. The author says that his whole story hinges on a remark which he heard an old feudist make years ago, to the effect that he had known mothers to turn against their own sons because they refused to fight in the feud battles. Nona Thomas makes a very lovable Mary McCoy, and young Marvel Stafford is a real "marvel" of girlishness in the role of Elsie, the young minister's sister.

David Hudson is living in Vermont and when he receives word from his old home in Kentucky that his father is killed and his mother wounded by the old enemies of the family, the McCoys, he sets out for home. But the earnest young preacher puts away all ideas of revenge, and strives to preach to his family and the mountain folk the gospel of forgiveness. He is cast off by his mother and brother, but his little sister remains true to him. David meets and is interested in Mary McCoy, and he begins to feel his teachings are doing good. Then his idolized little sister is attacked by a McCoy and almost killed. From this comes the powerful story of "The Apostle of Vengeance."

House Burns With a Loss of $1800

The home of W. N. Pollard, a negro, living at 2329 South Ninth street, was completely destroyed by fire yesterday morning at 7:30 as the result of a defective flue.

The fire department made a quick run, going a long distance and laying 2300 feet of hose, but the flames had too much start on the boys, who worked very hard, indeed.

The loss was estimated at $1800 on the house, with $1500 insurance. Most of the furniture was a total loss. There was no insurance on the furniture.

Large Enrollment Soon Expected by Texas Travelers

Chairman George B. Eubank of the membership committee of the Texas Travelers confidently expects the enrollment of new members at the forthcoming meeting of the organization, which occurs next Sunday, July 2, at the Raleigh, to far surpass all previous turn-ins. Every individual member of the 212 already enrolled is extending a cordial invitation to his friends on the road to come in and co-operate for the securing of better hotel and transportation facilities, needed features for commercial salesmen and a general spirit of fraternity.

The opinion of Mr. Eubank is shared by President J. S. McClintock and all the members of the new organization, who are looking forward to a very lively session today week.

Much interest has been shown by the public in the announcement that the Chamber of Commerce will have downtown and downstairs quarters, using the building formerly occupied by the Texas Telephone company on North Fifth street, in a few weeks.

The downstairs floor and the upstairs will be used, and a fine auditorium for meetings will be upstairs. The traffic department will be with the Chamber of Commerce, and County Demonstration Agent J. A. Pipkin will also have an office there, making this quite a center.

In the larger cities the custom is to have the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce on the ground floor, this being much more businesslike, and Waco is now to come in on this basis. The rooms which have been used were quite desirable, but it is stated by some of the directors that the new plan is more modern and probably will prove more satisfactory.

Program for Week.

Monday and Tuesday—H. B. Warner in the new Triangle play, "The Market of Vain Desire." New Keystone (title later).

Wednesday and Thursday—William S. Hart in the Ince Triangle play, "The Apostle of Vengeance," and Billie Burke in the latest episode of "Gloria's Romance"—"The Mesh of Mystery."

Friday and Saturday—Bertha Kalich in the new Fox photodrama, "Ambition," also new Keystone, "The Snow Cure" with Ford Sterling, and new Mutt and Jeff cartoon.

"The Market of Vain Desire."

"The Market of Vain Desire," the new Ince-Triangle play starring H. B. Warner and showing at the Hippodrome tomorrow and Tuesday, is a production of marked beauty. It is a triumh of artistic treatment, many of the scenes displaying fine knowledge of picture composition and the whole a pleasing combination of craftsmanship and artistry. In the arrangements of sets and lighting the director has secured some remarkably beautiful scenes. H. B. Warner as the serious young minister deserves all the praise that one can give him. He is sufficiently active in the quiet moments and subdued in the dramatic ones to be both pleasing and real. The material is natural, the situations are not overstrained and nothing is unnecessarily exaggerated. Another point in its favor is that the picture is so thoroughly mod[illegible] and can be applied anywhere and any time to almost any circle of society. Clara Williams, cast as Helen Badgley, plays opposite Mr. Warner with unaffected charm. Charles Miller and Gertrude Claire are excellent in their parts of the count and the girl's mother.

When a young minister learns that the only member of his congregation whom he has real faith in and admiration for is about to marry a count she does not love merely for social position and to please her ambitious mother, he is aroused to preach a sermon on loveless marriages. This brings a storm of wrath down on his head. He meets a street woman, and telling her he will pay her well to come to his church Sunday, he persuades her. Then when he preaches he points to the woman of the street as being no worse than the women who every day sell themselves for social position. As a result the engagement of Helen and the count is broken and the count threatens to sue millionaire Badgley. The climax and end follow swiftly, and are full of action. "The Market of Vain Desire" is from the pen of C. Gardner Sullivan.

"Ambition."

The common curse, when indulged beyond reason, "Ambition," has been made the theme of the newest William Fox play featuring Bertha Kalich and showing at the Hippodrome Friday and Saturday. Worthy ambition is certainly not to be condemned, but when it overreaches the mark it is a great power for evil. History, fiction and our everyday life prove this truth every day, and the treatment given the subject by the film, "Ambition," is particularly effective and timely. Madame Kalich is one of the intensely dramatic artists of the day and is wonderfully well cast in this play; she is beautiful on the screen, and acts with a quiet impressiveness much in contrast to the emotional, furious manner of many dramatic stars. Her play is a drama of the highest type, full of strong human emotions and intense climaxes. William Tooker in the role of Moore, the political leader, is also excellent, and Kenneth Hunter and little Kittens Reichert are others who are worthy of highest praise.

Powers and his wife are both ambitious for his political future, and when Moore, the most influential man in the town, announces that he will support another man, Powers suggests that Marian try to persuade him to change his mind. She undertakes the matter and seconds her husband's invitation to Moore to spend the week-end with them at their country home. While the men hunt, Powers accidentally, seemingly, shoots Moore in the leg and insists that he stay at their home until he is entirely well. In this time Marian realizes that she is really falling in love with the man who shows great strength of character. Moore loves her, too, but loves her too much to say anything that would bring scandal to her name, so prepares to leave. At once Powers upbraids his wife for not "making love" to Moore to win the promise, and she realizes his unworthiness. The result is an ending of stirring action and drama.

"The Apostle of Vengeance."

Realism is carried to a fine point in the new Thomas H. Ince picture featuring William S. Hart, "The Apostle of Veneance," and as shown at the Hippodrome theatre Wednesday and Thursday the film can be classed among the real "thrillers" of the screen. The author, Monte M. Katterjohn, has furnished the director with a strong, red-blooded story, and from it there has come one of the best pictures yet released by the wizard of good pictures, Thomas H. Ince. Hart does the best of his Triangle work in "The Apostle of Vengeance." All his well known strength of expression and action, his earnestness, his volume of suppressed power are here, and the great appeal of his work and character are felt in strong measure. Once before Hart has characterized a young minister, in "The Disciple," but it was a far different man from the one who refuses to fight in the old family feud and suffers ostracism by his own family. The author says that his whole story hinges on a remark which he heard an old feudist make years ago, to the effect that he had known mothers to turn against their own sons because they refused to fight in the feud battles. Nona Thomas makes a very lovable Mary McCoy, and young Marvel Stafford is a real "marvel" of girlishness in the role of Elsie, the young minister's sister.

David Hudson is living in Vermont and when he receives word from his old home in Kentucky that his father is killed and his mother wounded by the old enemies of the family, the McCoys, he sets out for home. But the earnest young preacher puts away all ideas of revenge, and strives to preach to his family and the mountain folk the gospel of forgiveness. He is cast off by his mother and brother, but his little sister remains true to him. David meets and is interested in Mary McCoy, and he begins to feel his teachings are doing good. Then his idolized little sister is attacked by a McCoy and almost killed. From this comes the powerful story of "The Apostle of Vengeance."

House Burns With a Loss of $1800

The home of W. N. Pollard, a negro, living at 2329 South Ninth street, was completely destroyed by fire yesterday morning at 7:30 as the result of a defective flue.

The fire department made a quick run, going a long distance and laying 2300 feet of hose, but the flames had too much start on the boys, who worked very hard, indeed.

The loss was estimated at $1800 on the house, with $1500 insurance. Most of the furniture was a total loss. There was no insurance on the furniture.

FOURTH AND LAST TRADE TRIP WILL BE TO TYLER 29TH.

The fourth and last trade trip of the Y. M. B. L. for the season of 1916 will be run to Tyler next Thursday, June 29, and judging from interest shown up and down the line this will be a great day for the Waco pilgrims and those who meet and greet them.

A special train over the Cotton Belt will carry the trade evangels to Tyler, and stops will be made at all stations between here and that place. A good band will accompany the trade trippers and band concerts will be given in the various towns for the pleasure of the people, while the Waco citizens and residents of the towns get better acquainted.

The Cotton Belt railroad will post bulletins all along the route, telling the people of the towns when the excursionists will reach their particular station, and also stating that there will be a band concert when the excursion arrives. The special train will leave Waco at 7 a. m., and returning will leave Tyler at 7:30 p. m., reaching Waco by bedtime; street cars will be kept in readiness for the trade trippers on their return, as a courtesy on the part of Superintendent H. B. Ross of the street railway company.

The excursion gives promise of being a great one. Newspapers in towns along the route are already telling about the proposed visit of the Waco people, and the interest shows that a fine reception awaits those who go.

J. M. Penland is arranging for dinner and supper on the trip, while the eats and drinks on the train are in charge of W. W. Naman. William T. Wheeler will see that the badge part of the program has proper attention; J. J. Hutchison has been giving attention to publicity up and down the line; Frank Trau is the secretary of the trade trip organization, Forest Goodman is treasurer, and John Wright is in charge of schedules. R. E. L. Montgomery is acting general chairman, having been appointed yesterday by President Duncan:

Large Enrollment Soon Expected by Texas Travelers

Chairman George B. Eubank of the membership committee of the Texas Travelers confidently expects the enrollment of new members at the forthcoming meeting of the organization, which occurs next Sunday, July 2, at the Raleigh, to far surpass all previous turn-ins. Every individual member of the 212 already enrolled is extending a cordial invitation to his friends on the road to come in and co-operate for the securing of better hotel and transportation facilities, needed features for commercial salesmen and a general spirit of fraternity.

The opinion of Mr. Eubank is shared by President J. S. McClintock and all the members of the new organization, who are looking forward to a very lively session today week.

Manager R. E. Pellow has equipped splendid quarters for the comfort and convenience of the Texas Travelers and pictures and pennants and other trophies of the membership will be placed from time to time in the rooms as features of special interest.

The Alabama Travelers number over 1,000 and are doing much for the boys on the road. The Texas Travelers are working to the 1,000 mark rapidly. As the association grows President McClintock and others are of the opinion that a few worth benefit features will be added in addition to the general good work of the hotel and transportation committees, legislative and employment committees.

JULY CLEARANCE SALE

SANGER BROS. Austin at Fourth St. Waco

Covering Every Department of This Greater Store Commences Monday

For forty-three years the Sanger July Clearance Sale has been an event that the people of this community looked forward to and counted on as the time to anticipate their wants and supply them during this sale, even in advance of their needs, because of the extremely low prices that prevail. This year the Sanger July Clearance Sale comes one week earlier than ever before in our history. This is due to the fact that our buyers are going to market earlier than ever before to prepare for the greatest Fall business Texas has ever known. The July Clearance Sale at this store is a sale with but one object—that of absolute clearance of all stocks to prepare for the new season's business. Our determination to completely and surely clear our stocks is best expressed in the prices quoted in the many pages of advertising that appear today for this sale. At no time of the year do we cut prices so deeply as we do for the July Clearance Sale and in all of the forty-three years that make up the history of this great merchandising event we have never cut prices quite so deeply as for this year's sale. Every department without a single exception takes part in the July Clearance Sale. No store in Texas at any time prints as many low prices as we do for the July Clearance Sale. Catering as this store does to almost every human need, and with every department offering hundreds of cut prices, our July Clearance Sale affords an opportunity to save a great deal of money on apparel for every member of the family, as well as on necessities for the home. You'll find the Sanger advertising that appears in this paper today filled with the most profitable reading you have ever enjoyed. We do not feel that it is necessary aside from printing the host of items and prices to urge you to take advantage of the money-saving opportunities that this great sale affords. We feel that the buying public are fully aware of the high quality of Sanger merchandise as well as the fact that our regular prices are at all times as low as they can possibly be made for merchandise of quality, reliability and dependability, and with these record-breaking prices in effect for the July Clearance we anticipate the greatest sale in the history of our business.

SANGER BROS. Austin at Fourth St. Waco

Covering Every Department of This Greater Store Commences Monday

For forty-three years the Sanger July Clearance Sale has been an event that the people of this community looked forward to and counted on as the time to anticipate their wants and supply them during this sale, even in advance of their needs, because of the extremely low prices that prevail. This year the Sanger July Clearance Sale comes one week earlier than ever before in our history. This is due to the fact that our buyers are going to market earlier than ever before to prepare for the greatest Fall business Texas has ever known. The July Clearance Sale at this store is a sale with but one object—that of absolute clearance of all stocks to prepare for the new season's business. Our determination to completely and surely clear our stocks is best expressed in the prices quoted in the many pages of advertising that appear today for this sale. At no time of the year do we cut prices so deeply as we do for the July Clearance Sale and in all of the forty-three years that make up the history of this great merchandising event we have never cut prices quite so deeply as for this year's sale. Every department without a single exception takes part in the July Clearance Sale. No store in Texas at any time prints as many low prices as we do for the July Clearance Sale. Catering as this store does to almost every human need, and with every department offering hundreds of cut prices, our July Clearance Sale affords an opportunity to save a great deal of money on apparel for every member of the family, as well as on necessities for the home. You'll find the Sanger advertising that appears in this paper today filled with the most profitable reading you have ever enjoyed. We do not feel that it is necessary aside from printing the host of items and prices to urge you to take advantage of the money-saving opportunities that this great sale affords. We feel that the buying public are fully aware of the high quality of Sanger merchandise as well as the fact that our regular prices are at all times as low as they can possibly be made for merchandise of quality, reliability and dependability, and with these record-breaking prices in effect for the July Clearance we anticipate the greatest sale in the history of our business.

JUNE BRIDES.

How many Junes, how many brides,
Have gone before, I can not say,
I only know your veiling hides
The blushes of a bygone day.
Your mother blushed the self same way,
Her mother's cheeks were tinted, too
Now here's another wedding day,
And lo, the charming bride is you.

This has been so since man began
To claim fair woman for his own,
Since 'twas proclaimed unfair for man
To spend and live his life alone.
To June the sweet and silvery tone
Of wedding bells is nothing new,
This music ages long she's known,
And now the charming bride is you.

Friends have come from far and near
To see the bride and wish her well,
To shed the glorious, happy tear,
And bask a moment in her spell.
To stand about with friends and tell
How long the lover had to woo,
'Twas so the day I married Nell,
And it is so today with you.

The oft repeated scene but grows
In beauty as the years go by;
Each happy maiden's wedding knows
The music of a mother's sigh.
The light of many a friendly eye,
The hand that throws the worn-out shoe,
For these are joys that never die,
And now the gentle bride is you.

God grant that love shall never fade,
This is the oft repeated prayer,
The prayer that ages long have made
For every newly wedded pair.
That love shall live through every care
And blossom sweet 'mid sorrow's rue,
Make light what burdens you must bear,
And now this is my prayer for you.

The hat is a smart gray sailor and is trimmed with fluted gro grain ribbon in a fashion modeled somewhat after the idol of the bull ring. The broad net ruff and enormous bowed ribbon are recent introductions and there is great promise of their being worn extensively this summer.

MOORE-LANKFORD WEDDING SOLEMNIZED WEDNESDAY

At the Columbus street Baptist church on Wednesday evening, a pretty June wedding was staged, when two of the church's well beloved young people were united in marriage, Mr. Ray Moore and Miss Beaulah Lankford. The culmination of this romance was not a surprise to their many friends, for the two have been sweethearts for years and no other outcome seemed possible to those who knew them. They have ben closely affiliated in their church work and the union into which they have now entered is only a closer and holier union than that existing for four years.

The church was filled with friends who have watched the romance bud and bloom, and who have been associated with the pair in their church activities.

Loving and sympathetic hearts had directed the hands that placed so artistically the ferns and palms that transformed the church into slyvan beauty.

The sweet voice of Mrs. Eula Finley broke the reverent hush of the church with the opening measures of "Melody of Love," and every romantic heart was touched by the singer's rendition of this most appropriate song.

Prof. Joseph Evans touched the notes of the wedding march as Rev. F. S. Groner took his place at the altar; then as the strains swelled into all their richness the bridesmaids entered fom one side of the altar, while the groomsmen entered from the other. The bridesmaids were two sisters of the bride, Misses Lola and Elsie Lankford with Miss Leta Jaynes, all becomingly dressed in white messaline and lace,

This is the oft repeated prayer,
The prayer that ages long have made
For every newly wedded pair.
That love shall live through every care
And blossom sweet 'mid sorrow's rue,
Make light what burdens you must bear,
And now this is my prayer for you.

THOUSANDS OF SICK WOMEN

Helped Every Year by Common Sense Suggestions Given Free by The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

For forty years women suffering from all kinds of female ills have been writing the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. of Lynn, Mass., for advice.

Thus they receive common sense suggestions drawn from a vast volume of experience, and thousands of sick women have been saved from untold suffering, as letters like the following clearly show :—

Newark, Ohio.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman. Your Sanative Wash is just the thing to overcome female weakness. I have told young mothers as well as older ones about your remedies, and what they have done for me. I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved my life, as my health was very bad when I wrote you, but now I can do my own work and have not had a sick day since I began taking your remedies. I keep the Compound and Liver Pills on hand all the time."—Mrs. GEO. THOMPSON, 24 Sherwood Court, Newark, Ohio.

Why don't you write for free advice? Address Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

MOORE-LANKFORD WEDDING SOLEMNIZED WEDNESDAY

At the Columbus street Baptist church on Wednesday evening, a pretty June wedding was staged, when two of the church's well beloved young people were united in marriage, Mr. Ray Moore and Miss Beaulah Lankford. The culmination of this romance was not a surprise to their many friends, for the two have been sweethearts for years and no other outcome seemed possible to those who knew them. They have ben closely affiliated in their church work and the union into which they have now entered is only a closer and holier union than that existing for four years.

The church was filled with friends who have watched the romance bud and bloom, and who have been associated with the pair in their church activities.

Loving and sympathetic hearts had directed the hands that placed so artistically the ferns and palms that transformed the church into slyvan beauty.

The sweet voice of Mrs. Eula Finley broke the reverent hush of the church with the opening measures of "Melody of Love," and every romantic heart was touched by the singer's rendition of this most appropriate song.

Prof. Joseph Evans touched the notes of the wedding march as Rev. F. S. Groner took his place at the altar; then as the strains swelled into all their richness the bridesmaids entered from one side of the altar, while the groomsmen entered from the other. The bridesmaids were two sisters of the bride, Misses Lola and Elsie Lankford with Miss Leta Jaynes, all becomingly dressed in white messaline and lace

THE GROCERY SO DIFFERENT

Reunion of Hood's Texas Brigade at Rockdale Wednesday

The forty-fifth annual reunion of Hood's Texas brigade will be held in Rockdale, beginning Wednesday, June 28, and preparations have been made by that live little city on a scale which makes it certain that the reunion will be one which will fill the attending veterans with joy.

The people of Rockdale are determined to do all in their power to make it pleasant for the veterans, and have already arranged matters so that every comfort will be provided for them. Rockdale is a very accessible point, and this encourages the belief that there will be a good number present.

Speakers of prominence will be present, and the address of welcome and one or two other chief addresses will be by Mr. Steele, former editor of the Epworth Era, an orator of great renown. The program is one which is full of good things from beginning to end.

Periwinkles Scarce This Season

Probably on account of the late and cool spring, the yards and sidewalks of Waco are this summer lacking in the usual number of smart looking, bright and attractive periwinkles that ordinarily add so much to the appearance of these yards and sidewalks.

The periwinkles are wonderful bloomers, keeping it up for weeks in the face of the hot hun and dry weather, with just moderate care and attention, but this season the plants did not come up with any degree of regularity, and in some cases seed were scarce, so that all in all the supply was cut short in the city. Some residents report that they planted the seed two or three times, only getting a few plants, the ground was so cold, and it was difficult to get the seed to come up.

Next year, if weather conditions are suitable, it is believed there will be a return to the periwinkles by many, as they are popular, and it was just the season this year which was against them.

with arm bouquets of pink carnations. The groomsmen were Messrs. A. B. Boatwright, G. T. Watkins and W. T. Stanton. After the bridesmaids and groomsmen were in place, the bride entered on the arm of the groom, preceded by the flower girls, Allene Jaynes and Dorothy Reiplinger. The little bride's blonde beauty was delicately brought out in the pure white of her costume and the modest veiling.

A shower bouquet of bride's roses completed the tasteful costume. In his kindly voice, made more kindly by the genuine feeling which filled his heart, their pastor, the Rev. F. S. Groner, read the beautiful marriage service which gave a jewel of girlhood into the keeping of the man whom she loved. During the service, Mr. Evans played in low tones, "Melody of Love." The ceremony over, the congratulations accepted, Mr. and Mrs. Moore went quietly to their home, 1210 North Thirteenth street.

Miss Beaulah Lankford has made her home in Waco since childhood, and is as popular a young girl as can be found in the city. The groom, Mr. Ray Moore, formerly a Baylor student, has been connected with the Waco Morning News for nearly five years. In token of the high esteem which his gentle courtesy and unfailing devotion to the paper has earned him, the "boys" presented the new home-makers with a fine kitchen cabinet.

Friends of the couple all over the city and county presented them with useful as well as beautiful gifts, which will go far toward making the new home a beautiful one.

Out of town friends and relatives registered from the following towns: Levi, Hillsboro, Stephenville, El Paso, Lorena, Bosqueville, China Springs, Moody, McGregor.

Mrs. Fannie Poague, now of El Paso, writes that they have heard about war and rumors of war, and lived on the brink of a volcano, as it were, for so long that their sense of fear has almost vanished. That, as she writes, it is reported one of the Carranza camps is in full view about twenty-five miles down the valley and she, with others, will go down in cars to see. Looks a little like courting danger, does it not? She also says the new Junior High School where she will teach next year, is equipped with a swimming pool in connection with the gymnasium, and a garage large enough to store about a hundred cars.

FOLK WE TOUCH IN PASSING

THE THUMB OF FEAR.

BY JULIA CHANDLER.

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

"WHO," SAID THE WOMAN, "ARE YOU?"

A slave to Fear, The Man inoculated The Woman with the poisonous virus.
So that she walked with him in the rut of mediocrity.

The Woman had realized small measure of self-fulfillment because she had lived the most of her life under the thumb of fear.

In the concluding years of her schooling, ambition had stirred strong in her active young mind, pushed by an undeniable ability, but the mere mention of a career brought a sniff from her family, which acted upon her hypersensitive nature like a poisonous virus.

Smoldering beneath this wet blanket of paretnal disapproval and depreciation was the ever-present yearning in the heart of The Woman to fulfill her purpose of being in a manner creditable to the ability which instinctively she felt to be her God-given heritage. But she had neither the courage nor the iniative to break through the crust of fear which those nearest her had formed over her sensibilities.

So, like many another before her, The Woman drifted into marriage unequipped for wifehood and motherhood, and unintended for either.

The Man was a plodder because he was afraid to be anything else.

"Why in the world should one of your ability be the slave of another?" The Woman asked him, when she no longer could bear in silence his seritude to men of less brains and less ability than he possessed.

"A salary is a sure thing," answered The Man. "It is mighty comfortable to know exactly the amount in a pay envelope that one draws on Saturday night. There are too many chances in plunges."

Whereupon The Woman knew that The Man whom she had promised to companion through life was a coward. The keenness of her own splendid brain recognized the superiority of his intellect. She knew that his equipment for life was adequate to demands far above and beyond those which his daily routine of unprogressive work placed upon it.

At first she believed in her ability to rouse him from his lethasy; to stir his ambition; to inspire him to reach out for a splendid fulfillment of his life and individuality.

So she gave the fullness of her splendid energy to the effort.

But she failed.

Even when Opportunity knocked loudly at his door The Woman was powerless to release The Man from his hideous bondage of Fear.

"I do not know how this thing will turn out," he told Opportunity, "and I am afraid to give up a certainty for an uncertainty."

"Have you no faith in yourself?" cried The Woman.

But The Man only gave her a tolerant smile, and told her that the main characteristic of Opportunity is Chance of which he was sore afraid.

"Then," answered The Woman, "I am not afraid. If you will not fulfill the highest possibilities of your life I will do just that for my own. I will not bear eternally the stamp of mediocrity."

Whereupon The Man's laughter rang out in scorn, and, as in the earlier days of her life, a too highly tuned nature made the relapse of her high purpose inevitable. Timidity, shyness, and modesty walk hand in hand with such sensitiveness and even while the consciousness of her ability to accomplish burned in the heart of her like a holy fire, The Woman so shrank from asserting her unshared faith in herself that she settled eventually into the rut The Man walked, gazing out upon the splendid fulfillment of other souls with hungry, haunted eyes.

And after awhile, in her close contact with The Man she gradually became inoculated with the virus of his fear and wondered how in the world she had ever had the audacity to believe herself capable of extraordinary accomplishment.

Like an Octopus, his insidious fear had reached out and ensnared the soul of The Woman, warping her life; destroying her faith, swamping her ambition, so that when, at last, she stood alone and looked out upon the world with eyes still young enough to be clear and beautiful she saw only the purple shadows that lay across the land of her life, and never a sunlit space.

One day as she sat thus in the grip of Fear she heard a soft knock that had a hauntingly familiar sound upon the door of her life. Curiously The Woman went to see who might be without, and found a figure small, and but dimly outlined in the dusk, pleading admission.

"Who," said The Woman, "are you?"

"I am Opportunity," replied the visitor.

Whereupon The Woman remembered that other figure that had stood on the threshold of The Man's life—a radiant splendid Presence, offering him the best that life has to give.

"I know I am very small," offered The Presence, divining The Woman's thought, "but if you will let me in, I will grow."

Whereupon the smoldering fires of The Woman's ambition, faith and ability flared until it transfigured her face as she looked upon The Presence.

And when she had nourished him with all she had of earnestness of purpose and glowing energy it was even as For Opportunity grew and grew as The Woman worked, and lived, and believed in herself, until at last she crept out from under the thumb of Fear and stood released from her bondage in the highest fulfillment of the possibilities of a life that God had never meant for the rut of mediocrity.

he had said.

TODAY' BEAUTY HINT

It is not necessary to shampoo quite so frequently if your hair is properly cleansed each time by use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers may be prepared very cheaply by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox, obtained from your druggist, in a cup of hot water. This rubbed into the scalp creates a thick lather, soothing and cooling in its action, as well as beneficial to scalp and hair. After rinsing the scalp is fresh and clean, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.

White Way and Next Trade Trip to Be Discussed at Y. M. B. L.

The directors of the Y. M. B. L. will meet Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the rooms on Austin street.

The directors and also the members of the Y. M. B. L. are looking forward to the approval of the contract for the white way on Austin street from Third to Ninth, and work on this great improvement can start in a short time then. The city commission probably will give attention to this matter at its meeting on Wednesday.

It was slyly hinted that they were bottled and sold during municipal campaigns.

The entertainment committee is as follows: C. P. Link, chairman· Joe Willis, Joe M. Evans, Roy E. Lane and A. A. Davis. Money and Work Plentiful in East Says Mr. Woodson

W. W. Woodson, cashier of the First National bank, who was accompanied by Mrs. Woodson, returned Friday from a stay of several weeks in New York, Boston and the Maine woods. They enjoyed their stay very much, and Mr. Woodson is looking fine.

Asked about the reports of better conditions in the east, Mr. Woodson said that these reports probably were not exaggerated, as money is plentiful and about the only problem confronting the people was to get enough help to handle the matters which were to be handled; every man, woman and child who wanted work could get it, he said, and business was going ahead with a rush.

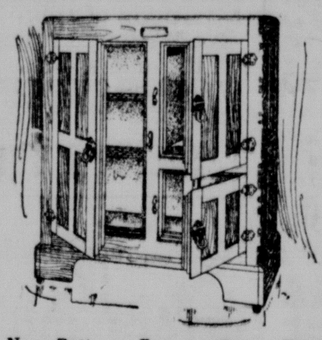

Mr. Woodson had a delightful time fishing and resting in the Maine woods, and said that the morning before he left he caught forty-four black bass, the fish having been protected in that country until sport is fine. While sportsmen are allowed to take a great many fish from the water they may only keep six for each person fishing in any one day, the others going back into the water. The boatmen on the lakes are licensed and are game wardens, so that there is actual supervision of the fishing, the result being wonderful sport in that line.

Mr. Woodson is glad to be back in Texas, and especially in Waco, and is throwing himself into his work with a vim once more.

"A TRIP THROUGH THE FACTORY"

Answering some of the questions most frequently asked by subscribers concerning the working of a telephone exchange.

10. "When Central tells me that the telephone I am calling for is busy, why can't she call me later, when that line is idle, and tell me so?"

To do this for you, "Central" would have to do it for all other subscribers as well. The number of such calls would run into the thousands every day. The operator would have to keep a record of every call for a line that was busy, then test out the line on her "multiple" frequently, until she found it idle, then call you—and wait for you to answer your telephone to tell you that you could get the line you wanted.

The result would be, principally, that with her bookkeeping and her testing of busy lines, the operator would not have time to operate her switchboard or pay any attention to incoming calls. Consequently, you would be able to "raise" Central only when she was not occupied in trying to complete a "busy" call for some one else—and you wouldn't like that at all.

Therefore, the switchboard operator's duties are confined strictly to making connections between telephones. She is even prohibited from answering questions (excepting for the time of day), because to do so would interfere with her work and put a drag on the service—not only on your service, but on everybody's service. Questions asked, requests for information, or special calls of any kind, are referred to "Information" or the Chief Operator—who have time to take care of them.

11. How many times a day are the telephone operators asked by subscribers for "the time of day"?

Between 3000 and 4000 times—and the answering of these questions for "the time of day" is equivalent to the work of more than two operators every day.

Reunion of Hood's Texas Brigade at Rockdale Wednesday

The forty-fifth annual reunion of Hood's Texas brigade will be held in Rockdale, beginning Wednesday, June 28, and preparations have been made by that live little city on a scale which makes it certain that the reunion will be one which will fill the attending veterans with joy.

The people of Rockdale are determined to do all in their power to make it pleasant for the veterans, and have already arranged matters so that every comfort will be provided for them. Rockdale is a very accessible point, and this encourages the belief that there will be a good number present.

Speakers of prominence will be present, and the address of welcome and one or two other chief addresses will be by Mr. Steele, former editor of the Epworth Era, an orator of great renown. The program is one which is full of good things from beginning to end.

Periwinkles Scarce This Season

Probably on account of the late and cool spring, the yards and sidewalks of Waco are this summer lacking in the usual number of smart looking, bright and attractive periwinkles that ordinarily add so much to the appearance of these yards and sidewalks.

The periwinkles are wonderful bloomers, keeping it up for weeks in the face of the hot hun and dry weather, with just moderate care and attention, but this season the plants did not come up with any degree of regularity, and in some cases seed were scarce, so that all in all the supply was cut short in the city. Some residents report that they planted the seed two or three times, only getting a few plants, the ground was so cold, and it was difficult to get the seed to come up.

Next year, if weather conditions are suitable, it is believed there will be a return to the periwinkles by many, as they are popular, and it was just the season this year which was against them.

After the bridesmaids and groomsmen were in place, the bride entered on the arm of the groom, preceded by the flower girls, Allene Jaynes and Dorothy Reiplinger. The little bride's blonde beauty was delicately brought out in the pure white of her costume and the modest veiling.

A shower bouquet of bride's roses completed the tasteful costume. In his kindly voice, made more kindly by the genuine feeling which filled his heart, their pastor, the Rev. F. S. Groner, read the beautiful marriage service which gave a jewel of girlhood into the keeping of the man whom she loved. During the service, Mr. Evans played in low tones, "Melody of Love." The ceremony over, the congratulations accepted, Mr. and Mrs. Moore went quietly to their home, 1210 North Thirteenth street.

Miss Beaulah Lankford has made her home in Waco since childhood, and is as popular a young girl as can be found in the city. In token of the high esteem which his gentle courtesy and unfailing devotion to the paper has earned him, the "boys" presented the new home-makers with a fine kitchen cabinet.

Friends of the couple all over the city and county presented them with useful as well as beautiful gifts, which will go far toward making the new home a beautiful one.

That, as she writes, it is reported one of the Carranza camps is in full view about twenty-five miles down the valley and she, with others, will go down in cars to see. FOLK WE TOUCH IN PASSING

THE THUMB OF FEAR.

BY JULIA CHANDLER.

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

"WHO," SAID THE WOMAN, "ARE YOU?"

A slave to Fear, The Man inoculated The Woman with the poisonous virus.

So that she walked with him in the rut of mediocrity.

The Woman had realized small measure of self-fulfillment because she had lived the most of her life under the thumb of fear.

In the concluding years of her schooling, ambition had stirred strong in her active young mind, pushed by an undeniable ability, but the mere mention of a career brought a sniff from her family, which acted upon her hypersensitive nature like a poisonous virus.

Smoldering beneath this wet blanket of paretnal disapproval and depreciation was the ever-present yearning in the heart of The Woman to fulfill her purpose of being in a manner creditable to the ability which instinctively she felt to be her God-given heritage. But she had neither the courage nor the inlative to break through the crust of fear which those nearest her had formed over her sensibilities.

So, like many another before her, The Woman drifted into marriage unequipped for wifehood and motherhood, and unintended for either.

The Man was a plodder because he was afraid to be anything else.

"Why in the world should one of your ability be the slave of another?" The Woman asked him, when she no longer could bear in silence his seritude to men of less brains and less ability than he possessed.

"A salary is a sure thing," answered The Man. "It is mighty comfortable to know exactly the amount in a pay envelope that one draws on Saturday night. There are too many chances in plunges."

Whereupon The Woman knew that The Man whom she had promised to companion through life was a coward. The keenness of her own splendid brain recognized the superiority of his intellect. She knew that his equipment for life was adequate to demands far above and beyond those which his daily routine of unprogressive work placed upon it.

At first she believed in her ability to rouse him from his lethasy; to stir his ambition; to inspire him to reach out for a splendid fulfillment of his life and individuality.

So she gave the fullness of her splendid energy to the effort.

But she failed.

Even when Opportunity knocked loudly at his door The Woman was powerless to release The Man from his hideous bondage of Fear.

"I do not know how this thing will turn out," he told Opportunity, "and I am afraid to give up a certainty for an uncertainty."

"Have you no faith in yourself?" cried The Woman.

But The Man only gave her a tolerant smile, and told her that the main characteristic of Opportunity is Chance of which he was sore afraid.

"Then," answered The Woman, "I am not afraid. If you will not fulfill the highest possibilities of your life I will do just that for my own. I will not bear eternally the stamp of mediocrity."

Whereupon The Man's laughter rang out in scorn, and, as in the earlier days of her life, a too highly tuned nature made the relapse of her high purpose inevitable. Timidity, shyness, and modesty walk hand in hand with such sensitiveness and even while the consciousness of her ability to accomplish burned in the heart of her like a holy fire, The Woman so shrank from asserting her unshared faith in herself that she settled eventually into the rut The Man walked, gazing out upon the splendid fulfillment of other souls with hungry, haunted eyes.

And after awhile, in her close contact with The Man she gradually became inoculated with the virus of his fear and wondered how in the world she had ever had the audacity to believe herself capable of extraordinary accomplishment.

Like an Octopus, his insidious fear had reached out and ensnared the soul of The Woman, warping her life; destroying her faith, swamping her ambition, so that when, at last, she stood alone and looked out upon the world with eyes still young enough to be clear and beautiful she saw only the purple shadows that lay across the land of her life, and never a sunlit space.

One day as she sat thus in the grip of Fear she heard a soft knock that had a hauntingly familiar sound upon the door of her life. Curiously The Woman went to see who might be without, and found a figure small, and but dimly outlined in the dusk, pleading admission.

"Who," said The Woman, "are you?"

"I am Opportunity," replied the visitor.

Whereupon The Woman remembered that other figure that had stood on the threshold of The Man's life—a radiant splendid Presence, offering him the best that life has to give.

"I know I am very small," offered The Presence, divining The Woman's thought, "but if you will let me in, I will grow."

Whereupon the smoldering fires of The Woman's ambition, faith and ability flared until it transfigured her face as she looked upon The Presence.

And when she had nourished him with all she had of earnestness of purpose and glowing energy it was even as For Opportunity grew and grew as The Woman worked, and lived, and believed in herself, until at last she crept out from under the thumb of Fear and stood released from her bondage in the highest fulfillment of the possibilities of a life that God had never meant for the rut of mediocrity.

he had said.

TODAY' BEAUTY HINT

It is not necessary to shampoo quite so frequently if your hair is properly cleansed each time by use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers may be prepared very cheaply by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox, obtained from your druggist, in a cup of hot water. This rubbed into the scalp creates a thick lather, soothing and cooling in its action, as well as beneficial to scalp and hair. After rinsing the scalp is fresh and clean, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.

White Way and Next Trade Trip to Be Discussed at Y. M. B. L.

The directors of the Y. M. B. L. will meet Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the rooms on Austin street.

The most important business before the meeting will be discussion of and further arrangement for the trade trip to Tyler on next Thursday, this being the fourth and last trade trip of the year. It is desired to make this the best of the trade trips, and every effort will be put forth to this end.

The directors and also the members of the Y. M. B. L. are looking forward to the approval of the contract for the white way on Austin street from Third to Ninth, and work on this great improvement can start in a short time thea. The city commission probably will give attention to this matter at its meeting on Wednesday.

Rotarians Will Meet Tomorrow

R. W. Wooldridge, manager Armour and company, will be the principal speaker at the regular weekly meeting of the Rotary club at the State House tomorrow. It was stated by officers of the club that he would be expected to give a full description of the manner of utilizing the "squeal," by the packing companies. It was slyly hinted that they were bottled and sold during municipal campaigns.

The toastmaster will be Edgar E. Witt and Sam S. Fleming will furnish the thought of the day. The new committees appointed by the new set of officers at the last meeting will make their first report. The entertainment committee is as follows: C. P. Link, chairman· Joe Willis, Joe M. Evans, Roy E. Lane and A. A. Davis. The entertainment is expected to liven up under the new committee and many novelties have been promised as diversions.

It is requested that all members attend the meeting tomorrow so as to show the delegates to the national convention their preferences for the next meeting of the convention next year. This year's national convention will be held at Cincinnati, July 16 to 20, inclusive. A convention campaign committee to solicit attendance has been appointed and are working hard to get a good representation for this district.

WONDERFUL PROGRESS IN DEEP-SEA DIVING

RECENT IMPROVEMENTS MAKE IT EASY TO RECOVER THE SEA'S TREASURES.

Now Possible for Divers to Operate for Limited Length of Time at Depth of 300 Feet.

Washington, June 24.—Must all the millions of dollars that now lie at the bottom of the sea in the form of ships and their sunken treasure be forever lost to the world? Most of the vessels that have been sunk, whether by accident or in the course of the present war lie in comparatively shallow water, many of them at a depth of less than 300 feet, and the problem of their recovery does not seem entirely hopeless in the light of recent improvements in deep-sea diving and the feats accomplished by the expert divers of the United States navy. The matter is the subject of an article in the current number of the "Bulletin of the Pan-American Union," Washington, D. C. In discussing the organization of companies in the United States whose purpose is the recovery of some of the wealth now lying in the ocean's depths, the writer states:

"Certain it is that the project of recovering sunken ships, or the most valuable of the treasures that have gone down with them, is more feasible now than it was only four or five years ago. Such great improvements in diving apparatus have recently been made that it is now possible for a diver to operate for a limited time even at the great depth of 300 feet below the surface. These improvements are largely due to the remarkable experimnts in deep-sea diving conducted under the auspices of the bureau of construction and repair of the navy department of the United States in 1914. Prior to this time the greatest depth reached by divers was 20 feet, two English officers having accomplished that feat during a series of tests carried on by the British admiralty in 1907. For the benefit of those who do not appreciate the difficulty of diving to such depths, it may be stated that at a depth of ten feet below the surface the pressure is 4.33 pounds per square inch of surface of the body submerged. This pressure increases proportionately, and at a depth of 100 feet it has increased to 43.3 pounds and at a depth of 300 feet to 129.9 pounds.

"Notwithstanding this tremendous pressure, the expert divers of the United States navy have succeeded in not only reaching a depth of 300 to 305 feet but in remaining at that depth for from 5 to 20 minutes at a time, making examinations and observations in regard to a sunken vessel that made its subsequent salvage possible. This work was done in connection with the raising of the United States submarine F-4 which, it will be remembered, plunged to the bottom of the sea just off the harbor of Honolulu on March 25, 1915. Not only did the divers establish a new world's record for deep-sea diving upon that occasion, but the subsequent raising and recovery of the F-4 is the only instance in history where a sunken vessel was recovered from a depth of 300 feet."

The writer thereupon gives a brief sketch of the history of diving as a useful art from the time of Aristotle down to the present, and after describing a modern diving outfit and explaining in some detail the matter of the diver's being subjected to two pressures, viz., the pressure of the air inside the helmet and suit and the external pressure of the water, continues as follows:

"The necessity of having the air pressure within the diving dress compensate the external water pressure, thus subjecting the diver to pressure directly proportioned to the depth to which he descends, is the dangerous element in deep-sea diving. At a depth, for instance, of 100 feet, a diver must be subjected to a pressure of 4 atmospheres, or sixty pounds per square inch, in order to compensate the external water pressure. Exposure to such pressure is apt to be followed by dangerous physiological effects, commonly known as "caison disease," the symptoms of which include pain in the muscles and joints, commonly called "bends," deafness, embarrassed breathing, vomiting, fainting, etc., sometimes resulting in death. They do not appear while the pressure is being raised nor so long as it is continued, but only after it has been removed; and the view now accepted is that they are due to the rapid efferverscence of the gases which are absorbed in the body fluids during exposure to pressure. Experiment has proved that when the pressurs is suddenly relieved the gas is liberated in bubbles within the body, and that these do the harm. Set free in the spinal cord, for instance, they may cause partial paralysis, or in the heart lead to stoppage of the circulation. It has been found, however, that if the pressure is relieved gradually the bubbles are not formed, because the gas comes out of solution slowly and is got rid of by the heart and lungs. To prevent these effects the withdrawal of the air pressure—in other words, the decompression—should be slow. Hence the diver's ascent must be regulated accordingly, and the deeper he has been the slower and longer must be the periods for decompression. It was particularly in regard to this matter of decompression that the experiments of the United States navy department in 1914 led to improved methods, enabling the divers to descend to 300 feet below the surface. Being able to safely observe and direct the work of rescue at such a depth, and with modern lifting apparatus, who can say that the recovery of ancient treasures of sunken Spanish galleons, of hundreds of more recent wrecks of merchant vessels, and finally of many of the magnificent war vessels that have been sent to the bottom during the present war, is an idle dream?

NAVY WANTS THE COUNTRY BOY.

Rawest Kind Will Make Best Material, Recruiting Officer Says.

(From the Memphis Commercial-Appeal)

The navy recruiting stations are making a bid for country boys, saying that the "rawest kind of a country boy will make the best kind of material."

The general explanation of this assertion is that the country boy is physically stronger because of his out of doors life. But another underlying reason for the desirability of the country lad may be that he is more readily satisfied with the monotony of life on shipboard. He is not accustomed to the excitements and entertainments of the city—the parties, the theatres, the picture shows and the "white lights"—and so he will not miss them out under the stars on the lonesome cruises. Homesickness is not as easily conquered as seasickness, and the boy who has been accustomed to a variety of pleasures is more readily homesick than the one whose life has moved in quiet lines.

One thing about the country boy; he probably takes his training more docilely than his city neighbor, for as a rule he is better controlled at home and therefore more amenable to the dictates of authority.

A Bargain in Shoes.

A nice young man resolved to present his beloved girl with a pair of shoes. He accordingly procured her measure and purchased a ten-shilling pair.

In order to make the present appear more valuable he marked twenty-five shillings upon the soles of the shoes, and at his request, the clerk, who was a friend of his put a receipted bill for twenty five shillings into one of them. The presentation was made and the sweethearts were happy, as sweethearts should be. But mark the sequel.

The girl examined the shoes in the daylight and was not satisfied. She was convinced that her sweetheart had been cheated in the purchase of such a pair of shoes at that price. She decided to go and change the shoes and get a better bargain.

Next day she appeared in the shop and selected a pair of shoes, price fifteen shillings, and politely requested the clerk to take back the shoes for which she said her friend had paid twenty-five shillings. The receipted bill was produced in proof and the bootman found it impossible to go "behind the returns."

The smart girl took her fifteen shilling pair of shoes, obtained ten shillings in money and went home, happy and satisfied. The boot seller sent a fresh bill to the young man, who promptly paid the difference, but he thinks that girl may prove too smart for him later on.—London Answers.

AN UNSUCCESSFUL WASHERWOMAN.

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I smelled whisky on her breath this morning."

"John Parker! To compare your own wife to a washerwoman! Of all—Do you mean to imply—— Oh!"

And Isabel wept. By the time John had averted a divorce and wiped her eyes and nose on his clean kerchief the young woman's narrowed lips had relaxed.

"I only meant that if you could, with propriety, take a toddy after a long drive, it seemed unreasonable to reproach Katie for taking a bracer before she started on a heavy day's work."

"But John, it's so different. Why, Katie gets drunk.

John was silent. Upon a time he might have started an enjoyable debate but that was before they married. Isabel still retained a reformer's abstract interest in the problems of the poor, but her dealings with them were autocratic. The standard of morals she set for them was high and holy. Her own friends might drink like gentlemen—and ladies—and of course they could afford to do so. She never thought of criticising any one in her circle who looked upon whisky in a cut-glass decanter. Her prohibition sentiments flared only because Katie was unfastidious enough to drink a cheap and muddy liquid from a bottle that was carried in her stocking.

"I should have sent her straight home," worried the young matron. "But with all the people coming in this afternoon I had to keep her to—"

A crash in the kitchen sounded as if the apartment had been attacked by the Germans. As they opened the door, the additional draught swept a dishpan from its hook and it carried with it several pieces of tinware. A tray of dishes, knocked from the table by a blowing window curtain, lay smashed under foot, and dish towels had been whisked from the rack and several bottles of milk overturned. But in all that confusion, in all that noise, in spite of the bang with which John shut both door and windows, there was peace in the corner. Katie was asleep. An empty bottle peeked coyly from the pocket of her apron and her head rested on the kitchen sink. But on her face was a smile of peace.

"What shall we do?" whispered the lady of the house.

John reached for a kitchen spoon and gently poked the sleeper with its handle. Katie's smile flickered, but she never opened her eyes.

"Better call a policeman."

"But he'd arrest her," objected John. 'Isn't that what always happens to people who get intoxicated?"

"You wouldn't want to have the patrol wagon at your door if guests began to arrive," he pointed out.

A shrill bell cut into the conversation and the young people stiffened.

"Go meet 'em," ordered the husband wildly. "Keep 'em in the studio. I'll—see to Kate. Some of the girls up stairs will help. Only for heaven's sake don't let any of the relatives start prowling around the place."

"But you can't get rid of her or get any one in to help without going through the front door—"

"Head 'em off; keep chattering; I'll manage."

John crawled out of the window, onto the fire escape. His wife saw him start heavenward and then, giggling, sh shut the kitchen door and turned to greet her guests.

The two young artists who peered from the window when John pounded for admittance, seemed to think their neighbor had lost his mind.

"What do you mean by 'Please take care of a drunk?'" asked the sculptor.

"She's in the kitchen and must be kept there," exclaimed John. She mustn't wake up or—"

"Do you mean to chloroform her?" gasped the horrified girls.

"I never thought of that," said the young man brightening. "Have you any chloroform about the——"

"No! Are you mad? Why should you want to kill the cook?"

"But what——"

'I want her to stay asleep. Oh, please understand. We have company. Can't have a disgraceful scene. They are awfully conventional, and if they found out we concealed a drunkard on the premises——"

They formed a queer parade down the ladder and peered into the kitchen. Katie still sat near the sink, but her head had slipped from the drainboard and seemed to wobble in the breeze.

"Take her shoulders. I'll take her feet. Put her flat there, under the window," said the illustrator. She was a commanding girl who thought and acted quickly. When they had deposited the smelly bulk of calico and flesh, she surveyed the wreck without malice or disgust.

"Nina, pick up the dishes and clear up the sink while I finish cutting the sandwiches. John, you needn't stay. I'll hit her over the head with a stove lifter if she dares to wake up. Go in and show that wife of yours that everything is all right, and we'll get the tea things ready for serving. If Isabel laughs any harder some one will think she is unhappily married and trying to hide it with mirth. Scoot!"

John managed to make a smiling appearance on the other side of the kitchen door. He could not communicate with his wife except by means of eyebrow signals. But he was very funny about explaining that he was going to do maid duty because "a servant was suddenly indisposed." Isabel, not understanding the miraculous appearance of sandwiches and beautifully arranged tea cart, could only stare.

The girls had to step across the prostrate Katie every time they used the icebox, but her rythmic snores never ceased. John was just beginning to relax and make coherent replies to his guests when a scratching sound at the kitchen door attracted his attention. As he came out, breathless, the illustrator clutched him desperately.

"Have you got some whisky?" she whispered.

"Ye-es," admitted John.

"This poor woman has fainted," said the girl evenly, with a polite glance at Kate. "She would be better for a little stimulant. Wouldn't you, Kate?"

Kate, half raised on one elbow and staring blearily, agreed that whisky was just what she needed. They gave her half a goblet of it, and she contentedly stretched out and fell asleep.

At five-thirty the last guest departed and Isabel was admitted to her kitchen. She promptly went into hysterics when she saw the three seated solemnly about the woman sprawled heavily on the floor with a painter's smock rolled up for a pillow. At six, they dragged the still giggling bride to their flat, where they revived her with a supper celebrating the escape from a social catastrophe. At seven, several neighboring artists, attracted by sounds of wild glee, dropped in and heard the tale in fullest detail. It was long after nine that they descended to the kitchen in a body to determine Katie's fate.

"We can't have her there all night," said Isabel. "And I don't want her locked up. Lift her gently down the fire escape and have a taxi at the alley entrance. Take her somewhere and dump her. Isn't it lucky the city provides so many parks?"

But there was no need for conspiracy and kidnaping. Katie was gone. With her had disappeared the half filled bottle they had used to prolong her slumbers. On the sink they found a scribbled bit of paper evidently taken from Isabel's desk and they rong but i aint got no hed an i cant help it i like you an yur man is nise 2 an i didn no a liti gin wood hirt yous becaws i neded it bad i felt so bad My lanlady put me out Toosday an no one cood find me to tel me mi liti boy in the orfin hom was sik an he dide thirsday an his mother was not ther an he is all got an mi man never wuz no gud i didn mean rong but i felt bad an he is beried an ded an i didn no Please egscus the trubul very troly Mrs. Kate Swann."

OCEAN RATES HIT FARMERS.

(William G. McAdoo in the Outlook.)

No classes of our people are more vitally concerned in adequate steamship lines to deliver our products to foreign markets than our farmers and laboring men.

Our farmers have always produced more than they could sell in our home markets. This is notably true of grain and cotton. We depend absolutely ppon foreign markets for the disposition of our farm surplus. To show the magnitude and importance of our foreign trade in farm products, I need only call attention to the fact that for the fiscal year 1915 our total exports were $2,716,178,465, of which the total crude and manufactured farm products represented $1,616,687,466, or more than 59 per cent of our total exports.

If steamship facilities are inadequate, the farmer has added difficulty if he is not to a large extent actually prevented from getting his surplus products to foreign markets. Moreover, he is a great sufferer from exorbitant freight rates.

Because of the lack of American ships and the scarcity of ocean tonnage generally ocean freight rates in the Atlantic have been extortionately high. The normal rate of four cents per bushel for grain from New York to Liverpool has ben increased to forty cents per bushel. I do not have to argue with any intelligent farmer that he gets less for his grain on the farm when it costs forty cents per bushel to ship it from New York to Liverpool than when it costs only four cents per bushel for the same service. The cotton producer in the south has suffered to a greater degree. Ocean freight rates on cotton have gone as high as $15 per bale from Galveston to Europe, as against $2.50 per bale prior to the war.

Our farmers, because they produce the bulk of our wealth as well as the bulk of our exports, ought to be protected against extortionate freight rates, and ought to have the assurance of sufficient steamship service and reasonable rates to secure fair treatment and enable them at all times to compete in the open markets with their rivals in the other great farm producing regions of the world.

To Keep Skin in Fine Condition All Summer

It would be much better for the skin if little cream, powder or rouge were used during the heated term. Mixed with perspiration, dust and grime, these things are anything but beautifying. Ordinary mercolized wax will do more for the complexion, and without giving an oily, streaked, spotted or pasty appearance. It is the ideal application for the season, as it not only keeps the pores clean, but daily removes particles of scarf skin which have been soiled by dirt or weather. By constantly keeping the complexion clear, white, satiny, it does more toward perpetuating a youthful countenance than any of the arts or artifices commonly employed. One ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drugstore, will completely renovate the worst complexion. It is applied at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

To keep the skin from sagging or wrinkling, or to overcome such condition, there's nothing better than a face bath made by dissolving 1 ounce powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel.

WONDERFUL PROGRESS IN DEEP-SEA DIVING

RECENT IMPROVEMENTS MAKE IT EASY TO RECOVER THE SEA'S TREASURES.

Now Possible for Divers to Operate for Limited Length of Time at Depth of 300 Feet.

Washington, June 24.—Must all the millions of dollars that now lie at the bottom of the sea in the form of ships and their sunken treasure be forever lost to the world? Most of the vessels that have been sunk, whether by accident or in the course of the present war lie in comparatively shallow water, many of them at a depth of less than 300 feet, and the problem of their recovery does not seem entirely hopeless in the light of recent improvements in deep-sea diving and the feats accomplished by the expert divers of the United States navy. The matter is the subject of an article in the current number of the "Bulletin of the Pan-American Union," Washington, D. C. In discussing the organization of companies in the United States whose purpose is the recovery of some of the wealth now lying in the ocean's depths, the writer states:

"Certain it is that the project of recovering sunken ships, or the most valuable of the treasures that have gone down with them, is more feasible now than it was only four or five years ago. Such great improvements in diving apparatus have recently been made that it is now possible for a diver to operate for a limited time even at the great depth of 300 feet below the surface. "Go meet 'em," ordered the husband wildly. "Keep 'em in the studio. I'll—see to Kate. Some of the girls up stairs will help. Only for heaven's sake don't let any of the relatives start prowling around the place."

"But you can't get rid of her or get any one in to help without going through the front door—"

John crawled out of the window, onto the fire escape. His wife saw him start heavenward and then, giggling, sh shut the kitchen door and turned to greet her guests.

The two young artists who peered from the window when John pounded for admittance, seemed to think their neighbor had lost his mind.

"What do you mean by 'Please take care of a drunk?'" asked the sculptor.

"She's in the kitchen and must be kept there," exclaimed John. She musn't wake up or—"

"I never thought of that," said the young man brightening. "Have you any chloroform about the——"

"No! Are you mad? Why should you want to kill the cook?"

"But what——"

"I want her to stay asleep. Oh, please understand. We have company. Can't have a disgraceful scene. They are awfully conventional, and if they found out we concealed a drunkard on the premises——"

"I'd better see if he is raving," sighed the sculptor. "John, get off the ladder, I'll go down first."

They formed a queer parade down the ladder and peered into the kitchen. Katie still sat near the sink, but her head had slipped from the drainboard and seemed to wobble in the breeze.

"Take her shoulders. I'll take her feet. Put her flat there, under the window," said the illustrator. She was a commanding girl who thought and acted quickly. When they had deposited the smelly bulk of calico and flesh, she surveyed the wreck without malice or disgust.

"Nina, pick up the dishes and clear up the sink while I finish cutting the sandwiches. John, you needn't stay. I'll hit her over the head with a stove lifter if she dares to wake up. Go in and show that wife of yours that everything is all right, and we'll get the tea things ready for serving. If Isabel laughs any harder some one will think she is unhappily married and trying to hide it with mirth. Scoot!"

John managed to make a smiling appearance on the other side of the kitchen door. He could not communicate with his wife except by means of eyebrow signals. But he was very funny about explaining that he was going to do maid duty because "a servant was suddenly indisposed." Isabel, not understanding the miraculous appearance of sandwiches and beautifully arranged tea cart, could only stare.

The girls had to step across the prostrate Katie every time they used the icebox, but her rythmic snores never ceased. John was just beginning to relax and make coherent replies to his guests when a scratching sound at the kitchen door attracted his attention. As he came out, breathless, the illustrator clutched him desperately.

"Have you got some whisky?" she whispered.

"Ye-es," admitted John.

"This poor woman has fainted," said the girl evenly, with a polite glance at Kate. "She would be better for a little stimulant. Wouldn't you, Kate?"

Kate, half raised on one elbow and staring blearily, agreed that whisky was just what she needed. They gave her half a goblet of it, and she contentedly stretched out and fell asleep.

At five-thirty the last guest departed and Isabel was admitted to her kitchen. She promptly went into hysterics when she saw the three seated solemnly about the woman sprawled heavily on the floor with a painter's smock rolled up for a pillow. At six, they dragged the still giggling bride to their flat, where they revived her with a supper celebrating the escape from a social catastrophe. At seven, several neighboring artists, attracted by sounds of wild glee, dropped in and heard the tale in fullest detail. It was long after nine that they descended to the kitchen in a body to determine Katie's fate.

"We can't have her there all night," said Isabel. "And I don't want her locked up. Lift her gently down the fire escape and have a taxi at the alley entrance. Take her somewhere and dump her. Isn't it lucky the city provides so many parks?"

But there was no need for conspiracy and kidnaping. Katie was gone. With her had disappeared the half filled bottle they had used to prolong her slumbers. On the sink they found a scribbled bit of paper evidently taken from Isabel's desk and they rong but i aint got no hed an i cant help it i like you an yur man is nise 2 an i didn no a litl gin wood hirt yous beeaws i neded it bad i felt so bad My lanlady put me out Toosday an no one cood find me to tel me mi litl boy in the orfin hom was sik an he dide thirsday an his mother was not ther an he is all got an mi man never wuz no gud i didn mean rong but i felt bad an he is beried an ded an i didn no Please egscus the trubul very troly Mrs. Kate Swann."

OCEAN RATES HIT FARMERS.

(William G. McAdoo in the Outlook.)

No classes of our people are more vitally concerned in adequate steamship lines to deliver our products to foreign markets than our farmers and laboring men.

Our farmers have always produced more than they could sell in our home markets. This is notably true of grain and cotton. We depend absolutely ppon foreign markets for the disposition of our farm surplus. To show the magnitude and importance of our foreign trade in farm products, I need only call attention to the fact that for the fiscal year 1915 our total exports were $2,716,178,465, of which the total crude and manufactured farm products represented $1,616,687,466, or more than 59 per cent of our total exports.

If steamship facilities are inadequate, the farmer has added difficulty if he is not to a large extent actually prevented from getting his surplus products to foreign markets. Moreover, he is a great sufferer from exorbitant freight rates.

Because of the lack of American ships and the scarcity of ocean tonnage generally ocean freight rates in the Atlantic have been extortionately high. The normal rate of four cents per bushel for grain from New York to Liverpool has ben increased to forty cents per bushel. I do not have to argue with any intelligent farmer that he gets less for his grain on the farm when it costs forty cents per bushel to ship it from New York to Liverpool than when it costs only four cents per bushel for the same service. The cotton producer in the south has suffered to a greater degree. Ocean freight rates on cotton have gone as high as $15 per bale from Galveston to Europe, as against $2.50 per bale prior to the war.

Our farmers, because they produce the bulk of our wealth as well as the bulk of our exports, ought to be protected against extortionate freight rates, and ought to have the assurance of sufficient steamship service and reasonable rates to secure fair treatment and enable them at all times to compete in the open markets with their rivals in the other great farm producing regions of the world.

To Keep Skin in Fine Condition All Summer

It would be much better for the skin if little cream, powder or rouge were used during the heated term. Mixed with perspiration, dust and grime, these things are anything but beautifying. Ordinary mercolized wax will do more for the complexion, and without giving an oily, streaked, spotted or pasty appearance. It is the ideal application for the season, as it not only keeps the pores clean, but daily removes particles of scarf skin which have been soiled by dirt or weather. By constantly keeping the complexion clear, white, satiny, it does more toward perpetuating a youthful countenance than any of the arts or artifices commonly employed. One ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drugstore, will completely renovate the worst complexion. It is applied at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

To keep the skin from sagging or wrinkling, or to overcome such condition, there's nothing better than a face bath made by dissolving 1 ounce powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel.

MEXICAN SOVEREIGNTY A MYTH.

(New Republic.)

That Mexican sovereignty has become not only a fiction but a baleful fiction is written on the face of the record. Its government is unable to perform those essential functions which entitle it to respect and consideration. It is unable to afford even semi-security to the lives and property of aliens resident in Mexico. It is unable to prevent mauraudling outlaws from making murderous forays into American territory.

If it were not for the European war its egregious failures would have already provoked demands from European governments, injurious to its national integrity. As against the future threat of European interfention it must reply on the United States to protect its supposed independence. It is as incapable of planning and carrying out a healing domestic policy as it is of meeting its foreign obligations. Thus while it is insisting on all the privileges of a sovereign state it is ignoring most of the responsibilities. If it is allowed to continue on this course, the situation in that distracted country is likely to go from bad to worse.

Mexico needs outside assistance to an extent which is bound to bring with it outside interference. If President Wilson wishes to make any headway with his Mexican policy he should discard the fiction of Mexican sovereignty, well documented though it be, and should announce without ambiguity that the American army wil remain in Northern Mexico not only until order is completely restored, but until the continuation of good order is guaranted by an authoritative and dependable Mexican government.

Dodge Brothers Car Makes Descent Into Grand Canyon

With O. K. Parker of Los Angeles at the wheel, "Death Valley Dodge," the famous motor car that has performed more stunt trips than any other motor car in existence, a few days ago descended to the bottom of the Grand Canyon of Colorado and returned to the rim under its own power.

This is the first time in the history of motoring that this feat has ever been performed. Various daring drivers have looked over the ground with longing eyes, but were never able to convince themselves that the trip was a possibility.

But Mr. Parker, who is one of the most famous drivers on the Pacific Coast, determined to make the trial. Some months ago he visited the Grand Canyon and made a careful survey of the several routes to the bottom. These are simply trails on which tourists descend on the back of burros. The journey to the bottom is such a nerve-shaking one that many tourists are afraid to make the trip, even when convoyed by experienced guides.

Mr. Parker spent several weeks in thoroughly investigating the various routes to the bottom of the great gorge and finally decided that it would be possible to reach the bottom with the motor car by means of Peach Spring Canyon, one of the side gorges leading into the main canyon.

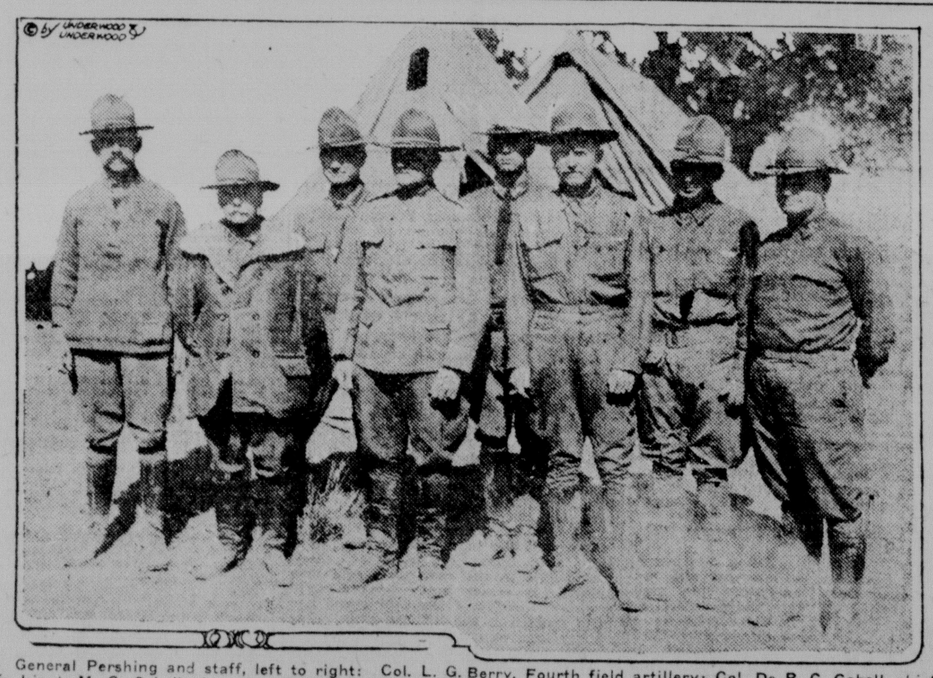

Accordingly he returned to Los Angeles and drove Death Valley Dodge overland to the canyon rim. Careful preparations were made for the descent. The trail was gone over and several boulders that made the passage of a motor car impossible were blasted out of the way. Others in the party with Mr. Parker asserted even then that the trip could not be made.

The trail, originally footed by animals seeking water, twisted and turned down the rugged sides of the canyon. At places it literally hung out over the depths and at all times it was so rough that only the most skilful driving of a motor car of particularly sturdy construction, made the trip possible. Where the bottom of the canyon was reached it was 5,000 feet, nearly one mile deep, and to reach the bottom more than twenty-one miles had ben covered. The car was driven alongside the roaring Colorado river and photographed. Despite the tremendous strain of the trip it was ready at once for the return journey to the rim. The frame was twisted at times until the radiator hose was snapped off, but the alignment of the power plant was so perfect that there was no trouble with the mechanism at all.

After the return to the surface the car was driven along the canyon rim to Navahoe Point, the highest point on the rim, and which is 6,000 feet above the surface of the river. Here other pictures of the car were taken.

Western motorists are wondering what feat Mr. Parker will call on Death Valley Dodge to do next. Already this great car has traversed parts of Death Valley never before seen by man; it won a gold rush at Barstow, Cal.; was driven by Parker through the Santiago Valley after the floods, when no other car could get through, and now it has made the trip to the bottom of the Grand Canyon.

A PREACHER'S SON PRESIDENT.

(Cincinnati Times-Star.)

The "preacher's son" has occupied an unenviable position in the past. Fiction gradually has adopted him as the juvenile villain. In novel or play or upon screen the "preacher's son" has had almost a monopoly of the character of the returning prodigal.

Bnt what say these critics of the "preacher's son" to the situation about to confront the country? A "preacher's son" will be the next president of the United States. The only alternative is whether you prefer a son of Baptist or Presbyterian extraction.

For several months Charles E. Hughes and Woodrow Wilson will fight each other with all the weapons in their political arsenals. But in one respect they have collaborated. For the time being they have caused the "preacher's son" to bear the same exalted relation to the presidency that the state of Indiana bears to the vice presidency.

NEWEST PICTURES FROM THE FRONT IN MEXICO SHOW UNCLE SAM'S MOTOR TRUCK TRANSPORTS IN DESERT HILLS

U. S. army motor truck transports en route for American camp in Mexico.

Scores of motor trucks are in service along the 280-mile American line south of Columbus, N. M., rushing rifles, ammunition and food supplies to General Pershing's army of 15,000 well seasoned men. There has been some apprehension lest this long line of communication be cut off, and the line is being constantly strengthened as the Mexican menace grows more grave.

Willis-Overland Announce Low Priced Yet Powerful Car

Like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky has come the announcement of a new model by the Willys-Overland company of Toledo, Ohio, which is destined, in the opinion of those who have already seen it, to cause a greater stir in a utomobile circles than any of the many sensational developments in motor car building which have occurred during recent years. The most powerful low priced car in the world is the description given of this new product of the great Toledo factory and it is known technically as the Willys-Oveland Company's New Series Model 75 B. In spite of the nation-wide lamentations concerning the increasing cost of materials, labor and manufacturing equipment, this latest motor vehicle is to be sold at $635 for the touring car and $620 for the roadster—prices which are said to be equally as sensational as the performances of the car itself.

The New Series Model 75 B Overland naturally bases its claim to being the most powerful low priced car in the world on its motor and on the exhaustive tests, which its builders insist have shown sonclusively its superiority over anything of its kind ever manufactured heretofore. With a larger bore now 3 3-8 inches and a 5-inch stroke, it develops 31 1-2 horsepower at 1950 revolutions per minute. This performance, at this low speed, in the opinions of those expert in autombile building, promises the greatest possible power from the motor, with the smallest amount of wear on the motor itself. Like a flash, this amazing motor will take the car 2 1-2 miles an hour to 53 miles an hour, on high, with all the ease of action so widely advertised in the big, powerful machines selling at five and six times its list price.

The low price of the new car naturally implies economy, but the Willys-Overland officials show that, unlike many other instances of low priced cars, the economy does not end with the purchase price. And here again the efficiency of that wonder-motor, as the Overland officials refer to it, is demonstrated. Tests have repeatedly proven that this sensational car will accomplish 25 miles on one gallon of gasoline and 18 to 20 miles per gallon is a common performance in average all-around use.

The motor, however, is but one of the many features of this inexpensive car which are causing comment on every side. In riding comfort it is said no car anywhere near its price can compare with it. It is equipped with four inch tires—something practically unheard of up to now in cars of this type, no other make selling anywhere near this price is equipped with four inch tires.. Those who have ridden on four-inch tires know well their advantage from the standpoint of riding comfort in a car of this size. The easy riding qualities of the car are further enhanced by cantilever rear springs, an important part of the equipment of higher priced cars. They reduce to the minimum the jarring caused by driving over rough roads. This is due largely to the fact that the cantilever spring is attached to the axle of the car at the rear end of the spring, instead of in the middle. When the wheels strike a rough spot, the reaction is directed backward at a slight angle instead of straight upward against the springs, as in the case with ordinary types of springs. The effect is the same as that of a glancing blow compared with a solid shock.

Notwithstanding the low purchase price, both touring car and roadster are equipped completely with all of those accessaries which prove such great selling factors in the disposal of expensive makes of cars. Here are a few items in the equipment which are said to make it positively unique in the history of low-priced cars:

A two-unit, six-volt electric starting and lighting system, with head, tail and dash lamps and head light dimmers; ammeter to register the electric current; one-man mohair top and top boot; curtains fastened from the inside; built-in, rain-vision, ventilating type windshield; magnetic speedometer; revolving oil indicator; gasoline gauge; electric horn; combination tail light and license bracket; hinged robe rail; foot rest; tire carriers in rear; extra demountable rim; full set of tools, tire repair kit, jack and pump.

In appearance, the body also ranks with the designs of most costly cars, practically the only difference being that it is smaller in size. Character and stability are noticeable in every detail. It has the latest streamline design, which has proved so attractive to the army of buyers during the last few months, and its long sweeping curves lead in an unbroken line from the radiator to the full curved back. A one-piece cowl and a sloping back increase its graceful appearance, while the crowned fenders of heavy sheet steel add another feature that is rare in inexpensive cars. Concealed door handles and hinges are also used in this model. There are large pockets on the inside of the doors, so necessary for carrying travelling incidentals, and the roomy seats have high, comfortable backs with seat cushions built on deep coiled springs. The machine is finished in solid black with nickel and polished aluminum trimmings.

The motor is cooled by the most advanced thermo-syphon system, no pump being required. The radiator is of the noted Overland celular type with vertical circulation and the whole shell is pressed from a single sheet of steel. A Tillotson carburetor is used and this make of carburetor needs no introduction to anyone acquainted with the best in motor cars. One of its greatest points of desirability is its extremely simple adjustment. An improved ignition system also adds to the efficiency of the new model. It provides a sure, hot spark at even the lowest speeds.

A constant level splash system provides thorough lubrication under all manner of usage. The transmission is of the selective sliding gear type with three speeds forward and reverse. The gears themselves are nickel steel, double heat treated and of the stub tooth type. The rear axle is of the floating type, with four bevel differential gears. The front axle is an I-beam section, drop forged in one heat without welding. Steering knuckles are designed to give an unusually short turning radius and the brakes are large and powerful, which goes to make it one of the easiest cars in the world to operate in crowded traffic.

The clutch and brake pedals can be adjusted to the reach most convenient for the driver, and their large and roughened surfaces insure a firm foothold at all times. The clutch is of the well known Overland aluminum cone type, leather faced.

The foregoing are some of the features which go to make this latest arrival in the automobile world a most desirable light-weight car as well as the most powerful low priced car in the world.

Cadillac

Standard of the World

In buying an automobile why not invest in a car with a proven record?

Why take a chance?

You may not want to drive from Los Angeles to New York in seven and a half days, as did Baker in a Cadillac last month. But you know your Cadillac can do it without injury—for the car we deliver you is a duplicate of the one he drove 3,371 miles across the continent.

You may not want to drive 489 miles in four hours and eight minutes less than the UNION PACIFIC'S crack train, "The Lark," as did Ted Beaudet from Los Angeles to San Francisco at 50.85 miles per hour.

But there is much satisfaction in knowing that your Cadillac can be put over the road without doing it hurt.

How many burnt out bearings have you ever heard of in the Cadillac? How many stuck pistons? How many Cadillacs have you heard of having engine trouble

As I said before, Why Take a Chance?

Cadillac Ads Will Be Copyrighted

This is a development so unusual that the explanation of K. P. Drysdale, advertising manager of the Cadillac company, will prove of interest to those who study advertising—which means a very considerable portion of the male population of America.

"The Cadillac company," says Mr. Drysdale, "has consistently endeavored to make its advertising as individual as its manufactured product.

"To that end, we have not hesitated to ignore advertising precedent, to depart from the conventional when conditions seemed to demand such departure, and to establish our own standards of advertising interest and expression.

"Some of these announcements have attracted extraordinary attention. Several of them seem to have been endowed with eternal youth and have apparently become a permanent part of the business literature of America.

"Thus, the company issued nearly two years ago an announcement entitled 'The Penalty of Leadership.' Its theme was the reward and the punishment which comes to the man or the manufacturer whose work attracts worldwide attention and is accepted as a standard.

"That advertisement, or business essay, or whatever it might be called, is still circulating round and round the world. It has been read in high schools, discussed in advertising conventions, framed and hung on the walls of hundreds of business institutions—and its theme and very phraseology 'borrowed' by scores of admiring advertisers.

"The same thing happened in the case of another announcement called 'The Tribute to Initiative.'

"Meanwhile the advertisements intervening between these two pieces of 'copy' were serving as models for dozens of other advertisers—Cadillac phraseology, Cadillac ideas and Cadillac principles bobbing up serenely in every direction, wearing other suits of clothes.

"Instances have come to our notice where Cadillac advertisements have been appropriated bodily, with the exception of merely substituting the name of some other article. In other instances, whole paragraphs appropriate only to the Cadillac have been 'cribbed' and applied—most inappropriately—to other cars.

"Latterly, the adaptations have come too swiftly to be comfortable—the 'borrowing' beginning the moment a Cadillac announcement appears in one publication, and before it has gone the rounds of the rest.

"So, however reluctantly, we were compelled to call on such aid as Uncle Sam can render. Phrases which bear the Cadillac earmark, ideas peculiarly applicable to the Cadillac, and perhaps no other car, will doubtless continue to make their appearance on all sides.

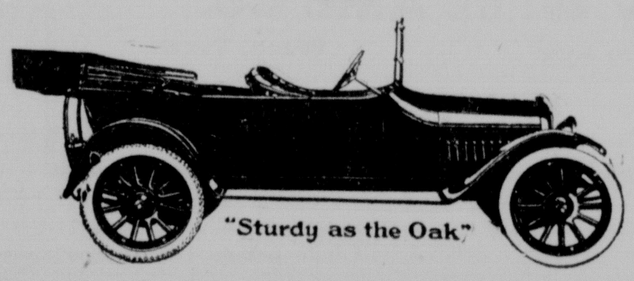

"But at least we hope to protect and preserve the identity of the announcements as a whole, at least until they have served their primary purpose."

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company Aid Preparedness

Now that the tramping of feet and the clatter of muskets are heard throughout the nation in response to the president's call for mobilization of the National Guard, it is interesting to note the part that the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company has had in the nation's preparedness program.

Goodyear encourages its employes to enlist in the national guard, allowing them the necessary time for summer military camp duty, without prejudicing their salaries or positions with the company. Many Goodyearites are affected by the president's mobilization order, among whom are executives and engineering experts whose services to the company are invaluable.

In many ways Goodyear has aided the United States government in its preparedness program. Recently two United States navy officers were detailed to the Goodyear factory to receive instruction in the operation of both spherical and kite balloons. All owned by the government were designed by Goodyear engineers and made in the Goodyear factory.

Perhaps the most noteworthy triumph of Goodyear in the military aeronautic field has been the perfection of the kite or captive balloon. The Godyear kite balloon operates under any weather conditions and remains steady even in a stiff gale, permitting the use of the most delicate instruments in making military observations. The distinction of furnishing the United States government with its first kite balloon fell to Goodyear. To enable the aeronaut to escape with his records in case of accident, a parachute has been perfected which is a modification of the type with which the public is familiar.

About five years ago Goodyear began to develop tires to fit the peculiar requirements of the aeroplane, which have performed so efficiently as to be adopted as standard equipment by the United States signal corps.
United States signal corps.

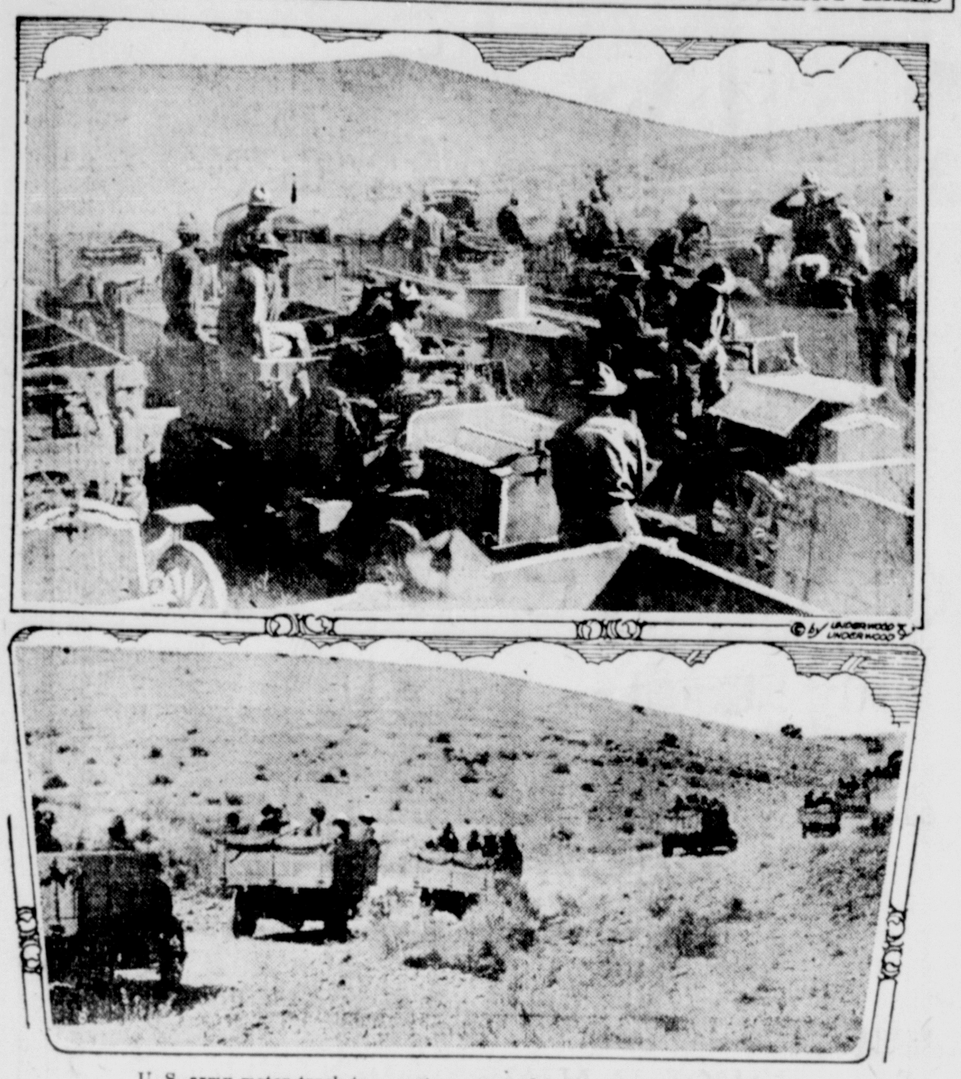

In the transportation of military supplies for General Pershing's forces in Mexico, Goodyear motor truck tires are predominant. More than a hundred motor trucks are now in service in Mexico equipped with Goodyears. Of the motorcycle equipment now in use by the United States army, in messenger service and as mounts for machine guns, more than half is operating on Goodyear Blue Streak Motorcycle tires.

The Goodyear is co-operating in every manner possible with the United States government in building up the national defense.

Scores of motor trucks are in service along the 280-mile American line south of Columbus, N. M., rushing rifles, ammunition and food supplies to General Pershing's army of 15,000 well seasoned men. There has been some apprehension lest this long line of communication be cut off, and the line is being constantly strengthened as the Mexican menace grows more grave.

Willis-Overland Announce Low Priced Yet Powerful Car

Like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky has come the announcement of a new model by the Willys-Overland company of Toledo, Ohio, which is destined, in the opinion of those who have already seen it, to cause a greater stir in a utomobile circles than any of the many sensational developments in motor car building which have occurred during recent years. The most powerful low priced car in the world is the description given of this new product of the great Toledo factory and it is known technically as the Willys-Oveland Company's New Series Model 75 B. In spite of the nation-wide lamentations concerning the increasing cost of materials, labor and manufacturing equipment, this latest motor vehicle is to be sold at $635 for the touring car and $620 for the roadster—prices which are said to be equally as sensational as the performances of the car itself.

The New Series Model 75 B Overland naturally bases its claim to being the most powerful low priced car in the world on its motor and on the exhaustive tests, which its builders insist have shown sonclusively its superiority over anything of its kind ever manufactured heretofore. With a larger bore now 3 3-8 inches and a 5-inch stroke, it develops 31 1-2 horsepower at 1950 revolutions per minute. This performance, at this low speed, in the opinions of those expert in autombile building, promises the greatest possible power from the motor, with the smallest amount of wear on the motor itself. Like a flash, this amazing motor will take the car 2 1-2 miles an hour to 53 miles an hour, on high, with all the ease of action so widely advertised in the big, powerful machines selling at five and six times its list price.

The low price of the new car naturally implies economy, but the Willys-Overland officials show that, unlike many other instances of low priced cars, the economy does not end with the purchase price. And here again the efficiency of that wonder-motor, as the Overland officials refer to it, is demonstrated. Tests have repeatedly proven that this sensational car will accomplish 25 miles on one gallon of gasoline and 18 to 20 miles per gallon is a common performance in average all-around use.

The motor, however, is but one of the many features of this inexpensive car which are causing comment on every side. In riding comfort it is said no car anywhere near its price can compare with it. It is equipped with four inch tires—something practically unheard of up to now in cars of this type, no other make selling anywhere near this price is equipped with four inch tires. Those who have ridden on four-inch tires know well their advantage from the standpoint of riding comfort in a car of this size. The easy riding qualities of the car are further enhanced by cantilever rear springs, an important part of the equipment of higher priced cars. They reduce to the minimum the jarring caused by driving over rough roads. This is due largely to the fact that the cantilever spring is attached to the axle of the car at the rear end of the spring, instead of in the middle. When the wheels strike a rough spot, the reaction is directed backward at a slight angle instead of straight upward against the springs, as in the case with ordinary types of springs. The effect is the same as that of a glancing blow compared with a solid shock.

The New Series Model 75-B Overland is one of the extremely few light cars, perhaps the only one in its class, in which the maximum of speed can be utilized without rattling the car's frame and without jarring the passengers out of their seats. In fact, the machine is simply a roomy, comfortable, solidly built car constructed on a light basis with such careful attention paid to distribution of weight and stamina of parts that it will hold the road, be it dry or slippery as the case may be, while the wonder-motor is smoothly developing with sufficient energy to propel a much heavier car with perfect ease. Light as it is, this new model is so built that it can make the best possible use of the most powerful motor.

Notwithstanding the low purchase price, both touring car and roadster are equipped completely with all of those accessaries which prove such great selling factors in the disposal of expensive makes of cars. Here are a few items in the equipment which are said to make it positively unique in the history of low-priced cars:

A two-unit, six-volt electric starting and lighting system, with head, tail and dash lamps and head light dimmers; ammeter to register the electric current; one-man mohair top and top boot; curtains fastened from the inside; built-in, rain-vision, ventilating type windshield; magnetic speedometer; revolving oil indicator; gasoline gauge; electric horn; combination tail light and license bracket; hinged robe rail; foot rest; tire carriers in rear; extra demountable rim; full set of tools, tire repair kit, jack and pump.

In appearance, the body also ranks with the designs of most costly cars, practically the only difference being that it is smaller in size. Character and stability are noticeable in every detail. It has the latest streamline design, which has proved so attractive to the army of buyers during the last few months, and its long sweeping curves lead in an unbroken line from the radiator to the full curved back. What Sort of Man Is the Korean?

(Carl Crow in World Outlook for July.)

Ask a Korean about his people and he will answer you in terms of the past. Point out to him the great ships other peoples build and he will call your attention to the fact that the first iron-clad battleship was made by a Korean, who with it vanquished a Japanese fleet three centuries before the battle between the Merrimac and the Monitor.

Show him pictures of the fine new bridges the Chinese have built and he will tell you of the first suspension bridge in the world, made by a Korean engineer for a Chinese army just 100 years after Columbus discovered America.

Accounts of the movement to simplify English spelling recall to him the fact that a Korean king advocated and put into practice the simplified spelling of the Korean tongue before Englishmen began to learn to spell.

Tell him of the great modern printing presses which make literature so cheap in other countries and he will boast of the fact that the Korean who invented movable printing types was dead before their use made popular literature possible in Europe.

Ask him about present-day social reforms and he remembers that Korea was experimenting with nationwide prohibition of alcohol just 200 years ago.

Show him the fine products of Japanese potteries and he will tell you that the Japanese did not know the potters' art until it was taught them by a colony of Korean prisoners of war.

Ask him about political liberties and he will tell you that long before the Magna Charta was granted his ancestors lived under a constitutional monarchy in which offices were denied to relatives of the king.

His is a history of achievement, invention and social progress equaled by a few others.

From Devils to Doctors in Korea.

(Willard Price in World Outlook for July.)

In Pyengyang, a city surrounded by a river and resembling a boat in shape, it was believed that if any one should venture to dig a well the water would rush in, sinking the boat and drowning all the city's inhabitants.

Needless to say, no wells were dug! The streams washed the filth of the city down into the river. Then the watermen filled their buckets at the river and sold "drinking water" throughout the city.

Constantly recurring epidemics were the result. But the people did not blame the dirt. They blamed the devils.

It was the duty of every Korean doctor to know the 300 places where the human body could be pierced with a red-hot needle without causing death. The needles were from three to twelve inches in length, and the doctor was supposed to know how deep they should be thrust. The purpose of the probing was to let out the devils which caused the disease.

When Christianity came to Korea it brought hygiene and medicine along with it. A hospital or dispensary was not known in Korea until founded by a Christian missionary.

Fine waterworks systems have been installed and the sort of water that gushes from this hydrant in Pyengyang is stated to have reduced the death rate by 70 per cent.

Erratic Temperature.

Still doth the chilling blast salute
The shore where summer fancies float.
Oh, never mind the bathing suit
But bring along an overcoat.

MAXWELL PRESIDENT DISCUSSES STYLES

WHAT ADVERTISING WILL DO

Style in Motor Cars.—"While we are concerned with selling people cars, and it is customary for a car to have a name, we are not doing anything unusual when we invite the public to compare and criticize a car with the word 'Maxwell' on it, with cars that have the word 'Black' on them, for most of the automobile concerns are doing that. Some of them are doing it in this way:

"They asked me two years ago to buy a car because it was the result of composite thinking and ingenuity on the part of seventy-five engineers, and they told me that it would run me for two years, and that it would have a 'trade-in' value of a certain amount if I took care of the product only fairly.

"Before long I bumped into their announcement that the next car and the only car upon which they were putting their name, was a car with a yacht line body and they told me that in order to have a car with good lines, with snap, with go, that the children could drive, I must have a 1915 car, but it must be one with the yacht line body.

"So I don't say much about my car after I read that announcement. The manufacturer whose name was on my car had told the whole world that my car was out of style, even though it was built by seventy-five engineers. It did not have the yacht line body, and was therefore one step behind the ultimate in automobile construction.

"There was a little while during the first year of ownership—for all cars are not bought by the public the moment they are made by the manufacturer—when I had some pleasant conversation about my car made by seventy-five engineers, but I knew I was in style.

"Now it isn't customary for a man to praise the style or the up-to-the-minuteness of a suit that he is wearing for a second season. That second season he explains his reason for wearing it that 'because it was good, it is a little out of style, but I like it, and I wear it off season.' And that's true about automobiles, too. I praise it when it is new, when it is the latest model, when it is the best style, and when I know that my friends know it is not in good style, I explain my ownership, but I do not admit my poverty, so we haven't gathered any good will. We have no momentum to carry over from 1914 into 1915.

"What Our Advertising Does.—Advertising can create a desire for something you have to sell—it can help build reputation for the company and the product which you represent—it can cause the public to regard favorably what you offer to them—and it can make the name and the merits of the product you sell universally familiar. When advertising has done that it has done its share in the selling plan—except to maintain what it has accomplished. The actual selling is the work of you men.

"Advertising has no mysterious powers—it performs no miracles. There have been, in the past, advertising campaigns built on false statements and unsound claims which have been credited with remarkable results. But they were done in that period of the automobile industry's development when a great many things "got by" that could not possibly succeed today.

"Our business has settled down to the sound basis that other businesses operate upon. We face a cold merchandising problem—unassisted by the appeal as a novelty, which the automobile formerly held for the public. And we are dealing with a public that knows far more about automobiles than they ever did before, and they are therefore able to judge the soundness of our advertising as well as they are able to judge the value of the product we are trying to sell to them.

"The Maxwell car is built for a mass market. It is sold at a low price, it is a staple commodity. We cannot boast of any engine built to do stunts—nor of custom-built bodies—nor of the social prestige of owning a Maxwell. Our customers do not expect these things. They want a sound, practical car that will be economical to buy and to own. Our advertising copy in the magazines and newspapers is, as you know, designed to tell the public that the Maxwell is just such a car—that it is the standard product in its field. We aim to gain the fullest measure of public confidence for the Maxwell car and the Maxwell company—avoiding all unsound claims—false stratagems—or any methods of presenting our case that would, through lack of dignity or character, lessen the reputation of the Maxwell product or its makers."

GERMAN FARMERS OUR PEERS.

(Harold Kellock in the Outlook.)

During he past twenty years the German farmer has virtually doubled his per acre yield in wheat, rye oats and barley. Our farmers are getting about as much corn and oats per acre as they did in the early seventies and in forty years their per acre yield of wheat, rye and barley have shown but slight increase. In agricultural efficiency we stand today about where Germany was a quarter of a century ago.

Our politicians like to boast that we feed the starving hordes of Europe. In reality, in the last thirty years we have changed from a food exporting nation to a food importing nation. From 1880 to 1884 inclusive we imported 503 million dollars' worth of foodstuffs in crude condition and food animals, and our food exports amounted to 956 million dollars. But in the five years ending June 30, 1914, the shoe was on the other foot. Our food imports had increased to 1 billion 16 million dollars. In agriculture we have been falling steadily into unpreparedness.

Er—Er—Why?

"Sometimes I think," remarked the timid young man in the parlor scene, "that if I—er—had money I would—er—get married."

"Well," suggested the dear girl who occupied the other end of the sofa, "why don't you try to—er—borrow some."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Explained.

"Pop."

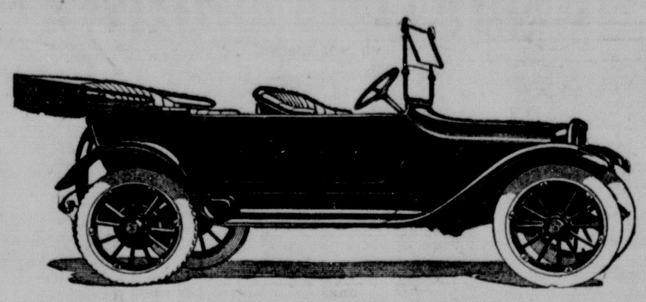

"Yes, my son."

"What is an end seat hog the papers talk about?"

"And end seat hog, my boy, is the fellow who gets the seat that you want yourself."—Yonkers Statesman.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CAR

A SOLID WALL OF GOOD WILL

Nothing has ever disturbed the demand for this car.

Not for a month, not for a week, not for a single day.

But in the sense of radical changes, it is the same car today it was when they designed it.

And still the demand goes on growing greater and greater.

And in the face of the further fact that the sales—in a year and a half—have been more than Sixty-three Millions of Dollars.

You will hear that with thousands of cars in use, Dodge Brothers dealers have practically no use for repair parts.

You will hear that the car consumes an unusually small amount of gasoline and oil.

This is literally true—of every Dodge Brothers car, under all conditions.

You will hear that it is very difficult to find Dodge Brothers cars for sale at second-hand anywhere.

You will also hear that the second-hand price is only a little lower than the first price.

Both of these things are true—not in one city, not one state, but all over the Union.

In short, wherever you find a Dodge Brothers car, you will find it surrounded by friends.

You will find it running, from morning to night, in an atmosphere of good will.

No ill will anywhere, good will everywhere—good will that grows out of its good work.

No one knows the value of this good will any better than Dodge Brothers know it.

This is your guarantee when you buy one of Dodge Brothers cars—the great good will that all the owners feel toward it and the high value which Dodge Brothers place on that good will.

What Sort of Man Is the Korean?

(Carl Crow in World Outlook for July.)

Ask a Korean about his people and he will answer you in terms of the past. Point out to him the great ships other peoples build and he will call your attention to the fact that the first iron-clad battleship was made by a Korean, who with it vanquished a Japanese fleet three centuries before the battle between the Merrimac and the Monitor.

Show him pictures of the fine new bridges the Chinese have built and he will tell you of the first suspension bridge in the world, made by a Korean engineer for a Chinese army just 100 years after Columbus discovered America.

Accounts of the movement to simplify English spelling recall to him the fact that a Korean king advocated and put into practice the simplified spelling of the Korean tongue before Englishmen began to learn to spell.

Tell him of the great modern printing presses which make literature so cheap in other countries and he will boast of the fact that the Korean who invented movable printing types was dead before their use made popular literature possible in Europe.

Ask him about present-day social reforms and he remembers that Korea was experimenting with nationwide prohibition of alcohol just 200 years ago.

Show him the fine products of Japanese potteries and he will tell you that the Japanese did not know the potters' art until it was taught them by a colony of Korean prisoners of war.

Ask him about political liberties and he will tell you that long before the Magna Charta was granted his ancestors lived under a constitutional monarchy in which offices were denied to relatives of the king.

His is a history of achievement, invention and social progress equaled by a few others.

From Devils to Doctors in Korea.

(Willard Price in World Outlook for July.)

In Pyengyang, a city surrounded by a river and resembling a boat in shape, it was believed that if any one should venture to dig a well the water would rush in, sinking the boat and drowning all the city's inhabitants.

Needless to say, no wells were dug! The streams washed the filth of the city down into the river. Then the watermen filled their buckets at the river and sold "drinking water" throughout the city.

Constantly recurring epidemics were the result. But the people did not blame the dirt. They blamed the devils.

It was the duty of every Korean doctor to know the 300 places where the human body could be pierced with a red-hot needle without causing death. The needles were from three to twelve inches in length, and the doctor was supposed to know how deep they should be thrust. The purpose of the probing was to let out the devils which caused the disease.

When Christianity came to Korea it brought hygiene and medicine along with it. A hospital or dispensary was not known in Korea until founded by a Christian missionary.

Fine waterworks systems have been installed and the sort of water that gushes from this hydrant in Pyengyang is stated to have reduced the death rate by 70 per cent.

Erratic Temperature.

Still doth the chilling blast salute
The shore where summer fancies float.
Oh, never mind the bathing suit
But bring along an overcoat.
—Washingston Star.

MAXWELL PRESIDENT DISCUSSES STYLES

WHAT ADVERTISING WILL DO

Style in Motor Cars.—"While we are concerned with selling people cars, and it is customary for a car to have a name, we are not doing anything unusual when we invite the public to compare and criticize a car with the word 'Maxwell' on it, with cars that have the word 'Black' on them, for most of the automobile concerns are doing that. Some of them are doing it in this way:

"They asked me two years ago to buy a car because it was the result of composite thinking and ingenuity on the part of seventy-five engineers, and they told me that it would run me for two years, and that it would have a 'trade-in' value of a certain amount if I took care of the product only fairly.

"Before long I bumped into their announcement that the next car and the only car upon which they were putting their name, was a car with a yacht line body and they told me that in order to have a car with good lines, with snap, with go, that the children could drive, I must have a 1915 car, but it must be one with the yacht line body.

"So I don't say much about my car after I read that announcement. The manufacturer whose name was on my car had told the whole world that my car was out of style, even though it was built by seventy-five engineers. It did not have the yacht line body, and was therefore one step behind the ultimate in automobile construction.

"There was a little while during the first year of ownership—for all cars are not bought by the public the moment they are made by the manufacturer—when I had some pleasant conversation about my car made by seventy-five engineers, but I knew I was in style.

"Now it isn't customary for a man to praise the style or the up-to-the-minuteness of a suit that he is wearing for a second season. That second season he explains his reason for wearing it that 'because it was good, it is a little out of style, but I like it, and I wear it off season.' And that's true about automobiles, too. I praise it when it is new, when it is the latest model, when it is the best style, and when I know that my friends know it is not in good style, I explain my ownership, but I do not admit my poverty, so we haven't gathered any good will. We have no momentum to carry over from 1914 into 1915.

"What Our Advertising Does.—Advertising can create a desire for something you have to sell—it can help build reputation for the company and the product which you represent—it can cause the public to regard favorably what you offer to them—and it can make the name and the merits of the product you sell universally familiar. When advertising has done that it has done its share in the selling plan—except to maintain what it has accomplished. The actual selling is the work of you men.

"Advertising has no mysterious powers—it performs no miracles. There have been, in the past, advertising campaigns built on false statements and unsound claims which have been credited with remarkable results. But they were done in that period of the automobile industry's development when a great many things "got by" that could not possibly succeed today.

"Our business has settled down to the sound basis that other businesses operate upon. We face a cold merchandising problem—unassisted by the appeal as a novelty, which the automobile formerly held for the public. And we are dealing with a public that knows far more about automobiles than they ever did before, and they are therefore able to judge the soundness of our advertising as well as they are able to judge the value of the product we are trying to sell to them.

"The Maxwell car is built for a mass market. It is sold at a low price, it is a staple commodity. We cannot boast of any engine built to do stunts—nor of custom-built bodies—nor of the social prestige of owning a Maxwell. Our customers do not expect these things. They want a sound, practical car that will be economical to buy and to own. Our advertising copy in the magazines and newspapers is, as you know, designed to tell the public that the Maxwell is just such a car—that it is the standard product in its field. We aim to gain the fullest measure of public confidence for the Maxwell car and the Maxwell company—avoiding all unsound claims—false stratagems—or any methods of presenting our case that would, through lack of dignity or character, lessen the reputation of the Maxwell product or its makers."

GERMAN FARMERS OUR PEERS.

(Harold Kellock in the Outlook.)

During he past twenty years the German farmer has virtually doubled his per acre yield in wheat, rye oats and barley. Our farmers are getting about as much corn and oats per acre as they did in the early seventies and in forty years their per acre yield of wheat, rye and barley have shown but slight increase. In agricultural efficiency we stand today about where Germany was a quarter of a century ago.

Our politicians like to boast that we feed the starving hordes of Europe. In reality, in the last thirty years we have changed from a food exporting nation to a food importing nation. From 1880 to 1884 inclusive we imported 503 million dollars' worth of foodstuffs in crude condition and food animals, and our food exports amounted to 956 million dollars. But in the five years ending June 30, 1914, the shoe was on the other foot. Our food imports had increased to 1 billion 16 million dollars. In agriculture we have been falling steadily into unpreparedness.

Er—Er—Why?

"Sometimes I think," remarked the timid young man in the parlor scene, "that if I—er—had money I would—er—get married."

"Well," suggested the dear girl who occupied the other end of the sofa, "why don't you try to—er—borrow some."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Explained.

"Pop."

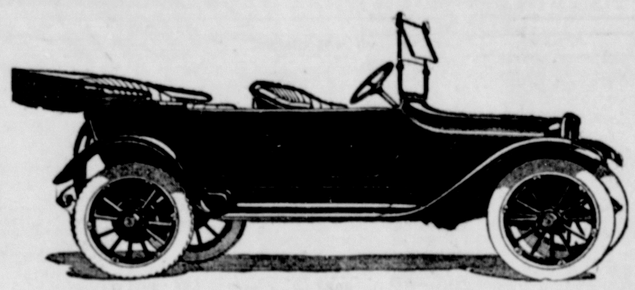

"Yes, my son."

"What is an end seat hog the papers talk about?"

"And end seat hog, my boy, is the fellow who gets the seat that you want yourself."—Yonkers Statesman.

A SOLID WALL OF GOOD WILL

Nothing has ever disturbed the demand for this car.

Not for a month, not for a week, not for a single day.

Having only one car to build, Dodge Brothers have been able to build it better and better.

But in the sense of radical changes, it is the same car today it was when they designed it.

And still the demand goes on growing greater and greater.

This in the face of the fact that production is at the highest peak it has ever reached.

And in the face of the further fact that the sales—in a year and a half—have been more than Sixty-three Millions of Dollars.

COTTON

New York.

New York, June 24.—While prices were generally higher in the cotton market here today, there was more or less nervousness and irregularity following the recent violent fluctuations, and after selling up to 13.41 October contracts closed at 13.37, with the general list closing easy although last prices were 8 to 14 points net lower.

The market opened firm at an advance of 5 to 11 points in response to relatively firm cables and reports of further rains in boll weevil sections. There was a renewal of scattering liquidation and selling by local reactionists, however, and the market soon turned easier with active months selling back to within a point or two of last night's closing figures during the early trading. Prices then steadied on covering for over the week-end and the private crop reports expected before the publication of the government's condition figures at 11 o'clock next Saturday and there also was considerable buying here, attributed to southern spot interests.

The earlier selling movement seemed to have exhausted the immdiate pressure and prices advanced quite rapidly with July selling up from 13.12 to 13.29 and December from 13.41 to 13.58 with active months showing net gains of from 4 to 18 points.

This bulge seemed to attract renewed liquidation and or realizing and the market was unsettled late in the morning with prices showing reactions of some 4 to 7 points from the best at the close.

New Orleans.

New Orleans, June 24.—The buying movement in cotton continued today and contracts at their highest were 13 to 14 points over yesterday's last quotations. The close was at a net rise of 7 to 10 points.

Shorts covered on a large scale, evidently liquidating for fear of bullish developments in the July position Monday and longs added to their commitments on the theory that the Mexican situation was bound to favor them in the near future.

A feature which contributed to the steadiness was the almost general rainfall in central portions of the belt and scattered rains elsewhere. The outlook appeared to be for little change in prevailing weather conditions.

COTTON

New York.

New York, June 24.—While prices were generally higher in the cotton market here today, there was more or less nervousness and irregularity following the recent violent fluctuations, and after selling up to 13.41 October contracts closed at 13.37, with the general list closing easy although last prices were 8 to 14 points net lower.

The market opened firm at an advance of 5 to 11 points in response to relatively firm cables and reports of further rains in boll weevil sections. There was a renewal of scattering liquidation and selling by local reactionists, however, and the market soon turned easier with active months selling back to within a point or two of last night's closing figures during the early trading. Prices then steadied on covering for over the week-end and the private crop reports expected before the publication of the government's condition figures at 11 o'clock next Saturday and there also was considerable buying here, attributed to southern spot interests.

The earlier selling movement seemed to have exhausted the immdiate pressure and prices advanced quite rapidly, with July selling up from 13.12 to 13.29 and December from 13.44 to 13.58 with active months showing net gains of from 4 to 18 points.

This bulge seemed to attract renewed liquidation and or realizing and the market was unsettled late in the morning with prices showing reactions of some 4 to 7 points from the best at the close.

New Orleans.

New Orleans, June 24.—The buying movement in cotton continued today and contracts at their highest were 13 to 14 points over yesterday's last quotations. The close was at a net rise of 7 to 10 points.

Shorts covered on a large scale, evidently liquidating for fear of bullish developments in the July position Monday and longs added to their commitments on the theory that the Mexican situation was bound to favor them in the near future.

A feature which contributed to the steadiness was the almost general rainfall in central portions of the belt and scattered rains elsewhere. The outlook appeared to be for little change in prevailing weather conditions.

WHEAT

Chicago, June 24.—Rains that checked the harvest in the southwest had a bullish effect today on wheat. After an almost continuous display of strength, the market closed firm, 1 to 1⅜c net higher, with July at $1.00¾ and September at $1.03⅛. Other commodities, too, made gains—corn ⅜@⅝ to ¾c, oats ¼@¾ to ⅝@⅞c, and provisions 50@57½c.

Buying which resulted from the unwelcome rains showed conclusively that the wheat market had been oversold on yesterday's break. Bulls were encouraged by that milling supplies were low at Kansas City and that Liverpool was manifesting a tendency toward increased firmness on deferred deliveries. Another factor which counted against the bears about a report that indicated a short yield in South Dakota.

In corn, as in wheat, the week-end evening up of trades helped to make prices bulge.

The Carrizal Massacre

Another Tragedy Recalled by the Butchery of Boyd's Men

The massacre of 123 United States soldiers at Carrizal by Mexican treachery, brings involuntarily to mind the similar but greater tragedy enacted at Goliad, Texas, more than eighty years ago.

On a St. Patrick's day, Fannin, with about 400 men, met 1500 Mexicans on the road from Victoria to Goliad. There ensued the battle of Colita. The Mexicans charged twice and were driven back with severe losses. That night, the already overwhelmingly superior Mexican forces were heavily reinforced and on the morning of March 18, the Texans, from behind breastworks hastily thrown up during the night, saw themselves completely surrounded by 3000 Mexicans, cavalry, infantry and artillery.

Being destitute of water, seeing that further resistance was futile, and being guaranteed the treatment of honorable prisoners of war, and being further guaranteed that they would be sent back to the United States, the command surrendered.

On Saturday night, March 26, the men were again assured that they would be sent back to the United States. They spent the evening in singing the songs of the homeland. On the following morning which was Palm Sunday, the men were awakened a little before dawn, led out upon the Goliad prairie in four companies, and shot down in cold blood. Those who escaped death from bullets were sabred. According to the Texas Almanac of 1860, the number of unarmed men massacred by the Mexicans at Goliad was 385. Other accounts give 330.

When one remembers that the United States has, on the Mexican border from Brownsville, Texas, to Columbus, N. M. only 35,000 men, the wonder is not that 123 men were murdered by Mexicans, but that more small scouting detachments have not been butchered. Bearing in mind the ugly fact that our army is pitifully small, that it is stretched out nearly 2000 miles of barren, inhospitable country, and that it faces a treacherous and blood-thirsty foe of numerical superiority, the question of military preparedness is seen to be one of menacing gravity.

To congress is delegated the power to raise armies, and to declare war. Other things being equal citizen soldiers of experience should be sent to congress. The following is pertinent:

"A very large standing army is not required in time of peace. Whenever danger shall threaten us, or the honor of the nation shall be imperiled, the manhood of America, of all nationalities, will lay down the implements of agriculture and industry, close office and shop, and grasp the musket and saber in defense of the flag. However, mere numbers untrained are not sufficient for modern warfare, and the military and naval academies should be either enlarged or new ones established for the education of officers to train and drill reserves and volunteers when called into service.

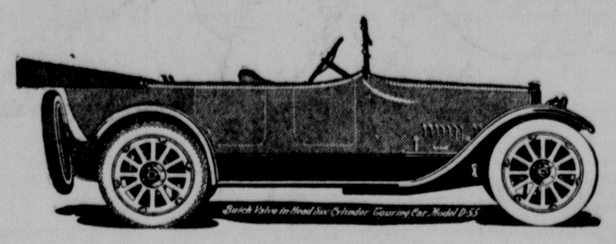

"The government should provide and maintain its own arsenals and munition plants. Military and naval equipmen should be provided for and kept on hand for the instant use of volunteers or reserve forces when called to the colors. Our experiences during the war with Spain should be borne in mind. It was a common sight to see troopers, some clad in straw hats and sack suits, others in frock coats and derby hats, drilling with antiquated rifles for weeks and weeks for lack of proper arms and equipment. The federal government should make liberal appropriations for the support and maintenace of the national guard and should provide for the payment of troops while in camps of instruction as well as when called into service.

"We are for preparedness, not for war, but for peace; not for aggression, but for defense."

The above is excerpted from the campaign-opening speech of Tom Connally.

When the war with Spain occurred, Tom Connally, although he had been well trained by West Point graduates, in the theory of the art and science of war, did not wait for or ask for a commission. Instead, he volunteered as an enlisted man, and rose to the position of sergeant-major of the Second Texas infantry. Many members of that regiment can testify to Tom Connally's efficiency in the discharge of his duty as the highest non-commissioned officer of the Second Texas—a position not filled by "pull" but by sheer merit.

Three men aspire to represent this district in congress. Which of the three do you, Mr. Voter, think would be most likely to become an important man in Washington? Which of the three aspirants would quickly become a leader in the house? Why, Tom Connally! This is a political advertisement.

Many New Popular Records For Your Talking Machine

The "Peer Gynt Suite," Grieg's most popular work, is presented in four parts, on two new Columbia Records de Luxe. The Suite was composed at the request of Henrik Ibsen as incidental music for the latter's well known drama, "Peer Gynt."

The first movement of this colorful drama is the awakening of a radiant dawn in the mountains, pulsating with the joyous carols of the birds. Here Peer Gynt's reveries and freakish imaginings are stimulated by the sweet mysteries of Nature.

In sombre contrast, the second movement is a mournful dirge, portraying in the repetition of three woeful chords the death of Ase, Peer's mother, on the lonely mountain side. This is considered one of the world's five great dirges.

The third movement is lightsome and descriptive of the dancing of Anitra, the young Arabian damsel Peer meets in Morocco. The charming grace of the youthful dancer is graphically conveyed by the Oriental splendor of the melody, which is scored for strings only.

The gloomy cavern of the Mountain King is the scene of the grand finale. Awe-inspiring incantations and weird dancing hold Peer Gynt spellbound. The motive begins on a single bassoon, increasing in speed and intensity to a tumultuous climax.

Patriotism is in the air, in the music and rings from every note of our glorious "Star Spangled Banner," as played by Prince's band and included among the new Columbia records.

This is an arrangement by Sousa, which probably tells you all you want to know, so it is hardly necessary to try to describe what this master of march-time has done with it.

Stirring, ringing, inspiring music and magnificently played by Prince's band. At times the music comes out in a wave that is fairly thunderous—as is the applause that always greets this Sousa arrangement.

Probably the greatest operatic basso of the day is Leon Rothier, who has been singing with the Metropolitan Opera company for the last five years.

Gifted with a voice of marvelous depth and richness, and a nice dramatic sense, he has added perfect technique so that his singing is a triumphant, flawless performance.

One of the most magnificent selections sung by Rothier is "O Isis et Osiris," from the "Magic Flute," of which a splendid record has just been issued by the Columbia company.

The high priest's stately invocation is given with wonderful sonority and breadth; with profound feeling and intonation the voice of the French basso sounds the deep cadences of this composition.

An Al Jolson record is always popular; this famous comedian seems able to "put it over" in one way as well as another, and to sing "fun" as no one else can.

This is one of the biggest hits in "Robinson Crusoe Jr.," which has been such a sensational success at the Winter Garden this season. The song never fails to bring down the house and starts a regular series of repeats.

It is splendidly recorded by Columbia.

"The Kangaroo Hop," played by the Blue and White Marimba band, is a joy record if there ever was one.

In the first place, the recording of the Marimba is excellent—you can scarce tell it from the original; and secondly, the Kangaroo has some hop—it hops you right off the chair with the first tinkling strain and keeps it up to the finish.

These Marimba players have a wonderful sense of time and rythm and a peculiar lift to their playing. With music like this you certainly can dance with your wife—Golden's song to the contrary notwithstanding.

Laugh and grow plump or laugh and shake it off (they say it works both ways), but laugh you must when Irene Young and Al Weston come singing their laughing duet, "Those Country Days Surely Were It."

On vaudeville tours, these two famous funmakers have set half the people of the country rocking in their seats—and now they may be secured for home entertainment via the Columbia company's new record.

More than this could any mortal ask? Only that you have two "feet with which to dance, my child."

As one listens to the voices of the Sterling male trio, the peaceful hush of deepening twilight envelopes the senses; awakening stars and flickering fireflies seem to scintillate fitfully in the beautiful melody.

"Shades of Night" is similar in tempo to the "Glow Worm" and promises to enjoy an equal measure of public favor. It is a most appropriate selection for an outdoor setting.

Despite an extensive career as dramatic soprano of the Chicago Opera company and of the Wurzburg Royal Opera company, there is a restful quality in Miss Stanley's voice seldom herd in a heavy dramatic soprano.

And particularly is this music of Venice, where on moonlight nights you drift with the tide and dreamily listen to the music that floats over the waters of the Grand canal. Again and again, but never too often, it is "Santa Lucia"—from the guitars in that barge, from voices over there and even whistled by some unromantic souls.

In this case it is excellently played by Prince's orchestra and recorded by the Columbia company.

Masonic Lodge Year in Texas Ends

The Masonic lodge year in Texas ended yesterday, and reports will at once begin to come in to Grand Secretary W. B. Pearson of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Texas.

These reports will come from every Masonic lodge in the state, and naturally it will be a busy time for Secretary Pearson for awhile. These reports will form the basis for the summary of conditions in the state at the annual Grand Lodge meeting in Waco in December. The Grand Royal Arch chapter and the council reports will also come in.

It is known that this has been a good year for the Masons of Texas, and that the reports will show up well when the December gatherings are held in Waco.

Chamber of Commerce Directors

R. J. WINDROW.

R. J. Windrow is not only a director of the Chamber of Commerce and associated with many other activities in the city, but is recognized as being one of the best equipped and most proficient engineers in Texas. His magnificent work in supervising the construction of more than 180 miles of permanent roads in McLennan county has resulted in this county getting some of the best roads in the southwest. He is serving his second term as a director of the Y. M. B. L., and is also on his second term as a Rotary director. Mr. Windrow was chairman of the Waco district in making the industrial survey a few weeks ago for the United States naval consulting board of which Thomas A. Edison is general chairman, and the work of this district was handled in splendid form and with great dispatch. Although R. J. Windrow has only been in the city for three years, yet he is more fully identified with the community, and has been more active than many persons who have lived here for a decade. He is as modest as he is earnest in the performance of his duties, and is recognized as one of the splendidly equipped, active, modern and progressive men of Waco.

Mrs. Harvey Fadely Formerly of Waco Dies at Asheville

A telegram was received in Waco yesterday by Miss Mary Kinnard telling of the death in Asheville, N. C., of Mrs. Harvey Fadely, who was Miss Ethel Bolton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Bolton, prior to her marriage to Mr. Fadely about five years ago.

Mrs. Fadely was a most estimable woman, whose personal attributes had endeared her to a very wide circle of friends here, and it will be with deep regret that news of her death is received in this city. She is survived by her husband and a little son, Harvey Fadely Jr., 3 years old.

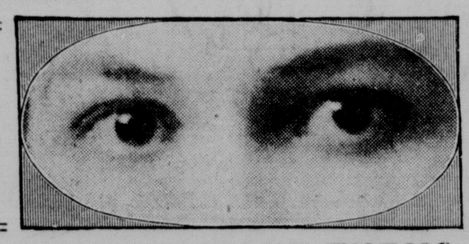

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Bolton went to Asheville a few days ago, arriving the day their daughter died, and reaching there in time to see her while yet alive.

The funeral will take place at Washington, D. C., where Mr. Fadely is in the government service. Mrs. Fadely spent a year in San Antonio on account of ill health before going to Asheville about two months ago.

More than this could any mortal ask? Only that you have two "feet with which to dance, my child."

"Shades of Night," a new song by Friedland and Franklin, is notable among new Columbia records.

As one listens to the voices of the Sterling male trio, the peaceful hush of deepening twilight envelopes the senses; awakening stars and flickering fireflies seem to scintillate fitfully in the beautiful melody.

"Shades of Night" is similar in tempo to the "Glow Worm" and promises to enjoy an equal measure of public favor. It is a most appropriate selection for an outdoor setting.

Despite an extensive career as dramatic soprano of the Chicago Opera company and of the Wurzburg Royal Opera company, there is a restful quality in Miss Stanley's voice seldom herd in a heavy dramatic soprano.

"Santa Lucia" is music of Italy; truly of the land of love and hate, poetry and passion.

And particularly is this music of Venice, where on moonlight nights you drift with the tide and dreamily listen to the music that floats over the waters of the Grand canal. Again and again, but never too often, it is "Santa Lucia"—from the guitars in that barge, from voices over there and even whistled by some unromantic souls.

In this case it is excellently played by Prince's orchestra and recorded by the Columbia company.

Masonic Lodge Year in Texas Ends

The Masonic lodge year in Texas ended yesterday, and reports will at once begin to come in to Grand Secretary W. B. Pearson of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Texas.

These reports will come from every Masonic lodge in the state, and naturally it will be a busy time for Secretary Pearson for awhile. These reports will form the basis for the summary of conditions in the state at the annual Grand Lodge meeting in Waco in December. The Grand Royal Arch chapter and the council reports will also come in.

It is known that this has been a good year for the Masons of Texas, and that the reports will show up well when the December gatherings are held in Waco.

Chamber of Commerce Directors

R. J. WINDROW.

R. J. Windrow is not only a director of the Chamber of Commerce and associated with many other activities in the city, but is recognized as being one of the best equipped and most proficient engineers in Texas. His magnificent work in supervising the construction of more than 180 miles of permanent roads in McLennan county has resulted in this county getting some of the best roads in the southwest. He is serving his second term as a director of the Y. M. B. L., and is also on his second term as a Rotary director. Mr. Windrow was chairman of the Waco district in making the industrial survey a few weeks ago for the United States naval consulting board of which Thomas A. Edison is general chairman, and the work of this district was handled in splendid form and with great dispatch. Although R. J. Windrow has only been in the city for three years, yet he is more fully identified with the community, and has been more active than many persons who have lived here for a decade. He is as modest as he is earnest in the performance of his duties, and is recognized as one of the splendidly equipped, active, modern and progressive men of Waco.

Mrs. Harvey Fadely Formerly of Waco Dies at Asheville

A telegram was received in Waco yesterday by Miss Mary Kinnard telling of the death in Asheville, N. C., of Mrs. Harvey Fadely, who was Miss Ethel Bolton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Bolton, prior to her marriage to Mr. Fadely about five years ago.

Mrs. Fadely was a most estimable woman, whose personal attributes had endeared her to a very wide circle of friends here, and it will be with deep regret that news of her death is received in this city. She is survived by her husband and a little son, Harvey Fadely Jr., 3 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Bolton went to Asheville a few days ago, arriving the day their daughter died, and reaching there in time to see her while yet alive.

The funeral will take place at Washington, D. C., where Mr. Fadely is in the government service. Mrs. Fadely spent a year in San Antonio on account of ill health before going to Asheville about two months ago.
